Red Premier Urges U.S. To Avert War

Message Promises USSR Will Take No Reckless Actions

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Khrushchev, calling for a summit meeting, urged Wednesday that the United States stay its hand in the Cuban crisis to quench the threat of thermonuclear war. The Soviet Union will take no reckless decisions, he said, but will act if the United States carries out "piratic actions."

"As long as rocket nuclear weapons are not put into play it is still possible to avert war," he said.

"The question of war and peace is so vital that we should consider useful a top-level meeting in order to discuss all problems which have arisen, to do everything possible to remove the danger of unleashing a thermonuclear war."

Khrushchev's comment came in a message to Bertrand Russell, British philosopher who had sent a message to the Soviet leader appealing to him "not to be provoked by the unjustifiable action of the U.S. in Cuba." Russell also sent a message to President Kennedy calling the U.S. quarantine action a threat to human survival and urging him to "end this madness."

Avoids Central Issue

The Khrushchev reply did not discuss the central issue raised by the United States—the announced establishment of missile bases in Cuba under Soviet auspices. But he accused the U.S. government of hatred of the Cuban people and of "election campaign considerations."

There was no immediate reaction from the State Department in Washington. One source said no conclusion should be formed from Khrushchev's words until it was known how Soviet ships would meet the U.S. naval quarantine.

In the message, broadcast by Moscow radio, Khrushchev said the Soviet Union will take no reckless decisions or "be provoked by unwarranted actions of the United States."

"We will do everything in our power to prevent war," he said.

Khrushchev used these words in calling for Washington to reverse itself on the quarantine:

"The Soviet government considers that the government of the United States must display reserve and stay the execution of its piratical threats which are fraught with the most serious consequences."

"We fully realize," said the statement, "that if war should break out that it would be a nuclear war from the very first hours. This is very clear to us. But evidently it is not clear to the government of the United States of America."

Reds Will Resist

Hinting at resistance to any U.S. Navy search of Soviet merchantmen, he said that if the United States persists in its "piratic actions," then "we, of course, will have to resort to means of defense against the aggressor."

Before the Cuban situation reached a crisis, President Kennedy said he would welcome talks with Khrushchev if the premier went to the United States for meetings of the U.N. General Assembly. Diplomatic sources in Washington suggested there had been feelers from Washington on the subject.

Tension Eases In Cuban Crisis

U.S. Continues To Prepare For Any New Developments

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Some of the 25 Communist ships headed toward U.S. forces blockading Cuba apparently have changed course, the government said on Wednesday night. It said others still were steaming toward a possible clash with U.S. warships.

The Defense Department made the announcement in one of the most cryptic statements of the Cuban crisis. It also said that American blockading forces had not yet been forced to order any of the vessels to halt.

The announcement came as United Nations Secretary General Thant sent identical appeals to President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev seeking to ease the Cuban situation. Kennedy planned an immediate reply.

Tension Eases Slightly

These developments, plus a Moscow statement by Khrushchev, had the effect of easing—although slightly—the tenseness that had hung over Washington since the Cuban crisis burst on the world Monday night.

First indication that any of the approaching Communist ships had veered from a collision course with the U.S. task force blockading Cuba came in the terse statement issued late in the day by the Defense Department.

"Some of the (Soviet) bloc vessels proceeding toward Cuba appear to have altered course," it said. "Other (Soviet) bloc vessels are proceeding toward Cuba. No intercepts have yet been necessary."

This meant that at that late hour none of the Communist vessels had tried to run the blockade although Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara had said he expected them to make the attempt sometime during the day—if they were determined to do so.

Planes Check Red Ships

McNamara also said there were 25 Cuba-bound Soviet ships at various points in the Atlantic. Another Defense Department spokesman said the Communist vessels were under surveillance of U.S. planes. But such official information was issued guardedly.

As the hours passed with no word of conflict on the high seas, unconfirmed reports mounted in Washington that the Soviet vessels had been ordered to turn back from the sink-if-you-must blockade ordered by Kennedy on Monday night.

Some question along this line was raised by Khrushchev in a message to British philosopher Bertrand Russell that was published by Tass, the Soviet news agency, and broadcast to the Russian people by the Moscow Radio.

In it, Khrushchev said the Soviet Union would make "no rash decision" as a result of the U.S. blockade and would "not let itself be provoked by the unjustified actions" of the United States. But he said Russia would defend its rights if the United States continued "piratical activities."

At the same time, it was disclosed that Khrushchev sent President Kennedy a letter Wednesday more or less repeating a Tuesday Moscow statement branding the U.S. blockade as a move down the road toward nuclear war.

The White House had no immediate comment on either of the Khrushchev messages. Officials elsewhere said privately that Khrushchev's remarks to Russell appeared to have eased tensions

Foreign Ships Will Recognize Cuba Blockade

Britain, Greece First To Agree

LONDON (UPI) — British shipowners agreed Wednesday to a government request to "cooperate as closely as possible" with the U.S. blockade of Cuba. The move led the way for other western European nations to follow. Greece also fell quickly in line.

H. J. Darre Hirsch, director of the Norwegian Shipowners Association, said there ware only a few Norwegian ships en route to the blockade area and that none of them is carrying arms. He said he believes they will not be affected but that no special instructions has been given to Norwegian owners.

Earlier this month the Norwegian group asked its members to stop shipping to Cuba and Norway's biggest line, the Wilhemsen Co., cancelled all sailings to Cuba.

In Athens, the Greek government ordered all ships flying the Greek flag to accept willingly and without opposition any search made by U.S. warships. The Greek merchant fleet has carried on extensive trade with Cuba.

Swedish shipping sources said four of their ships are heading for Cuba, that three are berthed in Havana Wednesday and that one is heading home from Cuba. The four are believed carrying food and timber from Communist European ports. The government met with the shipowners association Wednesday to discuss the blockade.

Shipping sources in Amsterdam said the Nederland Line freighter Batu left with "an unknown cargo" for Cuba Wednesday. A spokesman for the Holland America line said lack of cargo offers from Cuba caused their service to stop some months ago.

Major opposition to the blockade came from Sydney, Australia, where the leftist - led Waterside Workers Federation ruling council condemned the U.S. action as a policy of "brinkmanship" and called it a "blatantly aggressive act."

Red Chinese Make Sweeping Advances

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Sweeping advances by Chinese Communist troops — ranging up to 37 miles — were admitted Wednesday by the Indians but they claimed heavy casualties were being inflicted on the invaders.

Prime Minister Nehru rejected overtures for cease-fire talks on Peiping's terms even though a spokesman acknowledged the military situation at points along the flaming frontier was "not very cheerful."

Falling back on several fronts, the Indians said they were taking a heavy toll among the Chinese but gave no figures. The Indians were believed also suffering big losses.

A Nehru spokesman announced the Communists overran Kibitoo, an outpost in the Luhit valley leading down onto the plains of Assam near Diboi—one of India's most important oil centers.

The outpost, about 20 miles northwest of the Burma border, fell after heavy fighting, the spokesman said.

Other Communist advances were disclosed.

Red Chinese troops, striking with more powerful weapons and at times in waves of manpower, drove within 12 miles of the strategic trading and monastery town of Towang in northeast India.

A government spokesman said at least 13 outposts in Ladakh were feared lost. No ward has been received from the Indian garrison in the Galwan valley of Ladakh region since the Red Chinese launched their offensive last Saturday, and 12 other places are known to have fallen.

In the face of these reverses, the Nehru government rejected the Red Chinese proposal for a cease-fire under which each side would pull back troops 12.5 miles from present battle positions.

Advancing 25 to 37½ miles by "blatant military aggression," and offering to withdraw 12½ miles provided both sides do this, "is a deceptive device which can fool nobody," an Indian Foreign Ministry spokesman said.

Other Indian officials said a Peiping proposal for a summit meeting between Nehru and Red China's Premier Chou En-lai to settle the dispute along the 1,400-mile Himalayan border was "pure hypocrisy."

Nehru has taken the position the Red Chinese must get out of the territory claimed by India before any direct negotiations on the 51,000 square miles involved in the dispute can be undertaken.

Blast Rocks Earth Satellite Control Center

ANDOVER, Maine (UPI)—An explosion rocked a control building at the $15 million earth satellite communications center here Wednesday, and officials said six persons were injured in the blast.

American Telephone & Telegraph Co., which operates the station, said the injured were employes of its long lines department. Two were listed in serious condition at nearby Rumford Community Hospital with burns of the face and hands.

Officials said the blast, believed to have occurred in a boiler or a flue stack leading to an air scrubber, would not affect the performance of the Telstar program. The other boiler in the building was shut down at once.

The earth satellite communications center, located high in the mountains of western Maine, houses a giant, 340-ton horn-shaped antenna, or "ear," used in the Telstar satellite communications system.

Cabinet Members Out Of Campaign

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy has ordered all members of his cabinet to withdraw from the Nov. 6 election campaign because of the Cuban crisis, the White House announced Wednesday.

Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said the President issued the order Tuesday because he considered it inappropriate for high government officers to campaign during the crisis. Salinger said the cabinet officers also were needed in Washington.

Latin Americas Offer U.S. Aid In Blockade

WASHINGTON (AP)—Offers to help in the quarantine blockade against Cuba poured in from Latin American countries Wednesday.

Pleased U.S. officials predicted that, if the crisis continues, more than half of the 19 inter-American allies of the United States will join in physical action against the atomic-base buildup in Communist Cuba.

Preliminary reports indicated eight Latin American nations had offered to actively support the U.S.-initiated blockade, the stiffest action against a Latin American land ever approved by the Organization of American States.

The OAS has 20 members—the United States and all Latin American countries except Cuba. In what U.S. diplomats rated a major political success, the OAS voted 19-0 Tuesday to use force, if necessary, to prevent the offensive arms buildup in Cuba. Only Uruguay abstained.

State Department sources said Wednesday that the offers of help from other OAS members have been coming in on a volunteer bases. Some have been given to U.S. embassies at Latin American capitals, some to the State Department through Latin American embassies in Washington.

Canada, a member of NATO but not of the OAS, has cooperated by searching Cuba-bound Communist aircraft for items prohibited under the U.S. quarantine, officials said.

Civil Defense Step-Up Seen Across Nation

By United Press International

The nation's state governors, city and civil defense officials swiftly stepped up preparedness moves Wednesday in the heightening Cuban crisis.

Chief executives of many states called off political campaigning to huddle with civil defense officials.

Civil defense officials checked emergency communications facilities and nuclear bomb shelter possibilities. Local civil defense officials were briefed on emergency procedures.

The State Department scheduled five regional meetings during the next two days to bring all U.S. congressmen up to date on the Cuban crisis. Briefings will be held in New York, Chicago, Atlanta, Ga., and Fort Worth, Tex., Thursday and in San Francisco Friday.

U Thant Sends Notes To U.S. And Russia

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Acting Secretary-General U Thant was reported Wednesday night to have appealed to President Kennedy to suspend the U.S. naval arms quarantine of Cuba and to Premier Khrushchev to halt all Soviet ships bound for that country.

Informed sources said he had sent messages to the two leaders asking for a 14-day freeze which would permit time for negotiations.

Thant was reported also to have dispatched an appeal to Cuban President Osvaldo Dorticos to halt all construction on missile bases.

He was expected to announce the action to the U.N. Security Council, which met Wednesday night for additional debate on rival U.S. and Soviet proposals for dealing with the Cuban situation.

(In Washington, the White House said Kennedy had received a message from U Thant and will reply to it late Wednesday night. But press secretary Pierre Salinger said he would not make public the exchange that night.)

Earlier, representatives of smaller nations at the United Nations had appealed to Thant to seek some sort of a standstill agreement that would head off a U.S. - Soviet military showdown that could plunge the world into a nuclear war.

Reporter Flies Along 24th Parallel To View Ships In Blockade

Editors: A United Press International reporter and photographer skirted the Cuban blockade in a chartered airplane Wednesday. Here is a report of that flight.

By CHARLES E. TAYLOR

ABOARD AN OBSERVATION PLANE OVER THE CUBAN BLOCKADE (UPI) — Fly along the 24th parallel 65 miles north of the Cuban coast Wednesday and you'll soon be looking down the muzzles of the five-inch turret guns of Navy destroyer 465.

Fly along it without permission, and you'll quickly pick up a pair of jet interceptors at your wingtips.

The 24th parallel is the northern boundary of the Cuban blockade. Along it, the Navy has strung its picket ships.

To go beyond it, you need the Navy's say-so. North of it, you'd hardly know there was a crisis at sea.

Flying south from Miami Wednesday 1,000 feet above the ocean just offshore from the Florida Keys—sticking to a flight plan carefully filed with U.S. authorities—a dozen fishing boats and freighters could be seen plying the Gulfstream sealanes.

Ship Restrictions Limited

No restrictions were placed on the ships' movements as long as they stayed above 24 degrees north latitude.

The same went for the airplane, although federal authorities a few hours later demanded military approval of all civilian flight plans.

Coming into Key West's civilian airport all non-military planes give a five-mile berth to the Boca Chica Naval Air Station just north of the southernmost U.S. city.

A pair of silver Navy jets, their flaps down and landing gear reaching for the ground, were seen to drop suddenly out of low clouds streaming exhaust smoke. They settled quickly onto the air station runway at the finish of a patrol.

A huge Globemaster transport followed them a few minutes later, joining another already on the ground.

Beyond Key West to the south or east, you learn the full significance of the 24th parallel, the latitude line that runs east-west around the globe about 30 miles south of Key West. Havana is some 60 miles on the other side of the line.

It took our pilot, Joe Maugeri, 30 minutes to clear his plane to fly south to the parallel, then eastward along it.

Needed Approval Difficult

The Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) at Key West airport had to make six telephone calls to the naval air station to get approval for the flight—giving the plane's description down to its green and white coloring.

Once given the go-ahead you are ordered to 2,000-foot altitude. Most of the navy's patrol jets fly at higher altitudes, far above the gray ceiling of clouds.

The ocean appeared empty flying south to the parallel, but a few miles eastward along the line stood the first picket ship— destroyer 465.

She was still in the water, without a wake, her bow toward Cuba.

Approaching on a line across her stern, binoculars showed through the haze that the gray forward turret was turning, the white-tipped muzzle of the five-incher squarely on the little plane. The radar spun atop the destroyer's mast.

Picks Up Target

Crossing the vessel's stern, the aft turret picked up the target and followed it.

About 35 miles beyond, a second destroyer picket was waiting apparently a few miles south of the parallel.

The two ships were guarding with interlocking radar the main deep water shipping channel running southward along the Florida Keys.

The two ships were sufficient for the job since beyond them to the west were the Cay Sal shallows, not deep enough to permit a large ship to pass.

On the other side of the shallows were more picket ships guarding other deep water sea lanes.

Turning northward from the parallel toward Miami, Maugeri was being watched on radar. But no one bothered him until he radioed a slight change in his flight plans to Miami airport tower. He answered questions for the next 100 miles to shore about his plane, his destination and his positions.

Coming into Miami, the airport radio demanded more than an estimated course. It wanted the precise radial of the 360 degrees on the compass that the plane was using to approach.

"Man, there's never been surveillance like this," said Maugeri.

High Level Shot Again Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission announced a second 24-hour delay in the high-altitude nuclear test shot which had been set for Wednesday night in the Pacific.

"Technical reasons" was the explanation given in the AEC statement, relayed from Joint Task Force 8 in Honolulu.

The AEC also announced that a second test scheduled for Saturday night had been delayed for 24 hours, until Sunday night.

Red Premier Urges U.S. To Avert War

Message Promises USSR Will Take No Reckless Actions

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Khrushchev, calling for a summit meeting, urged Wednesday that the United States stay its hand in the Cuban crisis to quench the threat of thermonuclear war. The Soviet Union will take no reckless decisions, he said, but will act if the United States carries out "piratic actions."

"As long as rocket nuclear weapons are not put into play it is still possible to avert war," he said.

"The question of war and peace is so vital that we should consider useful a top-level meeting in order to discuss all problems which have arisen, to do everything possible to remove the danger of unleashing a thermonuclear war."

Khrushchev's comment came in a message to Bertrand Russell, British philosopher who had sent a message to the Soviet leader appealing to him "not to be provoked by the unjustifiable action of the U.S. in Cuba." Russell also sent a message to President Kennedy calling the U.S. quarantine action a threat to human survival and urging him to "end this madness."

Avoids Central Issue

The Khrushchev reply did not discuss the central issue raised by the United States—the announced establishment of missile bases in Cuba under Soviet auspices. But he accused the U.S. government of hatred of the Cuban people and of "election campaign considerations."

There was no immediate reaction from the State Department in Washington. One source said no conclusion should be formed from Khrushchev's words until it was known how Soviet ships would meet the U.S. naval quarantine.

In the message, broadcast by Moscow radio, Khrushchev said the Soviet Union will take no reckless decisions or "be provoked by unwarranted actions of the United States."

"We will do everything in our power to prevent war," he said.

Khrushchev used these words in calling for Washington to reverse itself on the quarantine:

"The Soviet government considers that the government of the United States must display reserve and stay the execution of its piratical threats which are fraught with the most serious consequences."

"We fully realize," said the statement, "that if war should break out that it would be a nuclear war from the very first hours. This is very clear to us. But evidently it is not clear to the government of the United States of America."

Reds Will Resist

Hinting at resistance to any U.S. Navy search of Soviet merchantmen, he said that if the United States persists in its "piratic actions," then "we, of course, will have to resort to means of defense against the aggressor."

Before the Cuban situation reached a crisis, President Kennedy said he would welcome talks with Khrushchev if the premier went to the United States for meetings of the U.N. General Assembly. Diplomatic sources in Washington suggested there had been feelers from Washington on the subject.

Swedish shipping sources said four of their ships are heading for Cuba, that three are berthed in Havana Wednesday and that one is heading home from Cuba. The four are believed carrying food and timber from Communist European ports. The government met with the shipowners association Wednesday to discuss the blockade.

Shipping sources in Amsterdam said the Nederland Line freighter Batu left with "an unknown cargo" for Cuba Wednesday. A spokesman for the Holland America line said lack of cargo offers from Cuba caused their service to stop some months ago.

Major opposition to the blockade came from Sydney, Australia, where the leftist - led Waterside Workers Federation ruling council condemned the U.S. action as a policy of "brinkmanship" and called it a "blatantly aggressive act."

High Level Shot Again Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission announced a second 24-hour delay in the high-altitude nuclear test shot which had been set for Wednesday night in the Pacific.

"Technical reasons" was the explanation given in the AEC statement, relayed from Joint Task Force 8 in Honolulu.

The AEC also announced that a second test scheduled for Saturday night had been delayed for 24 hours, until Sunday night.

Reporter Flies Along 24th Parallel To View Ships In Blockade

Editors: A United Press International reporter and photographer skirted the Cuban blockade in a chartered airplane Wednesday. Here is a report of that flight.

By CHARLES E. TAYLOR

ABOARD AN OBSERVATION PLANE OVER THE CUBAN BLOCKADE (UPI) — Fly along the 24th parallel 65 miles north of the Cuban coast Wednesday and you'll soon be looking down the muzzles of the five-inch turret guns of Navy destrover 465.

Fly along it without permission, and you'll quickly pick up a pair of jet interceptors at your wingtips.

The 24th parallel is the northern boundary of the Cuban blockade. Along it, the Navy has strung its picket ships.

To go beyond it, you need the Navy's say-so. North of it, you'd hardly know there was a crisis at sea.

Flying south from Miami Wednesday 1,000 feet above the ocean just offshore from the Florida Keys—sticking to a flight plan carefully filed with U.S. authorities—a dozen fishing boats and freighters could be seen plying the Gulfstream sealanes.

Ship Restrictions Limited

No restrictions were placed on the ships' movements as long as they stayed above 24 degrees north latitude.

The same went for the airplane, although federal authorities a few hours later demanded military approval of all civilian flight plans.

Coming into Key West's civilian airport all non-military planes give a five-mile berth to the Boca Chica Naval Air Station just north of the southernmost U.S. city.

A pair of silver Navy jets, their flaps down and landing gear reaching for the ground, were seen to drop suddenly out of low clouds streaming exhaust smoke. They settled quickly onto the air station runway at the finish of a patrol.

A huge Globemaster transport followed them a few minutes later, joining another already on the ground.

Beyond Key West to the south or east, you learn the full significance of the 24th parallel, the latitude line that runs east-west around the globe about 30 miles south of Key West. Havana is some 60 miles on the other side of the line.

It took our pilot, Joe Maugeri, 30 minutes to clear his plane to fly south to the parallel, then eastward along it.

Needed Approval Difficult

The Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) at Key West airport had to make six telephone calls to the naval air station to get approval for the flight—giving the plane's description down to its green and white coloring.

Once given the go-ahead you are ordered to 2,000-foot altitude. Most of the navy's patrol jets fly at higher altitudes, far above the gray ceiling of clouds.

The ocean appeared empty flying south to the parallel, but a few miles eastward along the line stood the first picket ship— destroyer 465.

She was still in the water, without a wake, her bow toward Cuba.

Approaching on a line across her stern, binoculars showed through the haze that the gray forward turret was turning, the white-tipped muzzle of the five-incher squarely on the little plane. The radar spun atop the destroyer's mast.

Picks Up Target

Crossing the vessel's stern, the aft turret picked up the target and followed it.

About 35 miles beyond, a second destroyer picket was waiting apparently a few miles south of the parallel.

The two ships were guarding with interlocking radar the main deep water shipping channel running southward along the Florida Keys.

The two ships were sufficient for the job since beyond them to the west were the Cay Sal shallows, not deep enough to permit a large ship to pass.

On the other side of the shallows were more picket ships guarding other deep water sea lanes.

Turning northward from the parallel toward Miami, Maugeri was being watched on radar. But no one bothered him until he radioed a slight change in his flight plans to Miami airport tower. He answered questions for the next 100 miles to shore about his plane, his destination and his positions.

Coming into Miami, the airport radio demanded more than an estimated course. It wanted the precise radial of the 360 degrees on the compass that the plane was using to approach.

"Man, there's never been surveillance like this," said Maugeri.

Latest Crisis Developments

By The Associated Press

Here are Wednesday's major developments in the Cuban crisis:

—An air of confusion shrouded the outlook for a showdown over the U.S. arms quarantine of Cuba with a Pentagon spokesman's statement that some Soviet ships headed toward the armada of picketing U.S. naval vessels "appear to have altered course" while "other vessels are proceeding toward Cuba."

—But the Pentagon spokesman said no Soviet ships had been stopped many hours after President Kennedy by proclamation put into effect at 10 a.m. EDT the blockade on deliveries of offensive arms to Cuba.

—The Soviet Foreign Ministry sent back to the U.S. Embassy a copy of the proclamation, an action amounting to Soviet rejection of the U.S. ultimatum.

—Moscow radio broadcast a message by Soviet Premier Khrushchev to British philospher Bertrand Russell saying "We will do everything in our power to prevent war." Khrushchev said a "meeting at the highest level would be useful to discuss all questions that have arisen and to eliminate the threat of nuclear war."

— France joined other Free World powers — Britain, West Germany, Italy, Turkey, Greece, Japan, Thailand and Jamaica — in supporting Kennedy's blockade.

—Uruguay's government joined the 19 Western Hemisphere nations which voted in the Organization of American States on Tuesday to support the blockade.

—U.S. officials said over half the Latin American nations had come forth with offers of some sort of physical participation in the U.S.-initiated arms quarantine of Cuba.

—The U.S. Strategic Air Command disclosed that it has canceled all leaves, recalled personnel on leave and halted permanent changes of station and of temporary duty assignments.

— The Defense Department made public what it called undeniable information showing at least 30 missiles and more than 20 Russian-built bombers in Cuba. The Pentagon said also it has new aerial reconnaissance photos of ballistic missile bases in Cuba "even more revealing" than the previous ones.

—Some 20 congressional leaders met with Kennedy at the White House for 55 minutes and were released for campaigning, if they desired, subject to 8-hour call back to Washington.

—Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., one of the conferees, said the apparent diversion of Soviet ships from Cuba may mean the Kremlin simply wants more time to decide whether to accept or balk at the U.S. quarantine.

— The State Department arranged regional briefings across the country on Thursday and Friday for all members of Congress, to provide them with detailed intelligence information.

—Civil defense agencies across the country sprang into action to plan for any emergency arising from the Cuban situation. There were fast action to check up on their resources, but no evidence of panic.

—Debate in the United Nations on the U.S. resolution aimed at winning the world organization's backing for Kennedy's decision

Coal Pipeline Proponents Answer Rails

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Proponents of a coal slurry pipeline leveled a broad attack Wednesday at railroads seeking a law to ban the pipeline.

Witnesses for the Consolidation Coal Co., in testimony prepared for a hearing by the State Senate's Transportation Committee, said the pipeline would cut more than $10 million a year from the electric bills of New Jersey consumers.

Crawford Jamieson, attorney for the coal company, said the bill being sought by the railroads discriminates against coal pipelines and is therefore unconstitutional.

Eric H. Reichl, director of research for the coal company, disputed testimony by a railroad witness at an earlier hearing that burning coal slurry would increase air pollution. He said a test at the South Amboy generating station of Jersey Central Power & Light Co. last November showed burning coal slurry causes no more air pollution than burning dry soft coal.

Consolidation Coal Co. has developed a method of transporting powdered soft coal mixed with water through pipelines. Railroads have charged a proposed pipeline to New Jersey would cost them much of their freight business and put 2,000 railroad workers out of jobs.

The railroads are backing a bill which would deny coal pipeline companies the right to condemn property. Jamieson argued that singling out coal pipelines for the ban is unconstitutional.

slightly—but on the other hand could mean anything the Soviet chief wanted them to.

Khrushchev proposed a summit meeting with Kennedy in the Russell message. The White House declined comment on this point and government sources said that as far as they knew such a meeting was not proposed in the message to the President.

Kennedy conferred at 5 p.m. with the 19 House and Senate leaders he summoned back to Washington Monday for a briefing before announcing his blockade on offensive arms shipments to Castro Cuba. They were briefed on the latest developments and some planned to return to the political campaign trail.

Some congressional sources reported that plans were going forward for an invasion of Cuba if such drastic action should be needed to remove Soviet missiles pointed toward America from Cuban launching pads.

Additional information on missiles and bombers in Cuba was supplied by Assistant Defense Secretary Arthur Sylvester. He also disclosed some details of how U.S. forces would deal with any Soviet submarines accompanying Soviet ships to Cuba.

Sylvester he said there were 8 to 10 missile bases in Cuba with four launchers "more or less" at each base. He did not say whether these were ballistic missiles aimed at the United States or anti-aircraft missiles.

Sylvester also said the Soviets had put at least 30 missiles in Cuba. He did not identify the type. He said there were more than 20 IL28 light jet bombers of a type previously described as having an operational radius of 700 to 800 miles.

Efforts Made To End State Discrimination

BALTIMORE (AP)—The state interracial commission said Wednesday strong efforts have been pledged to end racial discrimination in restaurants along U. S. 301 in Prince Georges and Charles counties.

Douglas Sands, executive secretary of the Commission on Interracial Problems and Relations, said leaders of the two Southern Maryland counties pledged the local effort at a meeting Tuesday.

As a result, student demonstrators have tentatively postponed freedom rides which were planned in the area November 10.

Sands said that Tuesday's meeting was arranged with the cooperation of Governor Tawes and his administrative assistant, Edmund C. Mester.

Anne Arundel county officials also were invited but said they could not attend. Sands said representatives of the Northern Student Movement and the Civic Interest Group agreed to meet later with Anne Arundel officials.

Royal Hart, a candidate for House of Delegates in Prince Georges County, promised he would seek a local bill providing for equal public accommodations after the November 6 general election.

Sands said Hart reported that every candidate running for office in his county has supported a strong public accommodations bill.

The Charles county representatives, mostly county commissioners, said a human relations group will be named shortly to press for desegregation of restaurants.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Former Secretary of State Dean Acheson arrived at Friendship International Airport Wednesday night from a European trip, apparently undertaken to confer with NATO members on the Cuban crisis.

Archbishop Believes Most Free People Favor Stand By U.S. On Cuba Blockade

By JOHN WOODFIELD

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Archbishop of Canterbury said Wednesday he was sure that the people throughout the Free World are in sympathy with the United States in the move to blockade Cuba.

Arriving at Friendship International Airport in Baltimore, the Archbishop, the Most Reverend Arthur Michael Ramsey, said the Christian peoples throughout the world "are in sympathy with America in this hour of crisis."

The archbishop is on a three-week good will tour of Anglican churches, colleges and universities in the United States.

He said he had no direct news from England on the Cuban situation other than what he had read in U. S. newspapers and that he didn't feel he was qualified to comment further on it.

Questioned about the riots in connection with the integration of the University of Mississippi, the archbishop said he was violently opposed to racial segregation in any part of the world.

"Racial segregation is very wrong and there are two places especially where partnership of the races is absolutely essential—religion and education."

"When I say that, I am really not saying anything that Christian leaders in America have not been saying all along," he commented.

The archbishop left immediately for the Virginia Theological Seminaries in the United States."

He said he plans to tour in South Carolina and Washington, D. C. before leaving for England.

The archbishop of Canterbury, the titular head of the Church of England, is the spiritual head of from England on the Cuban situa- the worldwide Anglican communion.

Cubans Urged To Mobilize

HAVANA (UPI)—The Cuban Confederation of Labor (CTC) Wednesday urged women, children and retired workers to report for duty in factories and farms to replace mobilized militiamen.

Premier Fidel Castro's speech of Tuesday night was the main topic of conversation Wednesday. Although Castro said the U.S. blockade will be defied, and any aggression will be pushed back into the sea, the general feeling was that the speech was not as aggressive as expected.

Mrs. Vilma Espin de Castro, wife of Armed Forces Minister Raul Castro and president of the Cuban Women's Federation, called on members to join hospital brigades or replace men who have been called up in the alert. "For every man mobilized, let a woman take his place," she said in a radio broadcast.

Governors Plan Meeting Saturday On Civil Defense

DUNKIRK, N.Y. (UPI)—Governor Rockefeller announced Wednesday he has called a meeting of the National Governors Committee on Civil Defense for Saturday morning in Washington.

The meeting will be held at the Pentagon. Rockefeller is chairman of the committee.

The New York governor, campaigning for re-election made the announcement at a rally here after a telephone conversation with Defense Department officials in Washington.

Rockefeller, in calling the committee meeting, said he wanted "to be sure that the states take every step necessary to be in maximum readiness."

"These are perilous times," he said.

Nationalist Guerrillas Are Active In China

HONG KONG (UPI)—Forty-four armed men, apparently Nationalist Chinese guerrillas, landed in a remote part of this British colony when their rafts were blown off course on a secret mission, police reported Wednesday.

The men, who wore Communist Chinese combat uniforms, landed Oct. 8 and 9 but details of the incident became known only Wednesday. A usually reliable Hong Kong newspaper, the Sing Tao Jih Pao, first made the disclosure and police confirmed it.

The men, armed with automatic rifles, carbines, and submachine-guns, told villagers they were on an undisclosed mission on the Chinese mainland. Observers here said they could have been delivering arms to guerrillas inside Communist China or have been planning to use them themselves in a raid.

One other raft was not blown off course and completed its mission, the newspaper said.

Another Hong Kong newspaper reported an apparently unrelated clash between guerrillas and Communist border troops just inside Communist territory. The Standard said villagers on the Hong Kong side of the border reported gunfire and bomb explosions early Tuesday.

It said the bodies of several Communist guards could be seen lying on a hillside, and that the nationalist flag was hoisted for a brief time.

Honor McKeldin

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The 32 Carat Club, a social and charitable organization whose membership is limited to 32nd degree Masons, will honor Theodore R. McKeldin, former governor of Maryland, at a dinner meeting Thursday.

McKeldin will receive the club's award for distinguished service. He is cited for outstanding public service and leadership in social action over the years.

Science Makes Important Breakthrough In Fight Against German Measles

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — An important breakthrough in the fight to control German measles, a disease which often severely damages unborn children, was reported Wednesday by two groups of scientists.

The Harvard School of Public Health here and the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research, Washington, D.C. said their research teams, working independently, have succeeded in isolating the virus known to cause German measles.

German measles, or Rubella, often cause deafness, blindness or heart disease in the child when the mother contracts the ailment during pregnancy.

Harvard said "this advance in virology now makes possible for the first time accurate diagnosis of German measles infection when it is in doubt and opens the way to development of a vaccine for control of the disease."

The German measles virus, different from that of ordinary measles for which a vaccine was previously developed, was one of the more important viruses not previously isolated and grown in a laboratory.

All Congressmen Called To Special Regional Meeting

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—All U.S. senators and congressmen have been summoned to regional meetings with federal officials Thursday and Friday for a briefing on the Cuban crisis, Rep. William E. Miller, R-N.Y., said Wednesday.

Miller, who also is the Republican national chairman, said the meetings would be held in New York City, Chicago, Atlanta, Fort Worth and San Francisco.

Miller, who prepared to leave for the New York City meeting, said he had halted temporarily his own campaign activities in behalf of Republican candidates.

"The affairs of our nation in these critical times certainly take precedent over political campaigning," Miller said in a statement.

U. S. Jet Airliners Surpass All Expectations In Only Four Years

EDITOR'S NOTE: America entered the jet age just four years ago next Friday when a Pan American World Airways Boeing 707 took off for Paris on Oct. 26, 1958. The following dispatch discusses the achievements, setbacks still-unsolved problems of the four years that have elapsed since that flight.)

By ROBERT J. SERLING
UPI Aviation Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The jets have surpassed all expectations — not only in their spectacular success but in the problems that success created.

This is the irony of the jet age's fourth anniversary. Almost every achievement has been tempered by accompanying headaches. The jets literally shrank the world by 40 per cent almost overnight. In the same breath, they presented the airlines with massive economic problems—not only in their enormous cost but their immense carrying capacity, which adds up to supply exceeding demand.

The cost of the jet age is best expressed by these figures:

—Most jets originally were priced around $5 million, including spare parts. A 1962 jetliner sells for more than $6 million.

—The major U. S. airlines have $2.5 billion invested in their jet fleets, which is 50 per cent more than they had tied up in their propeller-driven fleets at the start of the jet age.

In 1955, a single airliner seat represented $20,000 in property investment. In 1962, the investment cost per jet seat was $46,000.

—A piston-engine DC7 or Constellation requires 14 pieces of supporting ground equipment valued at $42,000. A jet needs 15 pieces costing nearly $150,000.

—Airport costs have mushroomed because of the jets. The New York Port Authority's pre-jet investment at Idlewild was $221 million.

—In 1955, slightly more than a half-cent of every airline revenue dollar went for interest payments on new piston equipment. The figure for the jet age is 3 cents out of every revenue dollar.

"The price tag on spare parts inventory for a major carrier was $19 million in 1957. It is now around $50 million for the average airline.

Balanced against these astronomical costs, however, is the productivity of the jetliner. A single jet can do the work of three or even four piston-engine planes. For example, a DC3 in 1938 did a day's work when it flew from New York to Little Rock, Ark. A four-engine piston plane's daily utilization involved a New York-Los Angeles flight. The jet's minimum workday covers a round trip between the East and West coasts.

This productivity has added up to one prime fact about jets: Basically, they have been money-makers although not to the extent the airlines hoped. If they were flown full or nearly full more often, they would be unbelievably profitable but their very size—which has led to excess capacity — keep the black ink from flowing very heavily. Even so, the jets are so basically efficient it is possible to make money on jets flown only half-full.

The U. S. jets' safety record can be summed up in one word: Excellent. In four years, there have been only three fatal accidents involving pure jets on scheduled flight, plus a sabotage case.

The three accidents took 194 lives, underlining the inescapable fact that when a giant jet crashes, the death toll can be extremely high. Yet despite these fatalities, the jet fatality rate since Oct. 26, 1958, has been only 0.41 deaths per 100 million passenger miles flown, compared with a rate of 0.58 for propeller-driven planes.

The airlines and their crews deserve praise for that safety record. The achievement was no accident. The airlines have made mistakes in the jet age, but the one department in which their performance can be rated as superb is training.

A jet pilot flies his monster "by the book" — and it is the uncompromising observance of the rule which make the jets inherently safer to fly.

If there is any pilot criticism of jets as far as safety is concerned, it is directed at airports. The Air Line Pilots Association has said most jet operational problems involve inadequate airports.

As of mid-1962, U.S. Airlines were operating about 340 pure jets. By 1965, the jet fleet in this country alone will total nearly 500. The nation's carriers still have about 1,200 piston - engine planes in service plus about 260 prop-jets. The most startling statistic of the jet age is that while only one out of six airliners is a pure jet, the jets are carrying seven out of every 10 passengers.

The jet influx naturally dumped hundreds of suddenly outmoded piston planes on the market, creating a new problem for the industry. For the first time in aviation history, a new airliner rendered its predecessors obsolete overnight.

According to Curtis Barkes, United vice president for finance, the domestic airlines since World War II have sold between 750 and 1,000 planes for more than $200 million. But there still are about 350 piston-engine airline transports available for sale today. And by 1970, when the airlines will have completed most of their jet purchases, the market will be glutted with used aircraft.

One of the byproducts of the jet age has been the steadily increasing trend toward coach travel, more on the jets than older planes. TWA, for example, started operating its jets originally with a cabin configuration one third first class and two-thirds coach. Its configuration today on a 140-passenger jet is only 20 first class seats and 120 coach seats.

Economically, some experts think the next stage of the jet age will be a shift to a single-class travel — at fares ranging somewhere between present first class and coach tariffs. There is general agreement that coach fares are priced too low, considering the jet investment and operational costs, while first class tariffs may be priced too high for the demand.

The first four years of the jet age also spawned an unwanted child—the noise problem.

The industry, along with the Federal Aviation Agency, has tried valiantly to keep the jets in the air while keeping protests

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: Your column has had numerous letters dealing with mother-in-law problems. This one is about a father-in-law.

My husband's father is refined, educated and devoted to his family. He also has a very high opinion of himself. He enjoys playing the role of counselor and priest. When a member of the family gets out of line or appears to be having a problem he writes them long letters of advice. Perhaps this is commendable but he doesn't realize that unsolicited advice can be resented.

It wouldn't be so bad if he just sent the advice but he sends carbons of his letters (as well as copies of the replies) to other members of the family.

One of our married sons is having marital difficulties. The carbons and copies are flying thick and fast. Our son and his wife are furious. They didn't ask for his advice and they never intended that their replies be circulated.

We hate to offend the old gentleman but we wish he would stop it. Any suggestions will be appreciated. —E. T.

Dear E. T.: And pray tell, how in the world has your father-in-law been able to get away with this? He must be very rich.

At some point someone ought to say, "Thanks a lot but please don't write me any more of your supreme court opinions." And this should be said on the telephone or in person. Any one who puts anything in writing to this self-annointed oracle is clearly out of his mind.

Dear Ann Landers: I dated an extremely attractive and lively young woman for several months. I happen to be the generous type. When I court a young woman, I enjoy giving her flowers, gifts and lots of little surprises. You may think I'm a chump but I derive great pleasure from giving.

Last week this young lady told me I am a bore and to please get lost. This is perfectly all right with me but I feel it is only fair that she return some of my more valuable gifts. To be specific I have asked for the hi-fi set, the pearl ring and necklace and the little black sweater with the white fox collar.

The young lady is only 19 years of age and she doesn't know it's a sign of good up-bringing to return gifts when the romance is over. I've tried to educate her along these lines but she has told me to go climb a weed. What can I do about this grasping, immature chisler?

—BADLY BURNED

Dear Burned: Since you give for the sheer pleasure of giving, you've already reaped your reward—what more do you want?

Gifts presented during courtship belong to the lady. She is under no obligation to return anything except an engagement ring. And then—only if she breaks the engagement.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 23 and engaged to a very fine man. His mother has invited me to spend Thanksgiving in her home. I'm looking forward to it with great pleasure.

I am unsure about how much housework I should do when I get there. I know she has a large home but I don't know if she has any servants. Should I offer to help clear the table if there is no maid?

Do I make my own bed? Should I offer to help cook?

Please give me some pointers, Ann. I am eager to do the right thing but I don't know what is proper. Thank you.

—AVID READER

Dear Reader: A houseguest always picks up after herself and attempts to make her own bed, servants or no.

If there are servants you would not, of course, help clear the table or offer to cook. If there are no servants, ask your future mother-in-law what you can do to help. The most common mistake is to insist on "helping" when the hostess would prefer that you not.

Does almost everyone have a good time but you? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Be Well-Liked," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Education Goal

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — To meet the Russian challenge, Americans must change their 19th Century thinking of "only educating the girl for today," declares an educator just back from the Soviet Union.

"The Russians use the brains of women more than we do in America," says Dr. Marguerite J. Fisher, associate professor of political science at Syracuse University.

One of the important selling points of Russian propaganda in backward countries is that under Communism women are given the same job and educational opportunities as men, she asserted in a talk.

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — To meet the Russian challenge, Americans must change their 19th Century thinking of "only educating the girl for today," declares an educator just back from the Soviet Union.

"The Russians use the brains of women more than we do in America," says Dr. Marguerite J. Fisher, associate professor of political science at Syracuse University.

One of the important selling points of Russian propaganda in backward countries is that under Communism women are given the same job and educational opportunities as men, she asserted in a talk.

Town In Dilemma: Save Mountain For Ski Slope Or Use It For Iron Mine?

MELLEN, Wis. (UPI) — The age old question of "how do you have your cake and eat it?" is confronting residents of this tiny community.

The cake is in the shape of 1,800-foot Mt. Whittlesey, two miles southeast of Mellen, and its frosting is a snow cover that could make it one of the finest ski hills in the midwest.

However the mountain is owned by the Oliver Mining Co. which believes it holds deposits of taconite iron ore and would yield a payroll each year of $13 million if the mining industry were developed.

The tourist industry would produce only about $1 million a year, and in an economically depressed area, mining would have the first consideration.

Mayor Howard Peters, along with the Mellen Area Development Corp., the Ashland County Civic Club and conservation groups, has urged "prudent" development of the mining program to preserve Mt. Whittlesey for the future. Others, including the city council, are opposed to any restrictions that would discourage mining in Northern Wisconsin.

"My thinking is that the hill should be preserved," said Peters. "There is a very good possibility that should mining start, we wouldn't be able to have the ski area while there is mining, but would have it preserved for the future so that it would be here to provide a diversified economy at all times."

Peters said some persons believe that by trying to preserve the hill, mining in the area would be jeopardized.

"If it comes to that choice, we can hardly afford to turn down mining because its economic impact would be too great," he said.

C.F. Beukemia, president of the Oliver Mining Co., Duluth, Minn., believes a single stage plant costing $2 to $3 million would have an annual payroll of between $12 to $15 million and spend roughly $5 million a year in goods and services.

Opponents of the "Save the Ski Hill" proposal contend the multi-million payroll is too much to pass up to keep Mt. Whittlesey.

Some say true happiness and maturity come with being more and more content with less and less.

Secrets Of Charm

How The Cake-Eaters Miss A Large Slice Of Life

The "cake-eaters" are a new breed. There's no telling when they began to evolve—probably around the time of the Industrial Revolution. But they really began to propagate their kind during the first stirrings of the Age of Modern Scientific Advancement.

What do they want in life? Nothing at all complicated. Just heaven on earth. What fruits they can't simply pluck from their surroundings, they'll take in the form of a pill or a potion.

Just don't mention any of the natural consequences of living to them. For such things don't exist in their philosophy.

There are a lot of women among the "cake-eaters" . . . which could provoke an unfortunate state of affairs since women's fundamental role is one that combines the functions of mother and teacher, both directly and indirectly by example. And cake-eating is a subject better left untaught. It's totally incompatible with reality.

Pain exists. Problems must be solved or left to be accepted unsolved. Adjustments must be made, prices must be paid. Privileges do not exist without corresponding responsibilities. Rewards presuppose honorable merit. These are just a few of the hard facts of life that, strangely enough, make life easier to enjoy once they are assimilated. But, of course, they are not as sweet to swallow as the cake of comfort, convenience and freedom from constraint.

Even a pursuit so aesthetic as a woman's quest for beauty and charm becomes a case in point. As soon as a woman begins to depend upon outward signs rather than eternal verities, her quest turns fruitless. Changing externals have little in common with the values she should be establishing in her life. Yet, how many women will fall into a depressed state of mind stemming from her dissatisfaction over not being able to have her cake . . . and eat it too.

I've often said that beauty and charm are more matters of attitude than anything else. It's her total attitude toward all phases of life—not just her regard for personal appearance — that ignites that "inner glow," capable of making a woman of 70 more attractive than she was at 17.

It's an attitude that can still support transient castles-in-the-air but only if it is founded firmly on the facts of reality. Dream castles are part of life, too . . . but never part and parcel.

So, don't dodge the principle of cause and effect, whether it has to do with your looks or with your outlook. There is no really easy way out of accepting what you must accept. Sometimes the cause is you when you are overtense and discontent. Sometimes the cause is simply nature following its course. Depending on which cause, you may be able to deal with the effects by easing up . . . or by easing in. The decision must be yours. Trying to erase or postpone the effects of life with pills and potions beyond reason is a sure way to foster mental and emotional disturbance, perhaps physical chaos as well.

The way to achieve the happy attitude you need to live life to the fullest is to concentrate—not on what you lack or have lost—but on what you have., Cherish it and it will grow, even as you grow older.

Sally Runion Is Honored

A bridal shower was given by Mrs. Frank Deremer and Miss Yvonne Deremer in compliment to Miss Sally Runion, fiancee of Pfc. James M. Deremer. It was at the home of the former, Corriganville.

The bridal motif was carried out in the all-white decorations of bells and replica of a bride. Games were played and prizes won by Mrs. Patricia Widdows, Mrs. Hazel Mankemer, Mrs. Marjory Runion and Mrs. Juanita Bucy. Approximately 16 guests attended.

Miss Runion will fly to Germany Saturday, where the wedding ceremony will be performed first by the mayor of Schweinfurt, then by the Army chaplain at Ledwick Barracks, where the bridegroom is stationed. Miss Runion is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Runion, 412 Forest Edge Drive, and a graduate of Memorial Hospital School of Nursing, 1962. Pfc. Deremer is the son of Mrs. Florence N. Deremer, Hyattsville, formerly of La-Vale, and the late Marshall J. Deremer.

Sally Runion Is Honored

A bridal shower was given by Mrs. Frank Deremer and Miss Yvonne Deremer in compliment to Miss Sally Runion, fiancee of Pfc. James M. Deremer. It was at the home of the former, Corriganville.

The bridal motif was carried out in the all-white decorations of bells and replica of a bride. Games were played and prizes won by Mrs. Patricia Widdows, Mrs. Hazel Mankemer, Mrs. Marjory Runion and Mrs. Juanita Bucy. Approximately 16 guests attended.

Miss Runion will fly to Germany Saturday, where the wedding ceremony will be performed first by the mayor of Schweinfurt, then by the Army chaplain at Ledwick Barracks, where the bridegroom is stationed. Miss Runion is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Runion, 412 Forest Edge Drive, and a graduate of Memorial Hospital School of Nursing, 1962. Pfc. Deremer is the son of Mrs. Florence N. Deremer, Hyattsville, formerly of La-Vale, and the late Marshall J. Deremer.

Four Local Women Named Mt. City District Officers

1963 Convention To Be Here

Initiation and election of officers were held at the Mountain City District convention of the Supreme Forest Woodman Circle, held at the Elks home, Keyser, Sunday. Pleasant Grove 81 was hostess. Mrs. Rosemary Ervin, Keyser, district president, conducted the meeting.

New district officers are Mrs. Ervin, past president; Mrs. Leona Wilt, Swanton, president; Mrs. Alberta Lindner, Cumberland, Mrs. Helen Ward, Keyser, first and second vice presidents; Mrs. Elsie Shaffer, Grantsville, secretary; Mrs. Willard Auvil, Cumberland, treasurer; Mrs. Evelyn Shroyer, Friendsville, auditor; Mrs. Frances Riggleman, Keyser, chaplain; Mrs. Orleans Haines, Cumberland, attendant; Mrs. Virginia Nave, Cumberland, assistant; Mrs. Freda Teets, Swanton, musician and Mrs. Amy Wilson, Swanton, captain.

Mrs. Catherine Dailey, state manager, was installing officer, assisted by Mrs. Loretta Keener, district manager, and Mrs. Edna German, past state president.

Ten members were initiated. They are Mrs. Gilda Dyche, Mrs. Henrietta Nash, Mrs. Catherine Bonner, Mrs. Virginia Nave, Mrs. Julia Garlitz, of Queen City Grove 11, Cumberland; Mrs. Elfreda Putnam, Grove 48, Swanton; Mrs. Irene Cannon, Mrs. Hilda Ours, Mrs. Ruth DeMoss and Mrs. Virginia Bowman, Pleasant Grove 81, Keyser.

Plans for the next district convention were discussed. It is to be held in Cumberland next September with Queen City Grove hostess. The district is composed of groves in Cumberland, Keyser, Grantsville, Friendsville, Swanton and Deer Park.

Cumberland and Swanton drill teams presented the ritualistic work. Mrs. Auvil of Cumberland was chairman of the nominating committee, with Mrs. Riggleman and Mrs. Deloris Friend, Swanton, members.

Preceding the meeting a buffet dinner was served. Autumn colors were carried out in the decorations of the hall and repeated in the favors, identification tags and autumn leaves. Each district officer was presented a gift of a milk glass plate, and a special gift was presented to Mrs. Dailey by the hostess grove in recognition of her first anniversary as state manager. Honored guests were Mrs. Dailey, Mrs. Keener, Mrs. German, Mrs. Mary June Harvey, past state president; Mrs. Auvil, state first vice president; and Mrs. Haines, state attendant.

Plan Study Course

Plans for a study course were discussed at the meeting of the Alice Moore Mission Circle of First Baptist Church. It will be November 29 at the church, conducted by Mrs. William Kauffman.

The luncheon meeting was at the home of Mrs. Charles Ridgeley, Massachusetts Avenue. Mrs. James Ruppert spoke of the needs of the people of the Far East. Mrs. Wilbur Pullin, Mrs. Cleveland Taylor and Mrs. A. Florian Wilson observed the calendar of prayer. Mrs. Earl Gauntz read of the WMU and gave the sunshine report.

Bridge Winners Are Announced

With a score of 143, Mrs. William Douglas and John Wilkinson, playing North-South in the Potomac Valley Bridge Club master point game topped the field, Tuesday evening. Mrs. Barnet Leibowitz and Mrs. Morton Peskin were second with 123; Mrs. Roy Drumm and Mrs. Louis Waingold had 113½; Mrs. Frederick Puderbaugh and Mrs. Ralph Nevy, 113.

East-West winners were Mrs. Howard Tolson, Mrs. James Hugglestone, 133; Mrs. Joseph Feldstein, George Chappell, 130½; Paul Arbogast, James Preaskorn, 128½; Mrs. David Miller, Mrs. Samuel Wood, 119½. The average score was 110.

Justice Dept. Wants More Facts On Rail Mergers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department said Wednesday "a reciprocity of silence" has prevented the Interstate Commerce Commission from getting all the facts it needs to decide the three big eastern railroad merger cases before it.

The commission was told it should reopen the closed record in two of these cases, get the facts, then hand down a simultaneous decision in all three.

The department's position was stated by Joseph V. Gallagher, an attorney in the antitrust division, at a hearing before the full commission.

"It is clear that there is a reciprocity of silence on the part of the eastern merger applicants which is wholly incompatible with the public interest," he declared.

Gallagher was among 22 lawyers arguing at the hearing on whether the ICC should rule simultaneously on the three cases.

They involve the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway's bid for stock control of the Baltimore & Ohio with a view toward future merger, and the merger proposals of the Pennsylvania and New York Central railroads and the Norfolk & Western-Nickel Plate-Wabash railroads.

The C&O-B&O and N&W Nickel Plate-Wabash records are closed after extensive hearings. The hearing examiner already has recommended approval of the C&O-B&O move. The Penn-Central case is still in hearing.

Others appearing before the commission included lawyers for the merger-bound railroads, smaller railroads seeking inclusion in one of the mergers, and state officials from New York, Massachusetts, and Pennsylvania.

Most of them favored a consolidated decision in the three cases, but spokesmen for the C&O and the B&O asked for early approval of their stock-control plan.

Buys Frears

NEW YORK (UPI) — National Biscuit Co. said Wednesday it has agreed to buy the British biscuit firm, Frears, Ltd., of Leicester. Terms were not disclosed. Frears will continue to operate independently of Nabisco's existing British subsidiary, Nabisco, Ltd., President Lee S. Bickmore said.

Titan Contract

NEW YORK (UPI) — American Machine & Foundry Co. said Wednesday its Santa Barbara, Calif., plant has obtained a $5 million contract for the reinstallation of the Titan intercontinental ballistic missile launcher at Beale Air Force Base, Marysville Calif.

Maryland News In Brief

By The Associated Press

BALTIMORE (AP) — Del. W. Dale Hess, D-Harford, proposed Wednesday that Maryland's magistrate courts be abolished in favor of something like Baltimore City's Municipal Court.

His announced aim was "to take all politics out of traffic violations," pointing out that magistrates are appointed for only two years and these appointments are subject to local political approval.

In a letter to Gov. Tawes, Hess asked that a commission be named to study his recommendation and report to the 1963 legislature. Baltimore City has 15 Municipal Court judges elected to 10-year terms.

WESTMINSTER, Md. (AP) — Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday for Charles Emery Shutter, former Baltimorean who owned an automobile equipment firm.

Shutter, 70, died of a heart attack Tuesday night in Carroll County General Hospital. He is survived by his widow, a son and a daughter.

Burial will be in Meadow Branch Cemetery near Westminster.

BALTIMORE (AP) — A forest fire smoldered along the Patapsco River in Howard and Baltimore counties Wednesday, occasionally flaring as it was fanned by the wind.

But firemen and state foresters keeping close watch of the fire said no buildings were threatened immediately. They said they had the fire contained in a 100-acre section near U.S. 40.

DOVER, Del. (AP) — Gov. Elbert Carvel of Delaware has appointed Secretary of State Elisha C. Dukes head of an office of state emergency planning. The newly created office will handle any state emergencies that might arise from the Cuban crisis.

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Peace Corps, conducting a recruiting drive in Maryland, already has more than 60 Maryland residents on duty, including 51 serving overseas.

Harry Kranz, special assistant to the associate director for Peace Corps volunteers, visited Hood College in Frederick Wednesday to recruit still more members.

"Because of its diversity of industry, agriculture, geography and the ethnic background of its people," said Kranz, "Maryland should furnish an increasing number of volunteers for the Peace Corps."

BALTIMORE (AP) — Recruiters for the armed services in Baltimore are making no special effort to get men to enlist because of the Cuban crisis.

Maryland's quota for the Marines is filled until Jan. 1. The Army, Air Force, Navy and Coast Guard will accept enlistments, but only if rigid peacetime requirements are met.

BALTIMORE (AP) — The State Health Department reported Wednesday 10 deaths in Maryland last week from influenza and pneumonia.

Three of the deaths were in Baltimore City and one each in the counties of Baltimore, Anne Arundel, Howard, Washington, Montgomery, Prince Georges and Wicomico.

It bfought the state's total deaths from influenza and pneumonia combined to 619 for the year, compared with 570 a year ago.

Young Marine Found Bound, Strangled

BEL AIR, Md. (AP) — The Harford County sheriffs' office has identified the body of a young man found in a woods as that of John Hinton Brown Jr., 23, of Mt. Vernon, N.Y.

The body was found Tuesday with a piece of wire around the neck and the hands taped together. Police said the wire was apparently used to strangle Brown.

Identification of the body was made by matching laundry marks with serial numbers of servicemen. Sheriff Raymond Fulker said investigation showed Brown enlisted in the Marine Corps in 1958, but Fulker was unsure whether he was still a Marine.

Police said Brown was wearing a white sport shirt and grey trousers. His watch was still running when his body was found near Aberdeen by Edward L. Haynes, a resident of a nearby community.

Ground Broken For New Plant

CAMBRIDGE (AP) — Ground was broken Wednesday for a new Airpax Electronics Corp. plant. It will replace one that was completely destroyed in a $1 million fire last July 9.

Attending the ceremonies was Capt. Charles E. Leete, field coordinator for the Area Redevelopment Administration, which is contributing some $600,000 to the cost of the new plant.

The cost, including construction of buildings and installation of equipment, is expected to exceed $1 million. Airpax has plants in Florida and California and manufactures electronic systems for industry and the military services.

Charles E. Brohawn Construction Co. of Cambridge is the building contractor.

Gets Research Firm

SYOSSETT, N.Y. (UPI) — Fairchild Camera & Instrument Corp. has agreed to buy Winston Research Corp. of West Los Angeles in a stock transfer. Winston is in research in wide-band radio and television and advanced instrumentation.

Subway Strike

PARIS (UPI)—A strike by subway engineers forced hundreds of Parisians to talk to work Wednesday or join bus queues and car pools.

Plan Committee On Human Relations

LA PLATA, Md. (AP) — A request for a committee to help solve racial problems has been favorably received by Charles County commissioners.

The county lawmakers set up machinery to nominate members of a "human relations" committee, believed to be the first of its kind in Southern Maryland.

A spokesman for the commissioners said that appointments to the committee, and an outline of its duties probably would be announced within a month.

The commissioners' move Tuesday came two days after a nonpartisan, bi-racial committee was formed to ease the way for Negroes to be elected to public office in Charles County.

Negroes comprise about 48 per cent of the county's population, but never have run for public office.

The primary purpose of the committee, Hinson said, is to pave the way for the acceptance by the white community of a Negro candidate for local office in 1966.

The C&O-B&O and N&W Nickel Plate-Wabash records are closed after extensive hearings. The hearing examiner already has recommended approval of the C&O-B&O move. The Penn-Central case is still in hearing.

Others appearing before the commission included lawyers for the merger-bound railroads, smaller railroads seeking inclusion in one of the mergers, and state officials from New York, Massachusetts, and Pennsylvania.

Most of them favored a consolidated decision in the three cases, but spokesmen for the C&O and the B&O asked for early approval of their stock-control plan.

Publications Record Set By Adventists

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (UPI)—A record of $24.9 million worth of books and religious literature was distributed by Adventists last year, according to Bruce M. Wickwire, Takoma Park, Md., secretary of the publishing department of the Columbia Union Conference of Seventh-Day Adventists.

In a speech at the opening session of the annual publishing convention of the Columbia Union Conference here, Wickwire added that 42 publishing houses now are printing in 228 languages and dialects with special editions for the blind.

The three-day meeting at nearby Mont Chateau State Park attracted delegates from the District of Columbia, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia and West Virginia.

Borden Bolsters Philippine Firm

NEW YORK (UPI)—Borden Co. has embarked on a refinancing and construction program for its Philippine subsidiary. The company said it will build a formaldehyde plant and equipment to make powdered formaldehyde resins and polyvinyl acetate and acrylic resins. Name of the subsidiary is being changed from Casco Philippine Chemical Co. to Borden Chemical Co. (Philippines).

Finds Fortune In Sea

Burton H. Mason, 35, of Newport, R. I., holds samples of wool he salvaged from the freighter Oregon while skindiving in 160 feet of water off Nantucket Island. Displaying the wool in Boston, Mason told how he and two other divers discovered the 6,400-ton ship lying in a sea valley with her cargo, valued at $4,000,000, untouched.

Even when it rains in the dry northeastern section of Brazil, little moisture remains. Eighty drops out of 100 evaporate and 16 run off in rivers. Only four soak into the soil. And in some years it does not rain at all.

In three decades, about 30 million acres of comparatively poor crop land in the United States has been shifted to forest and pasture, while 10 million acres of new land has been brought under cultivation.

Intelligence Reports Indicate Extent Of Red Buildup In Cuba

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. officials said yesterday the new military buildup in Cuba is the first time the Russians have set up strategic nuclear missiles outside Soviet territory.

They spelled out detailed intelligence evidence, including reconnaissance plane photos, indicating that Cuba almost overnight is turning into a Soviet offensive military base.

While U.S. intelligence does not have direct knowledge that atomic warheads are in the Soviet-Cuban arsenal, authorities said it is inconceivable that the missiles sent from Moscow would not be nuclear-tipped. They said reconnaissance cannot be expected to discover what is inside a warheard, but the missiles are definitely nuclear type.

The rockets in place or being set up are reported to be of two types, both able to deliver atomic punches in the low megaton range. Thus their destruction power would range well upwards of 50 times the explosive force of the original Hiroshima bomb, rated at 20,000 tons of TNT equivalent. A megaton is a million tons.

One of the two types of Soviet missiles is of medium range with a strike distance of about 1,000 miles. The other is intermediate range, able to shoot 2,200 miles—far into Canada if aimed there.

The medium-range rockets, according to the U.S. intelligence data, have in some cases already been set up, while sites for the intermediate-range rockets are still under construction. No missile totals were given.

Photographs shown newsmen demonstrated the rapidity with which the missiles were being installed. In his speech Monday night, President Kennedy noted it was only a week ago that he first got solid information of the missile buildup.

Two pictures said to have been taken only 24 hours apart gave dramatic evidence.

The first photo of a Cuban site showed a few tents, 45 to 50 vehicles and no missiles. The second showed 27 tents capable of housing 500 men, 100 vehicles, four erectors to elevate missiles—and seven medium-range missiles.

U.S. officials figured there are now about 100 MIG jet fighters in Cuba, of which 39 are advanced MIG 21s. Also now operational in Cuba, they said, are 12 Russian-built Komar class patrol boats which can fire missiles 12 to 15 miles.

The number of Soviet military personnel now in Cuba was listed as "several thousand." This figure did not exceed previous U.S. estimates, but officials now say this includes Russian "troops." Previously they had used the term "technicians."

United States Combat Troops In Germany Stage War Games

BERLIN (UPI) — Some 5,000 U.S. combat troops with tanks staged war games here Tuesday as isolated Berlin braced to meet any counter-measures against the Cuban blockade. In East Berlin, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko conferred with East German leaders.

British troops in Berlin were ordered under 11 p.m. curfew starting Tuesday night.

The U.S. war games had been planned last week for early Tuesday but they were delayed for a few hours after the Pentagon initiated a stepped-up world wide alert for American forces.

In Wiesbaden, Germany, an official spokesman said the U.S. Air Force in Europe had increased its readiness as part of the world-wide alert. He emphasized the Air Force stands ready to break up any Soviet Berlin blockade by force if so ordered or to establish a new Berlin airlift.

In the West German capital of Bonn, Dean Acheson, President Kennedy's special adviser on NATO affairs, called on Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and Defense Minister Franz Josef Strauss to discuss the Soviet missile buildup in Cuba.

Gromyko flew into Berlin early Tuesday on his way back to Moscow from New York and conferred quickly with East German Communist chief of state Walter Ulbricht and Foreign Minister Lothar Bolz.

The East German news service ADN said Gromyko and Ulbricht, in a two-hour talk, discussed conclusion of a peace treaty, "normalization of the situation in West Berlin" and other questions of mutual interest.

By "normalization" of West Berlin, the Communists mean their plan to end Western allied rights in the city through the conclusion of a peace treaty between the Soviet Union and East Germany.

There were fears that the U.S. Cuban action might result in Soviet counter-pressure on allied access routes to this city 110 miles behind the Iron Curtain.

Allied officials said traffic on Berlin access routes was completely normal. A highway slowdown imposed on truck traffic by Communist guards on the Berlin end of the superhighway to West Germany Monday night was lifted within a few hours. West Berlin police said they saw no significance in it and no connection with the U.S. action on Cuba.

Too Much For Booth

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP)—"I knew I never should have tried it," a feminine voice wailed over the phone to the police sergeant.

"Do what, lady?" he asked.

"Enter this phone booth. I'm too big and it's too little and . . . oh, it's just awful, I'm stuck!"

Finally, the lady gave the location of her telephone booth and policemen sped to her rescue. When they got there, all they could find was a slightly tilted phone booth, its glass smashed, and a note.

"I made it myself," it said. "But thanks anyway."

SLAYER CAUGHT—John Ristau, 35, who has spent nine of the last twelve years in different jails, is booked in Queens, N. Y., in connection with the slaying of a 17-year-old supermarket clerk. Arrested after a parole officer examined a drawing made from descriptions by witnesses, Ristau told police the youth grabbed him during a robbery of the supermarket and that "all I could think of was this is my life."

Soviet Missile Locations In Cuba Known To U.S.

By FRANCIS L. McCARTHY
UPI Latin American Editor

Soviet intermediate and long-range missile sites in Cuba are believed to be located in Matanzas and Las Villas provinces, according to Havana based Western diplomats.

These and other informants estimated a score or more of rocket and missile sites built or under construction. The majority, however were described as short-range installations.

The sources said missiles up to 30 feet in length and 40 to 120 inches in diamater have been unloaded at Havana for installation in the Mantanzas north coast port of Camarioca and at Casilda and Tunas de Zaza in southern Las Villas Province.

Near United States

Camarioca is one of the nearest Cuban ports to the United States. The Tunas de Zaza installation is the nearest Cuban point to the Panama Canal.

The sources identified the nerve center of Soviet armed might in Cuba as apparently Las Villas Province. It is almost exactly in the center of the 760-mile long island. The province not only is the most heavily fortified region in Cuba but also has the largest single concentration of Cuban troops.

However, general headquarters for the Russian buildup is described by the sources as the top three floors of a suburban Vedado skyscraper manned entirely by armed foreigners.

Takes Over Base

Main Cuban north coast defenses stretch from Havana west to Mariel, in Pinar del Rio Province, and east to Camarioca, in Matanzas Province according to informants.

The Russians are reported to have taken over completely the erstwhile Cuban naval base of Mariel in Pinar del Rio Province, some 10 miles west of Havana. The site is home port for speedy Soviet rocket-firing patrol boats shipped to Cuba recently.

There also have been reports of submarine pen construction in the area.

Western diplomats estimate at least 25,000 "foreigners" have entered Cuba since the middle of 1959 when Communist technicians from Latin America first appeared.

The first arrivals, principally Chileans and Uruguayans, were administrative personnel assigned by the Kremlin to keep the Cuban economy going during the process of shifting its base from free enterprise to so-called socialism.

Becomes Massive Buildup

The influx continued at a steady pace throughout 1960 and the first quarter of 1961 when it halted with the abortive Bay of Pigs invasion.

When the influx resumed, Russians and Communist Chinese comprised the majority of arrivals.

However, it was not until February, 1962, that the influx reached the proportions of a massive buildup.

In the June-July-August quarter alone, diplomats estimated, some 83 ships landed an estimated 8,550 men, women and children in various Cuban ports from Iron Curtain countries.

United States Combat Troops In Germany Stage War Games

BERLIN (UPI) — Some 5,000 U.S. combat troops with tanks staged war games here Tuesday as isolated Berlin braced to meet any counter-measures against the Cuban blockade. In East Berlin, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko conferred with East German leaders.

British troops in Berlin were ordered under 11 p.m. curfew starting Tuesday night.

The U.S. war games had been planned last week for early Tuesday but they were delayed for a few hours after the Pentagon initiated a stepped-up world wide alert for American forces.

In Wiesbaden, Germany, an official spokesman said the U.S. Air Force in Europe had increased its readiness as part of the world-wide alert. He emphasized the Air Force stands ready to break up any Soviet Berlin blockade by force if so ordered or to establish a new Berlin airlift.

In the West German capital of Bonn, Dean Acheson, President Kennedy's special adviser on NATO affairs, called on Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and Defense Minister Franz Josef Strauss to discuss the Soviet missile buildup in Cuba.

Gromyko flew into Berlin early Tuesday on his way back to Moscow from New York and conferred quickly with East German Communist chief of state Walter Ulbricht and Foreign Minister Lothar Bolz.

The East German news service ADN said Gromyko and Ulbricht, in a two-hour talk, discussed conclusion of a peace treaty, "normalization of the situation in West Berlin" and other questions of mutual interest.

By "normalization" of West Berlin, the Communists mean their plan to end Western allied rights in the city through the conclusion of a peace treaty between the Soviet Union and East Germany.

There were fears that the U.S. Cuban action might result in Soviet counter-pressure on allied access routes to this city 110 miles behind the Iron Curtain.

Allied officials said traffic on Berlin access routes was completely normal. A highway slowdown imposed on truck traffic by Communist guards on the Berlin end of the superhighway to West Germany Monday night was lifted within a few hours. West Berlin police said they saw no significance in it and no connection with the U.S. action on Cuba.

Kennedy Called Reds' Hand In U. S. Stand On Retaliation

For many years now the Soviet Union has been taking advantage of a universal fear of nuclear war to advance, by measures just short of world war, the objectives of expansionist Communism.

Once before she made a mistake—in Korea. The United States moved swiftly and, to the Kremlin, unexpectedly. The Soviet-sponsored and Chinese - executed aggression was stopped cold.

For three years now the Soviet Union has been sponsoring, through Cuba, a concerted attempt to penetrate the Western Hemisphere.

Again the United States has called her hand, cold. And she's crying.

The Soviet statement makes a repetitive effort, as the Communists always do and as they did with regard to North Korea, to make President Kennedy's policy appear primarily as a threat to Cuba and to establish Cuba, not the Soviet Union, as the prime mover in fear of the United States.

But what Kennedy said was that, if a Soviet missile was fired from Cuba against a country of the Americas, the retaliation would be against the Soviet Union as the prime mover. This was in keeping with the great sympathy for the Cuban people felt in the United States, a sympathy which fed the fire of the Spanish-American War.

The U.S.S.R. warns of the risk of thermonuclear war involved in the revived American policy of massive retaliation and of naval blockade.

This is a risk which President Kennedy recognized. It is a calculated risk upon which the nation's leaders already had passed judgment. And it is the willingness to take this risk which is the greatest warning and the greatest meaning of the entire position.

The Soviet statement refers to the right of all countries to lead their own lives. Apparently the Kremlin expects everyone to forget what happened in Hungary just six years ago. Then, after recognizing a government which had revolted against Communist rule, Soviet Premier Khrushchev took advantage of Allied trouble over Suez to send his troops and tanks rolling back into the country, over the bodies of the brainwashed revolutionaries who refused to remain brainwashed.

The United States policy always has been to keep the way open at all times for self-determination of peoples, without permitting one imposed tyranny or one misguidedly popular action to close the door against freedom forever.

U.S. Army Chief Urges Physical Fitness Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Earl G. Wheeler, the Army chief of staff, called Tuesday for a "widespread, realistic physical training program" to keep Americans fit.

He said it should be coupled with "intensive research in the fields of diet, sports medicine and coaching techniques."

Wheeler told the 17th general assembly of the Counseil International du Sport Militaire that international military sports programs should be expanded and nations should exchange physical training ideas.

"It is disturbing to me to learn that one out of every three young men of military age is found to be unfit," Wheeler said. "Approximately half of those rejected are turned down for physical reasons only."

Heraldry Comes Back To Life In Rocket Age

By JOHN POWER

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Back around 1200 A.D. a knight in shining armor decided to hang up his shield on a castle wall to show the boys who dropped in for a jug of mead that he really had been around.

Today the 20th Century Sir Galahad to doing the same thing to show the boys over a martini that, although he may be in the nine-to-five class, his ancestors certainly had seen life.

For interest in heraldry, after a lapse of nearly a century in the United States, is rapidly gaining ground in this age of rockets and missiles.

One hobby manufacturer has come up with a "Do-It-Yourself" heraldry kit which retails for about $30.

Now it's not all that simple.

Takes First Step

So with $3 burning a hole in his pocket, the modern genealogist must first trace his ancestry.

This can be accomplished three ways:

—Spend long and anxious hours pouring over musty books at the local library.

—Write lengthy letters to the College of Arms in London or to English firms which specialize in the manufacture and export of family crests.

—Purchase the "Do-It-Yourself" kit and leave the rest up to your imagination.

The third way is not exactly ericket.

This is the problem facing a Mineola, N.Y., firm that has pioneered the reawakening of heraldry in this country — whether to keep the hobby objective and according to the standards set up by the College of Arms or allow the purchaser to leave his imagination run riot and figure what his own coat of arms should look like.

From the other side of the Atlantic comes the same idea.

York Insignia Ltd., of Albany Hall, York, England, recently advised in a letter. "The display of heraldic wall shields, correctly emblazoned for interior decoration, is officially encouraged. For hundreds of years the science of heraldry has been manifested as a living art all over the world, and it is not necessary to prove one's right to any particular coat of arms before displaying it at home."

Comply With Rules

The letter warns, however: "On the other hand, one cannot actually claim proprietorship to any English Amorial Bearings, even if they were granted to one's forbear, until direct male descendency from the original grantee has been established with the satisfaction of the College of Arms in London and duly registered."

Now, that's the rub.

Take for instance the name of Flynn which was formerly O'Flynn, O'Floinn or O'Flann—the "O"k indicating "Of the sept (family) of." There were two distinctly different families of O'Flynn.

According to old Irish genealogies, one descended from Heremon, son of Milesius. They hung their helmets in Antrim, Down and Roscommon and according to Heraldry For The American Genealogist, "Several branches of this family are known to have borne arms."

The other sept descended from Ith, the uncle of Milesius, and from the ancient kings of Connaught and "are entitled to the arms."

This poses a problem for Mr. Flynn of Hometown USA who has to decide which side of the family fence he is on as both ancestors had different emblems on their shields.

Bird Lady

MIAMI (AP)—Running a bird hospital keeps Mrs. Helen Quick busy. Not only do pet owners bring and send birds for treatment, but so do people who find ailing wild birds. She has a siege of it, she says, when spraying programs are carried out against insects. If bird victims aren't treated promptly then, they die in 25 to 36 hours.

Her tip to bird owners: keep the cages clean. Her tip on teaching a bird to talk; just talk to it, instead of repeating one word or phrase continually.

Tahitians who once rubbed noses as a sign of affection have adopted the European custom of kissing on both cheeks when meeting or parting.

By JOHN POWER

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Back around 1200 A.D. a knight inshining armor decided to hang up his shield on a castle wall to show the boys who dropped in for a jug of mead that he really had been around.

Today the 20th Century Sir Galahad to doing the same thing to show the boys over a martini that, although he may be in the nine-to-five class, his ancestors certainly had seen life.

For interest in heraldry, after a lapse of nearly a century in the United States, is rapidly gaining ground in this age of rockets and missiles.

One hobby manufacturer has come up with a "Do-It-Yourself" heraldry kit which retails for about $30.

Now it's not all that simple.

Takes First Step

So with $3 burning a hole in his pocket, the modern genealogist must first trace his ancestry.

This can be accomplished three ways:

—Spend long and anxious hours pouring over musty books at the local library.

—Write lengthy letters to the College of Arms in London or to English firms which specialize in the manufacture and export of family crests.

—Purchase the "Do-It-Yourself" kit and leave the rest up to your imagination.

The third way is not exactly cricket.

This is the problem facing a Mineola, N.Y., firm that has pioneered the reawakening of heraldry in this country — whether to keep the hobby objective and according to the standards set up by the College of Arms or allow the purchaser to leave his imagination run riot and figure what his own coat of arms should look like.

From the other side of the Atlantic comes the same idea.

York Insignia Ltd., of Albany Hall, York, England, recently advised in a letter. "The display of heraldic wall shields, correctly emblazoned for interior decoration, is officially encouraged. For hundreds of years the science of heraldry has been manifested as a living art all over the world, and it is not necessary to prove one's right to any particular coat of arms before displaying it at home."

Comply With Rules

The letter warns, however: "On the other hand, one cannot actually claim proprietorship to any English Amorial Bearings, even if they were granted to one's forbear, until direct male descendency from the original grantee has been established with the satisfaction of the College of Arms in London and duly registered."

Now, that's the rub.

Take for instance the name of Flynn which was formerly O'Flynn, O'Floinn or O'Flann—the "O"k indicating "Of the sept (family) of." There were two distinctly different families of O'Flynn.

According to old Irish genealogies, one descended from Heremon, son of Milesius. They hung their helmets in Antrim, Down and Roscommon and according to Heraldry For The American Genealogist, "Several branches of this family are known to have borne arms."

The other sept descended from Ith, the uncle of Milesius, and from the ancient kings of Connaught and "are entitled to the arms."

This poses a problem for Mr. Flynn of Hometown USA who has to decide which side of the family fence he is on as both ancestors had different emblems on their shields.

Kennedy's Prestige At Stake In W.Va. Election

By NATHAN BLOCK
Central Press Association Correspondent

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy's prestige is at stake in a heated congressional election in West Virginia, where the chief executive won a crucial contest during his 1960 campaign for the Democratic nomination.

The election is in the First District, which embraces Wheeling and the surrounding 12-county area, between liberal Democratic Rep. Cleveland M. Bailey, 65, a staunch administration supporter, and Republican Arch A. Moore, a conservative. The two were thrown together into one district through reapportionment.

Aware of the strong national implications that will be drawn from the results, the Democrats are sending in some of their biggest political guns to aid Bailey.

Among those who have already spoken in the new district or were slated to appear were a Cabinet member, Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges, House Speaker John McCormack, House Majority Leader Carl Albert, Vice President Lyndon Johnson, former President Harry Truman, Rep. James Roosevelt, D-Calif., and Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont.

When President Kennedy also appeared at a political rally in Wheeling and gave him his blessing, Bailey remarked, referring to himself, "the old man is not altogether alone in this fight."

If Bailey, who has served 16 years in Congress, loses, the result will be regarded as a sharp rebuff to the President, for Mr. Kennedy's domestic program is at stake in this off-year election race in the West Virginia Northern Panhandle.

It was little more than two years ago that the President, campaigning in the West Virginia presidential primary, promised, if elected President, to help eradicate West Virginia's widespread unemployment, caused by a depressed bituminous coal industry.

The election was crucial for him because it would show whether a Catholic could win in a strongly Protestant state where labor was well organized against an opponent, Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, who was staunchly pro-labor.

Mr. Kennedy won the primary and went on to secure the Democratic nomination. But now, almost two years after he campaigned on a pledge to help wipe out unemployment, the state still has the highest jobless rate in the country.

According to the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, unemployment in mid-June 1960 was 79,200. By mid-June 1962 it had dropped only to 63,500, which is 10.4 per cent of the state's total civilian work force.

Accentuating the issue still more in the Bailey-Moore race, the average unemployment in 1960 in the Wheeling labor market area, which embraces the area within commuting distance of the city, was 12,900.

In mid-July 1962 it was still 8,350, about 12 per cent of the area's total civilian work force and the highest in the state of the three major marketing areas in which the bureau has gathered statistics.

The lines are clearly drawn between Bailey, who has gone down the line for such administration measures as medicare and school aid, and Moore, now serving his third term.

Organized labor is strongly backing Bailey. Among Moore's supporters is the American Medical Association, which is seeking to defeat the medicare program in Congress.

If Moore wins, Republicans will be quick to claim that the President's popularity is on the decline.

MOUNTAINSIDE, N. J. (AP)—If Cindy weren't such a friendly dog, she could look down her nose at all the other neighborhood pooches with good reason.

Cindy is a canine rarity — a bilingual dog. She responds to commands in two languages. One in English, the other Greek.

Cindy's owners, the Theodore Hiotis family, mostly throw phrases at her like "ela etho" (come here) or "kalo koritsi" (good girl). When Cindy hears the latter, she sits up on her hind legs.

Her foreign language instructor was Mrs. Hiotis' mother, a native of Greece, who lives with the family but speaks little English. Whenever she wanted to let Cindy in or out of the house or feed her, she spoke to her in Greek.

Cindy, a fat 65 pounds, knows which side her dog biscuits are buttered on. She quickly learned the Greek words that meant chow time, and the rest of the language came easily.

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Boxer Annuay Pharbkaew, 23, mute for 19 years, recovered the power of speech after being knocked out in the ring, Bangkok newspapers reported Sunday. Pharbkaew became mute at the age of 4 in a fall downstairs, the papers said.

The bidding:

4 ♠	Pass	6 ♦	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Deuce of ♦

Declarer took advantage of the fortunate placement of a key card to convert an even money proposition into a sure thing in today's hand.

When South heard his partner open the bidding with one no trump, his thoughts turned immediately toward slam. Valued at diamonds his hand is worth 18 points and North is known to have a minimum of 16 points in high cards. In order to allow for the slight possibility that the partnership lacked two aces, South invoked the Gerber convention by responding directly with four clubs. When North revealed possession of two aces by bidding four spades, South contracted for a small slam in diamonds.

West, unwilling to make an active commitment in the face of his opponent's aggressive bidding, opened the deuce of diamonds. Declarer drew the trump in three rounds and, on the surface of it, there appeared little more to the hand then trying the spade finesse since one trick has to be conceded to the ace of hearts.

Declarer saw, however, that there was a way to assure the success of his slam regardless of the location of the spade king, provided that West held the ace of hearts. After having won the third round of trumps in his own hand, therefore, he led the six of hearts. West followed with the ten—for to put up the ace would establish two tricks in the suit for South—and North's queen won the trick.

South now proceeded to run the clubs overtaking the third round in his hand. On the ten of clubs a small heart was discarded from dummy. This reduced the combined holdings in the suit to a single heart in each hand. Declarer exited with the king of hearts, thrusting West into the lead with a choice of returns, all equally fatal to the defense.

If West came back with a spade, it would present declarer with a free finesse. If West exited with either a club or a heart, however, it would enable South to trump in the dummy and discard the ten of spades from his hand.

Berlin Wall Powerful Magnet For Western Travelers

Art On Picture Wire
By RALPH VILLERS

BERLIN (UPI)—The East German Communists in building their infamous Wall through the heart of Berlin, ironically, have given this city one of the most powerful magnets ever created to lure the traveler with more than just a fun trip on his mind.

The Wall, for all the sorrow and tragedy it represents, nonetheless is probably Berlin's greatest sight. Visitors, men and women alike, have been moved to tears by just seeing the snaking line of blocks and mortar and the human dramas that take place along it daily.

And, The Wall is one of those rare sights in the world that needs no guide either to find or explain it. It is inescapable in its 25-mile length — at some places a true wall of cement blocks or bricks seven or eight feet tall, at other places barbed wire entanglements two and three rows deep strung on concrete posts.

Right in the center of Berlin, a few minutes taxi ride from the hotel district, stands the famous Brandenburg Gate, where visitors often catch their first glimpse of The Wall, and a submachine-gun-armed Red border policeman, close-up.

It is no longer possible to approach the gate along the broad 17th of June St. leading to it. The approach is made along the paths of the Tiergarten and, suddenly, the arc of The Wall in front of the gate emerges from the trees, hitting the first-time visitor both visually and emotionally.

Here, truly, a cliche is appropriate: it must be seen to be believed.

Sobering Sight

At a spot along the Tiergarten path leading to the gate can be seen one of the contradictions that make up divided Berlin—the Soviet War Memorial, a Communist enclave in West Berlin, wrapped on its fringes by barbed wire. Outside the wire, British soldiers with bayonets on their rifles guard the Soviet soldiers on guard at the memorial.

But The Wall can and should be seen from other vantage points. Among them are "Checkpoint Charlie," the U.S. Army control point for non-Germans to cross into East Berlin, and Bernauerstrasse in the French Sector, scene of many escapes and incidents where buildings up to six stories tall have been incorporated into The Wall simply by bricking up every door and window.

The Wall can be seen close-up for much of its length very easily by renting a car or hiring a taxi by the hour. Rental cars are inexpensive in Berlin, costing as little as $8 to $10 a day including mileage. No fears of driving accidentally into East Berlin—if there were an opening like that, refugees still would be streaming through it.

By car the visitor can get where the sightseeing buses never go, such as where The Wall runs through farm fields as a double row of barbed wire in the northern part of the city, or the city's border with East Germany.

Drama

Possibly most moving of all is Bernauerstrasse on a Sunday morning. There you will see West Berliners with stepladders, hoping to catch sight of a relative over the wall of a cemetery that East Berliners are allowed to enter with a permit. There, too, are the memorials to refugees who attempted to jump from the buildings to freedom, but were killed.

American visitors can go through The Wall, by tour bus or privately, at "Checkpoint Charlie," or even over it, on the S-Bahn (elevated railway).

The bus tour is good, covers the principal points of interest and is not too laden with propaganda despite the fact the Communists insist an Eust Berlin guide conduct the tour. But is is not fully satisfying to the traveler who wants to get out on the street and get a bit of the feel of a Communist city. Only one stop is permitted, at the Soviet War Memorial in the East Zone, away from all houses and shops.

The solution is to enter East Berlin via the S-Bahn that goes to the Friedrichstrasse station in the heart of the Communist sector. Passports are needed either for the tour bus or private crossings.

If going privately, definitely do not travel alone, go in the company of at least one other person.

Some people make it through the Friedrichstrasse passport control post — where your passport disappears temporarily through a mail slot — like opening in a windowless wall—in as little as five minutes. Others have had their passports held up for as long as an hour for no apparent reason, and when no one else is even waiting in line.

Red Tape

The Communist passport check, both entering and leaving East Berlin, is an education in itself, a taste of living in a police society where nothing you say or do can alter or even speed the bureaucratic red tape. After an hour of waiting for your passport to come back through the mail slot opening — if it takes that long — you've had enough of the ways of communism.

Once out of passport control, you are free to wander, look in the store windows, even take pictures so long as soldiers, policemen or para-military installations (like the S-Bahn) aren't in them. There are a few "show" stores with well-made consumer goods in them, but if you get a little out of the central area, you'll see queues in the meat markets. You'll also see considerable unrepaired or virtually untouched bomb damage left over from the war.

One of the most striking aspects is the number of uniforms —Border Police, Transport Police, People's Police, Army — in relation to the population.

You won't see The Wall close-up in East Berlin, you're not allowed that close.

Japanese Americans, Ill-Treated 20 Years Ago, Now Taking Their Place In Mainstream Of U.S. Life

By LEIF ERICKSON

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Just 20 years ago 112,000 confused and bitter Japanese-Americans were making their exodus from Pacific Coast homes into bleak barracks behind the barbed wire of war relocation centers.

From that time of despair and hurt, the Japanese-Americans have scored a remarkably swift and sweeping triumph over racial prejudice and achieved notable economic success as well.

"An achievement perhaps rarely equaled in the history of migration," declared Leonard Broom, former UCLA scholar and now sociology department chairman at the University of Texas.

At the time, Japan's forces were rolling on to early victories at Singapore and Manila.

"The Japanese race is an enemy race," the general said. "While many second and third-generation Japanese born on United States soil possessed of American citizenship, have become 'Americanized,' the racial strain remains and undiluted.

"It therefore follows that along the vital Pacific Coast over 112,000 potential enemies, of Japanese extraction, are at large today."

In March 1942, as Bataan was falling in the Philippines, Congress speedily passed and President Roosevelt signed legislation giving the Army authority to act.

The American-born Nisei were removed along with the alien Issei immigrants.

Yet the enforced exodus paradoxically turned into greater acceptance into American life than ever before.

The opportunities that have opened to the Japanese range from the race track to research laboratories, from architecture to law.

George Taniguchi, who finished high school in a relocation camp, was the first Japanese jockey to ride on American tracks. He now grosses $75,000 a year as a top racing rider.

Kiyo Tomiyasu is technical director of General Electric's research in lasers, a far-reaching scientific breakthrough.

Minoru Yamasaki, who played football and a hot jazz piano as a kid in Seattle, triumphantly returned to his home town as the architect designer of the U.S. science pavilion, hit of the World's Fair.

John Aiso was appointed to the Los Angeles municipal bench in 1953 by then Gov. Earl Warren, the first Japanese jurist in the continental United States.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown last year appointed two more Nisei judges.

Why and how was this country's deep-seated anti-Japanese prejudice so quickly overcome?

The question has excited scholars.

A $300,000 four-year study project, sponsored and directed by UCLA, is being undertaken to document and analyze the complex currents of history that so quickly swept away barriers of discrimination imbedded in national and state laws as well as human attitudes.

The study originated with the Japanese-Americans whose Japanese American Citizens League raised over $100,000 toward financing the project.

Obviously the heroic World War II combat record of Nisei soldiers in American uniform proved the first smashing blow against prejudice.

The Nisei performance and hindsight judgment stirred a sense of guilt in the nation.

In 1948 Congress passed an evacuation claims act under which more than $36 million has been paid so far to evacuated familes in negotiated settlements for their losses.

Japanese-Americans now are settled in every mainland state, but 157,000 are concentrated in California. There are 203,000 in Hawaii.

The single most sweeping and significant political and social victory for the Japanese in America was the McCarran-Walter Immigration Act of 1952.

It replaced the exclusion act of 1924, which had barred all hope for the Issei emigrants to become American citizens and eased immigration restrictions.

An average of 5,000 Japanese immigrants has been admitted every year since.

Since 1952 more than 36,000 Japanese have become naturalized U.S. citizens. Most were aging Issei who had lived most of their years in this country.

Town Uses Oil Well Brine To Control Street Dust

LOGAN, Ohio (AP)—Oil well brine, a troublesome byproduct that fouls streams, may mean dollars in the bank for the city of Logan.

Service director Dick Donahey has hit on use of the brine to control dust on unpaved streets and alleys in the warmer months, and to clear streets of ice and snow in winter.

In years past, Logan's bill for salt for winter use has run as high as $2,000. The bill for oil, to keep down dust, has been as much as $4,000.

The brine, which oil drillers are only too happy to be rid of, costs nothing, and Donahey says one man with a spray truck can do ice control work which would require a dozen men with salt.

In dust control, the brine forms a crust with dirt.

But what will salt in year-around uses do to the paint on automobiles?

Donahey emphasizes that except in winter, when it would be used on main streets, it will be applied mainly on alleys and less-traveled roads.

Now the city is dickering for two 30,000 gallon cisterns to store the brine for use when needed.

The Revenue Act of 1918 included some tax provisions with rates up to 77 per cent.

Disagreement Over Cuba: Dean Rusk May Resign

By DREW PEARSON

Members of the Administration who have sat in on the high-level talks on the Cuban crisis predict that Dean Rusk will resign as Secretary of State shortly after the November election.

They say that Rusk will do nothing to embarrass President Kennedy before the elections, but that the President has to decide whether he, Rusk, or McGeorge Bundy is going to be Secretary of State. If Bundy is going to be Secretary of State in fact, then he might as well have the job in name also. Rusk has confided to close friends.

Bundy is the young Harvard professor who has served as Kennedy's special assistant for national security affairs. He is a Republican, the son of Harvey Bundy who served as Assistant Secretary of State in the Hoover Administration, and is related by marriage to ex-Secretary of State Dean Acheson. Because of that fact, he is sometimes called "Dean Acheson's representative inside the Cabinet."

Bundy, along with Acheson, favors a tough policy toward the Russians. The tougher Kennedy is with Khrushchev, Bundy argues, the better. He does not favor even any conversation over Berlin.

While Secretary of State Rusk also favors a tough policy in Berlin and elsewhere, he is not opposed to conversations with the Russians. He also knows that our Nato allies are not going to stand behind the United States in any tough showdown. Finally, he does not believe that foreign policy should get mixed up with the present election campaign.

During the early part of the current election campaign, Rusk's views prevailed. It was on Rusk's advice that the President in his September 13 press conference, hit back at "loose talk" about the possibility of military invasion of Cuba. Kennedy said that such comment served to "give a thin color of legitimacy to the Communist pretense that such a threat exists."

Later at Indianapolis on October 13, the President again followed Rusk's position when he struck back at his Republican critic, Sen. Homer Capehart of Indiana who had been urging a blockade or an invasion of Cuba, and whom he indirectly described as one of "those self-appointed generals and admirals who want to send someone else's sons to war and who consistently voted against the instruments of peace who ought to be kept at home by the voters."

But in the past week, the President has switched from the Rusk policy regarding Cuba to the Bundy hard line. Those who have seen the diplomatic cables agree about the missile build-up in Cuba, but say this does not radically change the international situation since the Russians could always hit us either with long-range missiles from submarines off the East Coast.

Secretary Rusk's friends say that he has frequently been bypassed on foreign policy by the little group around the President and that while he plans no immediate action he will probably bow out as Secretary of State within the next few months.

Japanese Americans, Ill-Treated 20 Years Ago, Now Taking Their Place In Mainstream Of U.S. Life

By LEIF ERICKSON

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Just 20 years ago 112,000 confused and bitter Japanese-Americans were making their exodus from Pacific Coast homes into bleak barracks behind the barbed wire of war relocation centers.

From that time of despair and hurt, the Japanese-Americans have scored a remarkably swift and sweeping triumph over racial prejudice and achieved notable economic success as well.

"An achievement perhaps rarely equaled in the history of migration," declared Leonard Broom, former UCLA scholar and now sociology department chairman at the University of Texas.

At the time, Japan's forces were rolling on to early victories at Singapore and Manila.

Insurance Man Retires Here

Melvin Grindle, 623 Patterson Avenue, recently retired as staff manager of the Cumberland District office of the Monumental Life Insurance Company after 36 years service with the firm.

During 16 years of his service he was manager of the firm's Evansville, Ind. office. He was honored recently during a dinner held at the Ali Ghan Shrine County Country Club with Darrell Zeller as toastmaster.

Mr. Grindle was presented a watch on behalf of the home office by Richard D. Love Jr., district manager. His wife was presented an orchid corsage and attractive centerpiece by the M.L.C. Club which sponsored the dinner.

The retiring staff manager was also presented a gift on behalf of the club and office personnel by Marlin King. Retired members at the dinner include Miss Margaret Conner, Duke Burger, Earl Wolfe and John Park and their wives.

Retired Principal's Will Is Probated

The will of Miss Tena B. Barber, also known as Christina B. Barber, who was teacher and principal at old Vale Summit School for 47 years before retiring in 1946, was probated in Allegany County Orphans Court.

Miss Barber died October 14 at the County Infirmary.

Her niece, Mrs. Eliabeth Estelle Stineman, 610 Schroder Avenue, Johnstown, Pa., qualified as executrix of the estate under a $5,000 bond. Her real estate, furniture and household effects were left to Mrs. Stineman.

All the rest of Miss Barber's estate was left equally to three nieces, Mrs. Stineman, Mrs. Adriel P. Grose and Mrs. Elma Marley, and two nephews, T. Raymond Perrault and Thomas E. Paul. The will was dated March 21, 1952.

Parochial Schools Plan Joint Meeting

The three parochial high schools in Cumberland will hold a joint meeting Friday at Ursuline Academy to inaugurate National Catholic Youth Week, October 28-November 4.

The 10 a. m. program will feature a panel discussion on "Conditions in Latin America," with panelists being Terrence McKenzie and Edward Sheehy, LaSalle High; Mary Mohler and Mary Mann, Ursuline, and Elizabeth Twigg and Rose Mary Firlie, Catholic Girls Central High.

The subject of the discussion is based on a tape recording by Rev. John J. Considine, MM, director of the Latin American Bureau of the National Catholic Welfare Conference. Moderator of the discussion will be Sister M. Terrence, who supervises the CSMC unit at Ursuline.

Following the panel discussion, prize winning essays on "Reverent Youth—Loyal Leaders" will be read. The program will conclude with a mass at SS. Peter and Paul Church, with Rev. Ronin Schrieber, OFM, Cap., assistant pastor, as celebrant.

Fun Night Set By Cresaptown PTA

The Parent-Teacher Association of Cresaptown School will sponsor its annual Fun Night program Friday at the school.

The program will start with a cafeteria-style supper, at which no costumes are to be worn, officials said. Activities will include dancing, films, bake sale, games of skill, fish pond, white elephant sale and a "spook house."

Columbia Street PTA Plans Fun Night

The annual fun night of Columbia Street School will be observed Friday from 7 to 9 p. m. in the school auditorium.

Sponsored jointly by the faculty and PTA, festivities will be comprised of a talent show, bake sale, movies, games and refreshments. The event is open to the public.

Insurance Man Retires Here

Melvin Grindle, 623 Patterson Avenue, recently retired as staff manager of the Cumberland District office of the Monumental Life Insurance Company after 36 years service with the firm.

During 16 years of his service he was manager of the firm's Evansville, Ind. office. He was honored recently during a dinner held at the Ali Ghan Shrine County Country Club with Darrell Zeller as toastmaster.

Mr. Grindle was presented a watch on behalf of the home office by Richard D. Love Jr., district manager. His wife was presented an orchid corsage and attractive centerpiece by the M.L.C. Club which sponsored the dinner.

The retiring staff manager was also presented a gift on behalf of the club and office personnel by Marlin King. Retired members at the dinner include Miss Margaret Conner, Duke Burger, Earl Wolfe and John Park and their wives.

Retired Principal's Will Is Probated

The will of Miss Tena B. Barber, also known as Christina B. Barber, who was teacher and principal at old Vale Summit School for 47 years before retiring in 1946, was probated in Allegany County Orphans Court.

Miss Barber died October 14 at the County Infirmary.

Her niece, Mrs. Eliabeth Estelle Stineman, 610 Schroder Avenue, Johnstown, Pa., qualified as executrix of the estate under a $5,000 bond. Her real estate, furniture and household effects were left to Mrs. Stineman.

All the rest of Miss Barber's estate was left equally to three nieces, Mrs. Stineman, Mrs. Adriel P. Grose and Mrs. Elma Marley, and two nephews, T. Raymond Perrault and Thomas E. Paul. The will was dated March 21, 1952.

Parochial Schools Plan Joint Meeting

The three parochial high schools in Cumberland will hold a joint meeting Friday at Ursuline Academy to inaugurate National Catholic Youth Week, October 28-November 4.

The 10 a. m. program will feature a panel discussion on "Conditions in Latin America," with panelists being Terrence McKenzie and Edward Sheehy, LaSalle High; Mary Mohler and Mary Mann, Ursuline, and Elizabeth Twigg and Rose Mary Firlie, Catholic Girls Central High.

The subject of the discussion is based on a tape recording by Rev. John J. Considine, MM, director of the Latin American Bureau of the National Catholic Welfare Conference. Moderator of the discussion will be Sister M. Terrence, who supervises the CSMC unit at Ursuline.

Following the panel discussion, prize winning essays on "Reverent Youth—Loyal Leaders" will be read. The program will conclude with a mass at SS. Peter and Paul Church, with Rev. Ronin Schrieber, OFM, Cap., assistant pastor, as celebrant.

Fun Night Set By Cresaptown PTA

The Parent-Teacher Association of Cresaptown School will sponsor its annual Fun Night program Friday at the school.

The program will start with a cafeteria-style supper, at which no costumes are to be worn, officials said. Activities will include dancing, films, bake sale, games of skill, fish pond, white elephant sale and a "spook house."

Columbia Street PTA Plans Fun Night

The annual fun night of Columbia Street School will be observed Friday from 7 to 9 p. m. in the school auditorium.

Sponsored jointly by the faculty and PTA, festivities will be comprised of a talent show, bake sale, movies, games and refreshments. The event is open to the public.

Group Seeks Council Seat

The Maryand Association of Junior Colleges, with which Allegany Community College is affiliated, has adopted a resolution that in effect calls for the placement of a junior college administrator on the proposed Advisory Council for Higher Education.

The council was proposed by the Commission for the Expansion of Public Higher Education in Maryland in recommendations known as the Curlett report.

The report proposed three divisions of higher education: The University of Maryland, state colleges now known as State Teachers Colleges and community colleges to be operated by local boards under the supervision of the State Board of Education. Teacher colleges would no longer be under the state board but would be placed under a new and separate control group.

It was suggested in the report that an advisory council be established by joint action of the three groups.

They are the Board of Regents of the University of Maryland, the Board of Trustees of the State Colleges and the State Board of Education. The commission recommended that each of the boards should appoint three members to the Advisory Council.

The three members appointed by the Universiety of Maryland would include the chairman of the Board of Regents, the president of the university and one other. Representatives of the Board of Trustees of State Colleges would include the chairman of the board and two of the state college president, while the State Board of Education would include the chairman of the board, the state superintendent of schools and one other in its representation.

Dr. Robert S. Zimmer, Allegany president, said the Maryland Association of Junior Colleges, at its last meeting, adopted a resolution that states: "Resolved, that it seems reasonable that an active junior college administrator be included on the coordination committee (Advisdealing with higher education." ory Council) of the three boards The resolution was adopted unanimously, Dr. Zimmer said.

In related action, the junior college organization unanimously adopted a resolution commending the Governor, Legislature and Curlett Committee on the progress made in studying higher education. It rejected however, another resolution that approved in principle the recommendations of the Curlett Commission.

Dr. Zimmer said it was the consensus among the junior college representatives that their organization should be included on the suggested advisory council because of the importance of junior colleges in the overall program.

Mountains Of Florida

MIAMI (AP)—When Mrs. Paul Oliver returned from Italy a year ago, she had the bright idea of building some artificial Alps in this region, which is a long way from mountains au natural. Using potato sacks, cement, coral rocks, steel rods and steel mesh, she and her husband have created a landscape complete with waterfall that attracts the attention of passersby.

American Sales Up

NEW YORK—The American Tobacco Co. Wednesday reported reported higher sales for the nine months and the third quarter but said that increased advertising costs held net income for both periods slightly below year-ago levels. Nine month earnings were equal to $1.77 a share compared with $1.78 a share last year.

The estate tax was the first introduced as part of the Revenue Act of 1916, reports the Internal Revenue Service.

CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 178 A Union or Confederate officer is rarely depicted in a monument or painting without a sword. A popular image is the officer brandishing a sword as he leads his men in a charge. However, photographs made in the field by Matthew Brady and contemporaries confirm that the sword was worn primarily on dress occasions, as was expected. Swords were the symbol of an officer's authority, and served this primary function in the Civil War.

A realistic and precise military historian, Lt. Col. Mark M. Boatner Jr., quoted here previously, says:

"Bayonets, sabers, swords, short-swords, cutlasses, Bowie knives, pikes and lances, classified as 'edged weapons,' appeared in considerable profusion during the Civil War. Although they served to decorate their original possessors and delight modern collectors, they inflicted few casualties."

The artillery short-sword, with which the gunners were supposed to disembowel an enemy horse that had overrun their position and then dispatch its rider, "was among the most useless of weapons," Boatner continues.

As for sabers, while they were legitimate weapons of the mounted service and dangerous in the hands of the trained, experienced troopers, the new cavalrymen of 1861 and 1862 had difficulty learning how to handle them.

Bids Opened For Area's Initial Language Lab

Bids on a language laboratory, the first such teaching aid in this region, were opened yesterday at Allegany Community College.

Dr. Robert S. Zimmer, college president, said six firms submitted bids, with Wes-Mar Communication of this city being the apparent low bidder with an offer of $9,987.

The language laboratory calls for the installation of 24 student stations, each equipped with earphones, microphone and tape recorder. In addition, there is to be a teacher counsel station with two built-in tape recorders, two portable recorders and a stereo record changer.

Dr. Zimmer said the teacher station also is to be provided with facilities for four tape recorders, if needed.

The contract, when awarded, calls for the installation to be completed in 30 days.

The laboratory is the newest approach to language instruction, Dr. Zimmer points out, explaining that students are taught to understand a language first, and then progress to reading and writing.

Other bidders and their estimates were Poling's, this city, $13,900; Union Electronics of Arlington, Va., $13,995; Henry O. Beerman Company, Baltimore, $14,325; Dictaphone Corporation, Pittsburgh, $14,331.09, and American Seating Company, Silver Spring, $15,375.

Following completion of the laboratory, Dr. Zimmer said the college will hold an open house of the facility for language instructors and other interested persons.

Dr. Zimmer said the contract calls for the same equipment as was recently installed at the University of Pittsburgh's Language Department.

The council was proposed by the Commission for the Expansion of Public Higher Education in Maryland in recommendations known as the Curlett report.

The report proposed three divisions of higher education: The University of Maryland, state colleges now known as State Teachers Colleges and community colleges to be operated by local boards under the supervision of the State Board of Education. Teacher colleges would no longer be under the state board but would be placed under a new and separate control group.

It was suggested in the report that an advisory council be established by joint action of the three groups.

They are the Board of Regents of the University of Maryland, the Board of Trustees of the State Colleges and the State Board of Education. The commission recommended that each of the boards should appoint three members to the Advisory Council.

The three members appointed by the Universiety of Maryland would include the chairman of the Board of Regents, the president of the university and one other. Representatives of the Board of Trustees of State Colleges would include the chairman of the board and two of the state college president, while the State Board of Education would include the chairman of the board, the state superintendent of schools and one other in its representation.

Dr. Robert S. Zimmer, Allegany president, said the Maryland Association of Junior Colleges, at its last meeting, adopted a resolution that states: "Resolved, that it seems reasonable that an active junior college administrator be included on the coordination committee (Advisdealing with higher education." ory Council) of the three boards The resolution was adopted unanimously, Dr. Zimmer said.

In related action, the junior college organization unanimously adopted a resolution commending the Governor, Legislature and Curlett Committee on the progress made in studying higher education. It rejected however, another resolution that approved in principle the recommendations of the Curlett Commission.

Dr. Zimmer said it was the consensus among the junior college representatives that their organization should be included on the suggested advisory council because of the importance of junior colleges in the overall program.

Mountains Of Florida

MIAMI (AP)—When Mrs. Paul Oliver returned from Italy a year ago, she had the bright idea of building some artificial Alps in this region, which is a long way from mountains au natural. Using potato sacks, cement, coral rocks, steel rods and steel mesh, she and her husband have created a landscape complete with waterfall that attracts the attention of passersby.

American Sales Up

NEW YORK—The American Tobacco Co. Wednesday reported reported higher sales for the nine months and the third quarter but said that increased advertising costs held net income for both periods slightly below year-ago levels. Nine month earnings were equal to $1.77 a share compared with $1.78 a share last year.

The estate tax was the first introduced as part of the Revenue Act of 1916, reports the Internal Revenue Service.

CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 178 A Union or Confederate officer is rarely depicted in a monument or painting without a sword. A popular image is the officer brandishing a sword as he leads his men in a charge. However, photographs made in the field by Matthew Brady and contemporaries confirm that the sword was worn primarily on dress occasions, as was expected. Swords were the symbol of an officer's authority, and served this primary function in the Civil War.

A realistic and precise military historian, Lt. Col. Mark M. Boatner Jr., quoted here previously, says:

"Bayonets, sabers, swords, short-swords, cutlasses, Bowie knives, pikes and lances, classified as 'edged weapons,' appeared in considerable profusion during the Civil War. Although they served to decorate their original possessors and delight modern collectors, they inflicted few casualties."

The artillery short-sword, with which the gunners were supposed to disembowel an enemy horse that had overrun their position and then dispatch its rider, "was among the most useless of weapons," Boatner continues.

As for sabers, while they were legitimate weapons of the mounted service and dangerous in the hands of the trained, experienced troopers, the new cavalrymen of 1861 and 1862 had difficulty learning how to handle them.

Bids Opened For Area's Initial Language Lab

Bids on a language laboratory, the first such teaching aid in this region, were opened yesterday at Allegany Community College.

Dr. Robert S. Zimmer, college president, said six firms submitted bids, with Wes-Mar Communication of this city being the apparent low bidder with an offer of $9,987.

The language laboratory calls for the installation of 24 student stations, each equipped with earphones, microphone and tape recorder. In addition, there is to be a teacher counsel station with two built-in tape recorders, two portable recorders and a stereo record changer.

Dr. Zimmer said the teacher station also is to be provided with facilities for four tape recorders, if needed.

The contract, when awarded, calls for the installation to be completed in 30 days.

The laboratory is the newest approach to language instruction, Dr. Zimmer points out, explaining that students are taught to understand a language first, and then progress to reading and writing.

Other bidders and their estimates were Poling's, this city, $13,900; Union Electronics of Arlington, Va., $13,995; Henry O. Beerman Company, Baltimore, $14,325; Dictaphone Corporation, Pittsburgh, $14,331.09, and American Seating Company, Silver Spring, $15,375.

Following completion of the laboratory, Dr. Zimmer said the college will hold an open house of the facility for language instructors and other interested persons.

Dr. Zimmer said the contract calls for the same equipment as was recently installed at the University of Pittsburgh's Language Department.

Senior Citizens Meet Today

The Senior Citizens Club, sponsored by the Recreation Department, will meet today at 2 p.m. at the home of B.P.O. Elks Lodge 63, South Centre Street.

The meeting will be in the form of a Halloween party. "Fortunes" and "Pare the Apple" games will be played. The latter is a team game and a prize will go to the winner.

Singing will be led by Mrs. Lola Stewart.

Civil Defense Tests County Alert System

Charles G. Smith, director of Civil Defense for Allegany County, said that in view of the tense world situation over the Cuban blockade that the alert system in the county was tested Tuesday.

The radiological detection system was also checked as were the plans for the various schools in the county, Smith added.

Smith said the original program whereby householders should have a two-week supply of food and water on hand in case of emergency is still in effect.

The medical self-help course which started last night at the Memorial Hospital nurses home is now more significant than ever, Smith said. There should be at least one member of each family who knows what to do in first aid and other facets of medical self-help, he pointed out.

School officials, with consultation of Civil Defense leaders have determined that all school children should be returned to their homes in a time of emergency from nuclear warfare, as the home provides the best shelter. Adult care is also in the home, temporary sanitary facilities would be possible and first aid supplies could be provided.

Parents must not telephone schools in time of emergency as phones would be needed for Civil Defense messages. School buses would take children to their homes as soon as possible. Parents should not come to the school as children who walk from school would be on their way home before parents could reach the school. A traffic problem would also be created.

Transistor battery-powered radios are being placed in each county public school so that radio messages may be received in the event of power failure.

Student Council Elects Officers

Ronald Taylor was elected president of the Johnson Heights School Student Council, said Paul M. Arbogast, principal.

Members include Nancy Callis, Terry White and Gary Laber, sixth grade; John Burkey, Judy Woodson, Donald Paugh and David Hanekamp, fifth grade; William Smith and Debra Hussong, fourth grade; David Wilson, Allen Staggers and Connie Taylor, third grade; Eric Shewbridge, Cathy Webb, and Kathy Light, second grade.

The group takes room suggestions for developing school standards, safety habits and personal responsibility, and develops democratic procedures through student council participation, said the principal.

Firemen Plan Award For Heroism

The Allegany-Garrett Counties Volunteer Firemen's Association will meet Sunday, November 4 at the Shaft Fire Hall.

In its October bulletin, the association said it has recommended that James McMoran of Frostburg be given a heroism award which is presented by the Indepent Insurance Association of Allegany and Garrett counties.

McMoran rescued a child from a trailer fire in Frostburg May 31, 1961. Janes Lamberson, who assisted in the rescue, died after bringing the child out of the burning trailer. A posthumous award was presented to Lamberson and accepted by his widow, Mrs. Jean Lamberson.

McMoran will received his award December 2.

The executive board of the association met recently at Midland Fire Hall with Charles Crawford, president, presiding.

It was announced that three training courses are available from the Fire Service Extension of the University including basic, advanced II and advanced III. Basic courses are scheduled so far as follows: Bedford Road with Bedford Road, Baltimore Pike and Bowman's Addition participating, Cromwell Zembower, instructor; Midland with Midland and Shaft participating, Harry Devlin, instructor; and an advanced class in Oakland-Deer Park at Oakland with George F. Comp Jr., instructor.

Cresaptown, LaVale, Bowling Green, Corriganville and Ellerslie are considering having training classes.

The association has distributed canisters for the Muscular Dystrophy Fund Drive with Alvin Rankin as chairman. David E. Kirk, past president of the association and first vice president of the state association, is state MD chairman. The Allegany-Garrett Association was third in the state MD drive last year.

It was also announced that John J. Long, director of safety and plant protection at Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company's Works 7, has offered PPG facilities and training with the plant fire brigades. Baltimore Pike and District 16 have already availed themselves of the opportunity and Bedford Road and Baltimore Pike have a joint drill scheduled.

Penn Ave. PTA Meets Tonight

A meeting of the Pennsylvania Avenue School PTA will be held in the school auditorium today at 7:30 p.m.

Rev. James H. Boggs, minister of the First Church of the Nazarene, will give the invocation. The honor den of Cub Pack 2 will lead the salute to the Flag.

Mrs. William Umstot, president, will preside at the business meeting. A report of the summer conference of the Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers will be given and a humorous skit originally presented at the conference by District 1, MCPT will be reported.

Refreshments will be served by home room representatives. Chairladies are Mrs. Ruth Valentine, Mrs. Katherine Williams, Mrs. Rena Miller and Mrs. Lois Jenkins.

CWV To Sponsor Essay Contest

The annual essay and poster contest sponsored by Victor Tambolleo Post 1712, Catholic War Veterans, is open to students in each of the seven parochial schools in the area this year.

Leo J. Seibert, third vice commander of the post and chairman of the contest, said the event is restricted to seventh and eighth grade students.

District winners will be announced at 2 p. m. Sunday at St. Patrick's Social Center here, with Seibert reporting first, second and third place winners will be selected from each school.

All first place winners will be entered in the CWV state contest. Seibert said state officers are to be present for Sunday's award selections.

Student Council Formed At Schoo.

A Student Council has been organized at Johnson Heights School, according to Paul M. Arbogast, principal, who said officers are Ronald Taylor, president; Beverly Bopp, vice president, and Deborah Shryock, secretary.

Other members are Nancy Callis, Terrence White, Gary Laber, sixth grade; John Burkey, Judy Woodson, Donald Paugh, David Hanekamp, fifth grade; William Smith, Debra Hussong, fourth grade; David Wilson, Allen Staggers, Connie Taylor, third grade; Eric Shewbridge, Cathy Webb, Kathy Light, second grade.

Arbogast said the group will accept suggestions for developing school standards safety habits and personal responsibility.

DSA Justifies Its Existence

In operation only a year, the Defense Supply Agency has unquestionably justified its creation. The DSA was set up to bring order to military procurement, which since the time of George Washington has been plagued by varying degrees of ineptitude.

The new agency provides all the armed services with clothing, food, medical supplies, fuel, construction materials, electronic and automotive supplies and so on. It also is charged with supervising sales of all military goods declared surplus.

This multibillion-dollar business is in the hands of Lt. Gen. Andrew T. McNamara, who is not related to the Secretary, and formerly was the Eighth Army's quartermaster general in Korea.

Eventually the DSA is expected to save close to $3 billion a year in current procurement costs. It already has cut away by an estimated $500 million the waste in the untidy inventory it took over from the Army, Navy and Air Force. Another $1.4 million was saved by standardizing combat boots and exercise togs.

In another instance, General McNamara found that for a reason shrouded in tradition the armed forces required special packaging for their laundry soap. By buying it in ordinary wrappers, the government can save more than $300,000. Again, the services thought they needed soda crackers baked to "military specifications" — now the DSA is buying the kind the rest of us eat, and saving $93,000 a year.

The DSA does not have jurisdiction over some of the large supply systems, such as the $8 billion aeronautical parts inventory. Otherwise, it in effect replaces the old Quartermaster Corps.

Even in DSA's creation there was a saving. It cost about $204 million a year to run the Quartermaster Corps. DSA figures it can do the same job — and better — for $177 million.

The Vernacular

The Second Vatican Council cannot correct the present or proceed to the future, without profoundly looking at the entire history of the Christian Church. Originally its languages were Hebrew, Aramaic and Greek. Christ undoubtedly used Aramaic as his constant language. Paul used both Hebrew and Aramaic. His friend, Polycarp, used Aramaic and possibly Greek. But all lived in the Roman Empire in which an educated person, whatever his local language or dialect, employed Latin. The Council of Nicaea which had been called by the Emperor Constantine employed Latin.

Language is reality. It shapes not only thought but habits and establishes close relationships. A total alien is one whom we do not understand or who cannot communicate with us. Roscellin of Compiegne (about 1100) thought that the power of the human soul and the secret of its development are largely in language. In a word, he believed that without means of communication, we would be clods. The fact is that a small girl can give orders to an elephant which he will obey, although one swish of his trunk or one beat of his foot could kill her. Yet, an elephant cannot tell a small girl what to do. One can communicate ideas and decisions; the other cannot.

This, in a way, is one of the most serious problems which faces the Second Vatican Council. Shall the Mass continue to be read in Latin; shall part of it be read in Latin; shall all of it be read in the vernacular?

The problem is one essentially of communication that faces all the older religions. In the orthodox synagogue, for instance, the entire service is in Hebrew which few understand. The congregation uses as a vernacular the language of the country in which they live or Yiddish or Ladino. In the Orthodox (Christian) Churches, the language is old Slavonic which few understand although it is closer to their vernacular than Hebrew is to any modern tongue. Few Roman Catholics understand Latin.

Emotionally, prayers may be said without understanding a word, and often are, and the heart provides what the head cannot. But intellectually, it is necessary to understand words to grasp the inner meaning of the sentence uttered. As an example, let us take the most universal prayer which begins:

"Thy shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might. And these words which I command thee this day shall be upon thy heart . . . " etc., etc.

In Hebrew or Latin, these are just sounds to most, but in the vernacular they become thoughts. "And thou shalt love thy neighbor as thy self." What a world of injustice there has been because those who said and those who heard these sounds did not know what they meant as words! As sounds, they could have an emotional content, but as understood words, there is an additional and important value. It could be a revolutionary value.

This will be debated for a long time by the Council. There are churchmen who believe that Latin should be retained because by language the Church is universal. For instance, my friend, Archbishop Paul Yu-pin of Nanking and Formosa, can go into a church in New York, Rome, Budapest, or Nairobi and say the identical Mass in the universal language. If he said it in Chinese, it would not be understood or even recognized. If he said it in English, a few might know what he was talking about in Rome but not in Budapest.

On the other hand, thousands everywhere go to Church and understand nothing. It is true that a missal includes a vernacular translation but for many only the spoken word is readily understandable. They have not yet developed an optical translateor from the printed word to a thought. Therefore, Reform Judaism in the United States, years ago, developed a service in English with a comparatively small amount of Hebrew. In Protestant Churches, the language is the vernacular. In some Catholic Churches, the Mass is already read in English on the side.

The Council will have to decide how much vernacular will be employed in the Mass. In the newer countries of the world, Latin is not known at all and sounds like mumbo-jumbo and those who become Catholics do not know what the priests mean at all. The vernacular would help understanding.

Will Our Tough Cuba Policy Unite Reds Or Divide Them Further?

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—Intelligence reports reaching Washington show that the Chinese-Indian war has deepened the split inside the Communist world much more than the outside world realizes. This is agreed to by all the experts.

But what Kennedy administration advisers can't agree on is whether the Cuban crisis will widen this split or heal the wounds of the divided Communists. What some State Department advisers fear is that a tough Kennedy policy will cause the Kremlin and the Red Chinese to rush back into each other's arms in order to present a united front to the West.

Whichever group of advisers is right, here is the picture of what is happening inside the Communist world as pieced together from diplomatic cables.

Approximately one week ago, the Red Chinese made an informal offer to the Indian government to withdraw 20 miles from the disputed Himalayan border if the Indians would do the same.

Prime Minister Nehru promptly rejected the peace feeler. He did so largely because he had the support of Red China's partner, the Russians, with whom he has been constantly conferring. Instead of accepting the peace feeler, Nehru ordered Indian troops into the disputed area — using Russian helicopters.

This infuriated the Chinese and they ordered a mass attack — with disastrous consequences to India.

Peking Blasts Khrushchev

Previously, the Russian-Chinese split has been widened by Moscow's offer to sell MIG-21's to the Indian government at the identical time China was fighting India. This was the first time in Communist history that a Communist country sided against another Communist country in case of war or threatened war.

It had been known that the gap between the Red China and Moscow had been growing for some time, but few observers realized how serious it had become until the Soviet pulled all its technicians out of China approximately one year ago. About 3,000 of them returned home.

Since that time the Peking radio has been so critical of the Russians that Moscow is reported jamming its broadcasts to the Russian people more than it jams the Voice of America. Critical editorials and even cartoons of Khrushchev have appeared in the Peking press.

One of the most interesting Peking broadcasts took place September 18 blasting President Tito of Yugoslavia for giving an interview to this writer. The Chinese called Tito one of the worst names in the Communist vocabulary, a "revisionist"—which means that he wants to revise the basic philosophy of Marx, especially regarding the inevitability of war with the capitalist world. This is the same name the Red Chinese have been calling Khrushchev, who, like Tito, has been advocating coexistence rather than the old Marxist doctrine of the inevitability of war.

Tito Is "Arm Of U. S."

The Peking broadcast of September 18 made the amazing statement that "Tito's remarks in an interview with Drew Pearson are fresh proof that the modern revisionist group of Yugoslavia is in fact an army corps of United States imperialism."

This, incidentally, would make interesting reading for Sen. John Tower, Texas Republican, who blasted the Eisenhower policy, continued by Kennedy, of selling old fight planes to Yugoslavia.

However, the most important deduction drawn by U. S. observers from the Peking diatribes and from the Indian-Chinese war, is the deepening rift inside the Communist world which should very much benefit the United States.

One group of advisers has believed that Kennedy's action in regard to Cuba might heal the rift. Another group has believed that now is the time to take advantage of the rift by moving into China.

Leaky Air Crates

I flew up to Windsor Locks, Conn., on the same Allegheny Airlines plane earlier on the same day that Stewardess Francoise de Moriere was sucked out of a faulty door and dropped to her death 1,500 feet below.

No accidents ocurred on that earlier flight, but several passengers remarked that the plane seemed tied together by baling wire, and we wondered whether we would ever make it to Windsor Locks.

The old plane was so creaky that air leaked out the vents supposed to furnish passenger ventilation, and the stewardesses stuffed napkins into the cracks around the vents, unsuccessfully, to try to stop the leaks.

Federal Aviation Administrator Najeeb Halaby is doing a generally good job of policing airline safety, but he needs more inspectors to check on some of the old crates that are limping along the airways these days. One suggestion is that the traveling public help him in this inspection. The FAA welcomes suggestions.

Gas Lobby Defeated

Chalk up a major victory for Gov. Pat Brown of California and for him alone in the recent Federal Power Commission refund of $79,000,000 to California gas users from El Paso Natural Gas.

Brown began working on the overcharge of gas rates to California consumers back in 1956 when he was attorney general. When he couldn't get the California Public Utilities Commission or Gov. Goodie Knight to act, he went before the California Legislature and by a razor-thin vote, got $30,000 to fight gas-rate increases.

It took seven long years of battling before the FPC, but finally in May 1961, Brown won hearings before the new commissioners appointed by Kennedy. And this month the commission finally handed down a decision in favor of the consumers—in this case, the people of California.

Firm Policy Toward Cuba Is Necessary Risk

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The climax had to come sooner or later—and many people here have felt for some time that decisive action with reference to the Communist build-up of missile bases in Cuba was long overdue.

President Kennedy had sensed recently what appeared to be a universal sentiment throughout country that a military base 90 miles away from the United States is intolerable—whether it be called a violation of the Monroe Doctrine or a direct threat to the security of the United States itself.

For several months, the American government has known that missile bases were being built and equipped in Cuba. But, up to now, the officially announced assumption has been that all this was "defensive" on Cuba's part. There is, however, little difference actually between a missile base built for defense and one built for offensive purposes.

For reasons best known to the President, it was heretofore deemed unwise, however, to characterize the missile bases as "offensive." But when word of recent shipments from the Soviet Union—including light bombers—was received from authoritative sources by the United States government, there no longer was any reason to hesitate to call the missile bases in Cuba by their right name.

Even before the President announced his intention of speaking to the nation, Senator Kenneth Keating, Republican of New York, referred to the report he had publicized recently concerning the construction of six intermediate-ranger missile bases in Cuba. He had declared that the missile bases would have a 2,000 to 2,500-mile range. He said missiles from these bases could strike at the heart of the United States and at the Panama Canal. Not far away from Cuba also is the all-important base at Cape Canaveral, Florida.

Under the circumstances, the President required only the information that the Cubans were unquestionably engaged with Soviet experts in building an offensive base with nuclear warheads before he told the world that such an operation must be abolished and that hereafter Cuba will be "quarantined" and, in effect blockaded.

The timing of the President's conferences and his decision to summon the leaders of both political parties in Congress were something of a surprise even in Washington, because Mr. Kennedy was himself engaged in a campaign trip. Naturally, there is speculation as to whether the dramatic way the whole thing was handled will have some relationship to the current Congressional campaign. But any such relationship, it will be asserted in administration circles, is purely "coincidental."

The crisis is a serious one and both parties always tend to work together in an emergency atmosphere. It so happens that the Republicans have been making an issue out of the procrastination of the White House and the State Department in the whole Cuban affair, as the people of the country have shown they were more perturbed about it all than Mr. Kennedy had realized. So bipartisan agreement now may be expected on any steps that become necessary.

The first stage involves, of course, the customary warning so that not only Cuba but the Soviet Union may know that the United States means business. Unless the missile bases are dismantled, the people of this country will continue to feel uneasy and may demand that there be some form of military occupation.

The big question in the background has been: what will the Soviet Union do if the United States gets tough with Cuba? The administration could not afford to sit on its hands while pondering possible answers to that question. It became clear that the Washington government would have to take the initiative and incur whatever risks might be necessary.

For, in international law, it has always been recognized that military security is paramount. A demand that foreign forces be withdrawn from the island might well be considered only a first step, with invasion and occupation as a natural sequel if no satisfaction is obtained.

Will the Soviets ever risk a worldwide conflagration just to help out Castro? The experts think not. In fact, without well-corroborated information on this point, President Kennedy doubtless would not have risked the public statement he has now broadcast to the world.

Mr. Kennedy has always insisted that Cuba and Berlin are closely related and that both situations must be taken into account as likely to be connected in the minds of the men in the Kremlin. The Soviet Union, of course, is plenty worried today about internal problems and about the aggressive behavior of the Red Chinese, who have invaded India. The last thing Moscow wants at this time is a world war, especially since any likelihood of this would produce a restiveness in the Communist-bloc and a major crisis for the Soviet Union.

All in all, President Kennedy evidently felt that the risk of dealing firmly with Cuba was worth taking — irrespective of Berlin and developments in other parts of the world.

UP-AND-DOWN UDALL—Interior Secretary Stewart Udall, a symbol of the outdoor life, recently injured a leg while exercising on a trampoline. Somewhat sadly, he opened a recent press conference by reading a poem composed by a newspaperman in commemoration of the incident. It read:

"Look sir, upon this bitter truth:
"The trampoline was made for youth,
"While middle age, whose vertebrae
"Grow brittle with each passing day,
"Comes to eschew and to despise
"All forms of violent exercise
"And sees the trampoline, perhaps,
"When shaded, as a place for naps."

To which another reporter added:

"If bounce you must
"To relive your 'teens,
"Don't place your trust
"In trampolines.'"

WIRTZ-DAY—It is rare that two Cabinet officers should find that they have a life-long mutual acquaintance. But this has proved to be the case with Postmaster General J. Edward Day and Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz.

Day and Wirtz' wife grew up together in a small midwest town. Recently, Wirtz came to the National Press Club to make a speech. The club's president, noting that Day was in the audience, introduced him as the man "whose father delivered Mrs. Wirtz, and not by mail."

Day's father was the town doctor.

High-Toned Smell

PARIS

I have just survived my first subway strike in Paris. Enjoyed every minute of it! Let's have another one, fellows! The subway ran. The ticket sellers and those rosy-cheeked ladies who punch the tickets were not on duty yesterday. So we all rode free, a rare thrill. I've never had a free subway ride. Free airplane rides. Free boat rides. Maybe even a free train ride or two. But on the subway, one pays. Always.

Not yesterday. One strode out on the platform, grinning furtively, conspiratorially, at the other free-loaders. And, of course, we all rode first class. I have to explain to all of you back in the classless society of America that there are first and second-class tickets on the subway here. The difference in price: six cents.

Nevertheless, a huge difference. Me, I take the second class subway to work in the morning because I go late, after the rush has subsided. But coming home in the rush hour, I take first-class (hang the expense!).

But there's every sort of difference between first and second class. The first class trains are red and there's only one car in the train. For six additional cents, it's less crowded and at rush hours, when the first-class carriages can get fairly crowded, too, the smell is, well, different. The strength is about the same, but the first-class crowd has a different bouquet. I realize this is a class-conscious remark, but it's true. The first-class smells better than the second. Let's be realistic. Drinks better wines. Uses better soap and more of it. Different smell. First class smell.

Well, you take a fellow like myself who splits himself up, travels second-class in the morning, first-class at night, what happens to him? Well, he changes personalities, that's what. When I travel second-class in the morning, I have different thoughts, different opinions. I glance at the people in the first-class carriage, hating them and their affluence. I read l'Humanite', the Communist paper, over somebody else's shoulder (if you're going to travel second-class, you can't afford to buy a paper, of course), I have a lot of second-class thoughts. Down with the bourgeois. Up workers! Vive de Gaulle!

Then night falls. I buy a first-class ticket. Right away everything changes. Your opinions, your stance. We stand much straighter, we bourgeois in the first-class, shoulders back, chin in, level-eyed, aristocratic. One glances occasionally at the jacquerie in the second-class, lip curling. Swine! One reads Le Monde—a bit stuffy but solid upper-class reading. Down with de Gaulle! Hang the poltroon on the nearest lamppost.

And, of course, one smells differently when traveling first-class. Better smell. Aristocratic. Impossible, you say, to smell more aristocratic in the evening than in the morning. Not at all. Not at all. If the Hindus can control their breathing (or is it their peristalsis?) we can control our smell. Question of self-discipline, that's all. You just think upper-class, you smell washed. Think lower-class, you smell unwashed. Try it.

Anyhow, during the strike all these fine distinctions went overboard. Everybody rode first-class! It was free, wasn't it? We were jammed like cattle in the first-class. Second-class cars, nobody. Upset all my finely-disciplined attitudes. Couldn't figure out whether to hate de Gaulle or love him. Smelled every which way. Very confusing.

One other thing about this strike. The hours of it. It started at 20 minutes after five in the morning. It ended at 20 minutes after one in the morning. Wouldn't you know the French would start a strike at 20 minutes after the hour and end it there, too?

The other last thought is that maybe the French have stumbled on a potent new working-class weapon. Always before the workers have tried to close the joint down, shut off production, throw up picket lines, and keep the customers out. But this kind of strike opens up a whole new can of peas. (I must try that expression out on the French sometime).

Instead of keeping the clients out, invite 'em in. Help yourself! Everybody! It's on the house! Take one home to the missus! You'd bring the employers to their knees in half the time.

Delayed Appendectomies Still Tempt Fate

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Good research often stems from small and out of the way places. Dr. G. A. Oliver and Dr. G. L. Watkins gathered statistics on ruptured appendicitis from a 75-bed rural hospital in Bonne Terre, Mo. In 13 years, 1,013 appendectomies were performed and of these, 128 had perforations of the organ, with peritonitis in 88.

Sixty children and 69 men and women over 50 were among the group with ruptured appendix. The only death occurred in a 70-year-old man. Such figures are in marked contrast to those of four decades ago wher performation and peritonitis meant death or prolonged disability.

Ordinary appendicitis is a relatively benign disease, provided the inflamed organ is removed within 24 hours. But the situation changes quickly when surgery is delayed and the infection allowed to continue until the appendix becomes gangrenous and ruptures.

The purulent material, including the intestinal contents, escapes into the abdominal cavity, leading to peritonitis or abscess. These complications are more serious and we can thank the antibiotics for their ability to control this type of infection.

The Bonne Terre hospital study showed that surgery was delayed 24 or more hours in 99 out of 128 persons in whom the appendix ruptured. In 44 per cent of this group the patient was responsible for the delay and in 24 per cent, the physician. But procrastination was not always due to neglect on the part of physician or patient.

In many instances, symptoms and findings were not typical of acute appendicitis and the diagnosis was difficult to make. In infants, children, and the elderly, symptoms are likely to be bizarre. Furthermore, older people fear surgery and don't consent to operations until obviously in trouble.

The physician often is overly cautious and hesitates to suggest surgery because of the criticism that follows removal of a normal appendix. The diagnosis becomes apparent as soon as the appendix ruptures but, by that time, it may be too late.

Appendicitis is still here. It may be tamed by the antibiotics but those who neglect treatment still tempt fate.

CANNED FOODS

L. W. writes: Are canned foods adulterated by the preservaties used?

REPLY

Not if the United States Food and Drug administration has anything to say about it.

CAP AND BALDNESS

H. G. writes: I wear a cap all day long on the job. Will this protect me from baldness or cause baldness?

REPLY

Not if you refer to inherited male baldness. The only way to prevent this type of hair loss is to get another set of grandparents.

IMMATURE FIGURE

Mrs. L. I. writes: My 11½ year old daughter is quite slim and is self-conscious about her thin legs and thighs. Is there anything she or I could do to make them heavier?

REPLY

Tell your daughter to be patient and that she will develop a better figure within the next five years. Exercise such as ballet dancing will help enlarge the calf muscles.

NECK PAIN

D. S. writes: Could a 54 year old person with pain in the back of the neck have cancer or tuberculosis?

REPLY

Yes, but there are a dozen more likely causes of neck pain, including arthritis and muscular rheumatism.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

Once upon a time there was a steamship captain who had handled freighters for years and took it as a mortal insult when he was transferred to a spanking new deluxe passenger liner. In fact, he often declared forcefully that any landlubber passenger who dared to get seasick should be tossed overboard forthwith.

One day in a howling gale a deck steward made his way along a line of deck chairs warning the few passengers in sight that the skipper was in a foul mood and might put his idea into execution.

"Throw seasick passengers overboard?" croaked one unfortunate voyager — already green around the gills. "Here's a ten-dollar bill for you. Make sure I don't miss my turn!"

A druggist in Mamaroneck tried to sell a new facial cream to an old customer, but she told him, "Oh, no, you don't. A girl on television has been using it in the commercial for weeks and her face is still a mess!"

DSA Justifies Its Existence

In operation only a year, the Defense Supply Agency has unquestionably justified its creation. The DSA was set up to bring order to military procurement, which since the time of George Washington has been plagued by varying degrees of ineptitude.

Since that time the Peking radio has been so critical of the Russians that Moscow is reported jamming its broadcasts to the Russian people more than it jams the Voice of America. Critical editorials and even cartoons of Khrushchev have appeared in the Peking press.

One of the most interesting Peking broadcasts took place September 18 blasting President Tito of Yugoslavia for giving an interview to this writer. The Chinese called Tito one of the worst names in the Communist vocabulary, a "revisionist"—which means that he wants to revise the basic philosophy of Marx, especially regarding the inevitability of war with the capitalist world. This is the same name the Red Chinese have been calling Khrushchev, who, like Tito, has been advocating coexistence rather than the old Marxist doctrine of the inevitability of war.

Tito Is "Arm Of U. S."

The Peking broadcast of September 18 made the amazing statement that "Tito's remarks in an interview with Drew Pearson are fresh proof that the modern revisionist group of Yugoslavia is in fact an army corps of United States imperialism."

This, incidentally, would make interesting reading for Sen. John Tower, Texas Republican, who blasted the Eisenhower policy, continued by Kennedy, of selling old fight planes to Yugoslavia.

However, the most important deduction drawn by U. S. observers from the Peking diatribes and from the Indian-Chinese war, is the deepening rift inside the Communist world which should very much benefit the United States.

One group of advisers has believed that Kennedy's action in regard to Cuba might heal the rift. Another group has believed that now is the time to take advantage of the rift by moving into China.

Leaky Air Crates

I flew up to Windsor Locks, Conn., on the same Allegheny Airlines plane earlier on the same day that Stewardess Francoise de Moriere was sucked out of a faulty door and dropped to her death 1,500 feet below.

No accidents ocurred on that earlier flight, but several passengers remarked that the plane seemed tied together by baling wire, and we wondered whether we would ever make it to Windsor Locks.

The old plane was so creaky that air leaked out the vents supposed to furnish passenger ventilation, and the stewardesses stuffed napkins into the cracks around the vents, unsuccessfully, to try to stop the leaks.

Federal Aviation Administrator Najeeb Halaby is doing a generally good job of policing airline safety, but he needs more inspectors to check on some of the old crates that are limping along the airways these days. One suggestion is that the traveling public help him in this inspection. The FAA welcomes suggestions.

Gas Lobby Defeated

Chalk up a major victory for Gov. Pat Brown of California and for him alone in the recent Federal Power Commission refund of $79,000,000 to California gas users from El Paso Natural Gas.

Brown began working on the overcharge of gas rates to California consumers back in 1956 when he was attorney general. When he couldn't get the California Public Utilities Commission or Gov. Goodie Knight to act, he went before the California Legislature and by a razor-thin vote, got $30,000 to fight gas-rate increases.

It took seven long years of battling before the FPC, but finally in May 1961, Brown won hearings before the new commissioners appointed by Kennedy. And this month the commission finally handed down a decision in favor of the consumers—in this case, the people of California.

Firm Policy Toward Cuba Is Necessary Risk

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The climax had to come sooner or later—and many people here have felt for some time that decisive action with reference to the Communist build-up of missile bases in Cuba was long overdue.

President Kennedy had sensed recently what appeared to be a universal sentiment throughout country that a military base 90 miles away from the United States is intolerable—whether it be called a violation of the Monroe Doctrine or a direct threat to the security of the United States itself.

For several months, the American government has known that missile bases were being built and equipped in Cuba. But, up to now, the officially announced assumption has been that all this was "defensive" on Cuba's part. There is, however, little difference actually between a missile base built for defense and one built for offensive purposes.

For reasons best known to the President, it was heretofore deemed unwise, however, to characterize the missile bases as "offensive." But when word of recent shipments from the Soviet Union—including light bombers—was received from authoritative sources by the United States government, there no longer was any reason to hesitate to call the missile bases in Cuba by their right name.

Even before the President announced his intention of speaking to the nation, Senator Kenneth Keating, Republican of New York, referred to the report he had publicized recently concerning the construction of six intermediate-ranger missile bases in Cuba. He had declared that the missile bases would have a 2,000 to 2,500-mile range. He said missiles from these bases could strike at the heart of the United States and at the Panama Canal. Not far away from Cuba also is the all-important base at Cape Canaveral, Florida.

Under the circumstances, the President required only the information that the Cubans were unquestionably engaged with Soviet experts in building an offensive base with nuclear warheads before he told the world that such an operation must be abolished and that hereafter Cuba will be "quarantined" and, in effect blockaded.

The timing of the President's conferences and his decision to summon the leaders of both political parties in Congress were something of a surprise even in Washington, because Mr. Kennedy was himself engaged in a campaign trip. Naturally, there is speculation as to whether the dramatic way the whole thing was handled will have some relationship to the current Congressional campaign. But any such relationship, it will be asserted in administration circles, is purely "coincidental."

The crisis is a serious one and both parties always tend to work together in an emergency atmosphere. It so happens that the Republicans have been making an issue out of the procrastination of the White House and the State Department in the whole Cuban affair, as the people of the country have shown they were more perturbed about it all than Mr. Kennedy had realized. So bipartisan agreement now may be expected on any steps that become necessary.

The first stage involves, of course, the customary warning so that not only Cuba but the Soviet Union may know that the United States means business. Unless the missile bases are dismantled, the people of this country will continue to feel uneasy and may demand that there be some form of military occupation.

The big question in the background has been: what will the Soviet Union do if the United States gets tough with Cuba? The administration could not afford to sit on its hands while pondering possible answers to that question. It became clear that the Washington government would have to take the initiative and incur whatever risks might be necessary.

For, in international law, it has always been recognized that military security is paramount. A demand that foreign forces be withdrawn from the island might well be considered only a first step, with invasion and occupation as a natural sequel if no satisfaction is obtained.

Will the Soviets ever risk a worldwide conflagration just to help out Castro? The experts think not. In fact, without well-corroborated information on this point, President Kennedy doubtless would not have risked the public statement he has now broadcast to the world.

Mr. Kennedy has always insisted that Cuba and Berlin are closely related and that both situations must be taken into account as likely to be connected in the minds of the men in the Kremlin. The Soviet Union, of course, is plenty worried today about internal problems and about the aggressive behavior of the Red Chinese, who have invaded India. The last thing Moscow wants at this time is a world war, especially since any likelihood of this would produce a restiveness in the Communist-bloc and a major crisis for the Soviet Union.

All in all, President Kennedy evidently felt that the risk of dealing firmly with Cuba was worth taking — irrespective of Berlin and developments in other parts of the world.

Inside Washington

UP-AND-DOWN UDALL—Interior Secretary Stewart Udall, a symbol of the outdoor life, recently injured a leg while exercising on a trampoline. Somewhat sadly, he opened a recent press conference by reading a poem composed by a newspaperman in commemoration of the incident. It read:

"Look sir, upon this bitter truth:
"The trampoline was made for youth,
"While middle age, whose vertebrae
"Grow brittle with each passing day,
"Comes to eschew and to despise
"All forms of violent exercise
"And sees the trampoline, perhaps,
"When shaded, as a place for naps."

To which another reporter added:

"If bounce you must
"To relive your 'teens,
"Don't place your trust
"In trampolines.'"

WIRTZ-DAY—It is rare that two Cabinet officers should find that they have a life-long mutual acquaintance. But this has proved to be the case with Postmaster General J. Edward Day and Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz.

Day and Wirtz' wife grew up together in a small midwest town. Recently, Wirtz came to the National Press Club to make a speech. The club's president, noting that Day was in the audience, introduced him as the man "whose father delivered Mrs. Wirtz, and not by mail."

Day's father was the town doctor.

PARIS

I have just survived my first subway strike in Paris. Enjoyed every minute of it! Let's have another one, fellows! The subway ran. The ticket sellers and those rosy-cheeked ladies who punch the tickets were not on duty yesterday. So we all rode free, a rare thrill. I've never had a free subway ride. Free airplane rides. Free boat rides. Maybe even a free train ride or two. But on the subway, one pays. Always.

Not yesterday. One strode out on the platform, grinning furtively, conspiratorially, at the other free-loaders. And, of course, we all rode first class. I have to explain to all of you back in the classless society of America that there are first and second-class tickets on the subway here. The difference in price: six cents.

Nevertheless, a huge difference. Me, I take the second class subway to work in the morning because I go late, after the rush has subsided. But coming home in the rush hour, I take first-class (hang the expense!).

But there's every sort of difference between first and second class. The first class trains are red and there's only one car in the train. For six additional cents, it's less crowded and at rush hours, when the first-class carriages can get fairly crowded, too, the smell is, well, different. The strength is about the same, but the first-class crowd has a different bouquet. I realize this is a class-conscious remark, but it's true. The first-class smells better than the second. Let's be realistic. Drinks better wines. Uses better soap and more of it. Different smell. First class smell.

Well, you take a fellow like myself who splits himself up, travels second-class in the morning, first-class at night, what happens to him? Well, he changes personalities, that's what. When I travel second-class in the morning, I have different thoughts, different opinions. I glance at the people in the first-class carriage, hating them and their affluence. I read l'Humanite', the Communist paper, over somebody else's shoulder (if you're going to travel second-class, you can't afford to buy a paper, of course), I have a lot of second-class thoughts. Down with the bourgeois. Up workers! Vive de Gaulle!

Then night falls. I buy a first-class ticket. Right away everything changes. Your opinions, your stance. We stand much straighter, we bourgeois in the first-class, shoulders back, chin in, level-eyed, aristocratic. One glances occasionally at the jacquerie in the second-class, lip curling. Swine! One reads Le Monde—a bit stuffy but solid upper-class reading. Down with de Gaulle! Hang the poltroon on the nearest lamppost.

And, of course, one smells differently when traveling first-class. Better smell. Aristocratic. Impossible, you say, to smell more aristocratic in the evening than in the morning. Not at all. Not at all. If the Hindus can control their breathing (or is it their peristalsis?) we can control our smell. Question of self-discipline, that's all. You just think upper-class, you smell washed. Think lower-class, you smell unwashed. Try it.

Anyhow, during the strike all these fine distinctions went overboard. Everybody rode first-class! It was free, wasn't it? We were jammed like cattle in the first-class. Second-class cars, nobody. Upset all my finely-disciplined attitudes. Couldn't figure out whether to hate de Gaulle or love him. Smelled every which way. Very confusing.

One other thing about this strike. The hours of it. It started at 20 minutes after five in the morning. It ended at 20 minutes after one in the morning. Wouldn't you know the French would start a strike at 20 minutes after the hour and end it there, too?

The other last thought is that maybe the French have stumbled on a potent new working-class weapon. Always before the workers have tried to close the joint down, shut off production, throw up picket lines, and keep the customers out. But this kind of strike opens up a whole new can of peas. (I must try that expression out on the French sometime).

Instead of keeping the clients out, invite 'em in. Help yourself! Everybody! It's on the house! Take one home to the missus! You'd bring the employers to their knees in half the time.

Delayed Appendectomies Still Tempt Fate

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Good research often stems from small and out of the way places. Dr. G. A. Oliver and Dr. G. L. Watkins gathered statistics on ruptured appendicitis from a 75-bed rural hospital in Bonne Terre, Mo. In 13 years, 1,013 appendectomies were performed and of these, 128 had perforations of the organ, with peritonitis in 88.

Sixty children and 69 men and women over 50 were among the group with ruptured appendix. The only death occurred in a 70-year-old man. Such figures are in marked contrast to those of four decades ago wher performation and peritonitis meant death or prolonged disability.

Ordinary appendicitis is a relatively benign disease, provided the inflamed organ is removed within 24 hours. But the situation changes quickly when surgery is delayed and the infection allowed to continue until the appendix becomes gangrenous and ruptures.

The purulent material, including the intestinal contents, escapes into the abdominal cavity, leading to peritonitis or abscess. These complications are more serious and we can thank the antibiotics for their ability to control this type of infection.

The Bonne Terre hospital study showed that surgery was delayed 24 or more hours in 99 out of 128 persons in whom the appendix ruptured. In 44 per cent of this group the patient was responsible for the delay and in 24 per cent, the physician. But procrastination was not always due to neglect on the part of physician or patient.

In many instances, symptoms and findings were not typical of acute appendicitis and the diagnosis was difficult to make. In infants, children, and the elderly, symptoms are likely to be bizarre. Furthermore, older people fear surgery and don't consent to operations until obviously in trouble.

The physician often is overly cautious and hesitates to suggest surgery because of the criticism that follows removal of a normal appendix. The diagnosis becomes apparent as soon as the appendix ruptures but, by that time, it may be too late.

Appendicitis is still here. It may be tamed by the antibiotics but those who neglect treatment still tempt fate.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Once upon a time there was a steamship captain who had handled freighters for years and took it as a mortal insult when he was transferred to a spanking new deluxe passenger liner. In fact, he often declared forcefully that any landlubber passenger who dared to get seasick should be tossed overboard forthwith.

One day in a howling gale a deck steward made his way along a line of deck chairs warning the few passengers in sight that the skipper was in a foul mood and might put his idea into execution.

"Throw seasick passengers overboard?" croaked one unfortunate voyager — already green around the gills. "Here's a ten-dollar bill for you. Make sure I don't miss my turn!"

A druggist in Mamaroneck tried to sell a new facial cream to an old customer, but she told him, "Oh, no, you don't. A girl on television has been using it in the commercial for weeks and her face is still a mess!"

CANNED FOODS

L. W. writes: Are canned foods adulterated by the preservaties used?

REPLY

Not if the United States Food and Drug administration has anything to say about it.

CAP AND BALDNESS

H. G. writes: I wear a cap all day long on the job. Will this protect me from baldness or cause baldness?

REPLY

IMMATURE FIGURE

Mrs. L. I. writes: My 11½ year old daughter is quite slim and is self-conscious about her thin legs and thighs. Is there anything she or I could do to make them heavier?

REPLY

Tell your daughter to be patient and that she will develop a better figure within the next five years. Exercise such as ballet dancing will help enlarge the calf muscles.

NECK PAIN

D. S. writes: Could a 54 year old person with pain in the back of the neck have cancer or tuberculosis?

REPLY

Yes, but there are a dozen more likely causes of neck pain, including arthritis and muscular rheumatism.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Rum Duff

It's airy light and smooth, but boasts a flavor that's full, rich and lively. You taste apple and, along with the apple, pungent grated orange rind, rum, gingersnap bits and the cool velvet of whipped cream.

2 cups canned apple sauce
¼ cup sugar
3 tablespoons rum
(or 1 teaspoon rum extract)
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
2 cups broken gingersnaps
½ cup heavy cream, whipped

Combine apple sauce, sugar, rum, grated orange rind and gingersnaps. Stir until well mixed. Chill. Just before serving fold in whipped cream. Pile into sherbet glasses. If desired, top with additional cream and a sprinkle of chopped nuts. Makes 6-8 servings.

Quick Apple Cobbler

Comes out of the oven rich and crumbly on top, delicately crunchy with nuts within, and whiffing plumes of apple and cinnamon.

2 cups canned apple sauce
½ cup seedless raisins
½ cup light brown sugar
½ cup chopped walnuts
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup biscuit mix
½ cup sugar
¼ cup butter

Combine apple sauce, raisins, brown sugar, walnuts, cinnamon and nutmeg. Pour into 9" pie pan. Combine biscuit mix and sugar; cut in butter. Sprinkle evenly over apple sauce mixture. Bake in hot oven, 400 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes. Makes 4-5 servings.

Party Veal Steaks For Buffet Supper

Many a hostess planning a buffet supper for some special friends wants to think of something exotic to serve. Perhaps everything she thinks of is so ordinary and not quite suitable for the occasion. Here's a suggestion for that something different and delicious to serve—Party Veal Steaks.

Because veal comes from the young animal and contains little fat it is usually prepered by braising. In this moist heat cookery then a small amount of liquid is method the meat is browned first, added. The meat is then covered and allowed to simmer until tender.

The Jubilant Pork

1 egg, beaten
¼ cup milk
1½ cups fine, soft enriched bread crumbs
1½ teaspoons sage
¾ teaspoon celery salt
¾ teaspoon onion powder
6 boneless pork cutlets (3 to 4 ounces each)
¾ cup enriched flour
Fat for frying
12 slices enriched white bread
Butter or margarine
Cherry Sauce
Carrott sticks
Celery sticks

Combine egg and milk. Mix together bread crumbs, sage, celery salt and onion powder. Dredge meat in flour and work in well with fingertips. Dip in egg mixture and then roll in bread crumb mixture. Fry in deep hot fat (375 degrees F.) for 5 minutes or until meat comes to surface. Toast bread and spread with butter or margarine. Place whole piece of toast on each of six serving plates. Cut remaining slices of toast in half diagonally and place on opposite sides of whole pieces. Cover toast with Cherry Sauce*. Place meat on center slices. Spoon remaining Cherry Sauce over meat. Garnish plates with carrot and celery sticks.

*Cherry Sauce

3½ cups dark sweet pitted cherries (1-pound 13-ounce can), very well drained
1 cup red currant jelly (10-ounce jar)
¼ cup water
¼ cup cornstarch
1 tablespoon salt
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
2 tablespoons brandy flavoring

Drain cherries well, reserving about 1⅔ cups. Pour syrup into saucepan and add jelly. Heat to melt jelly. Combine cornstarch and water, mixing well. Add to sauce and cook until thick and clear, about 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Add salt, butter or margarine and brandy flavoring, mixing well. Stir in cherries. Keep warm until needed.

Yield: 6 sandwiches

To prepare our Party Veal Steaks for serving 6 you will want to purchase 2 pounds of veal round steak, cut ½ inch thick. First of all, cut the veal into 6 pieces.

For the crumb coating, mix together 1 beaten egg, 1 teaspoon of salt, ¼ teaspoon of pepper and 1½ teaspoons of paprika. Dip the veal pieces in the egg mixture and then in crumbs. You'll need about ⅓ cup of dry bread crumbs.

Brown the breaded veal in 3 tablespoons of lard or drippings. Then add to the meat one 4-ounce can of mushrooms and the mushroom liquid, along with ½ cup of water and 1 beef bouillon cube.

Season with 1 small clove garlic, minced. Then cover the cooking utensil tightly. Let the meat cook slowly for 45 minutes or until done.

When cooked, remove the meat to your serving platter. Then to the liquid in the pan add 1 cup of dairy sour cream and 2 tablespoons of capers. Cook only until heated through. Spoon some of the sauce over the veal steaks and serve the remaining in a gravy boat.

Party Veal Steaks

2 pounds veal round steak, cut ½ inch thick
1 egg, beaten
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1½ teaspoons paprika
⅓ cup dry bread crumbs
3 tablespoons lard or drippings
1 can (4 ounces) mushrooms
½ cup water
1 bouillon cube
1 small clove garlic, minced
1 cup dairy sour cream
2 tablespoons capers

Cut veal into 6 pieces. Mix together egg, salt, pepper, and paprika. Dip veal in egg mixture and then in crumbs. Brown in lard or drippings. Add mushrooms and mushroom liquid, water, bouillon cube and garlic. Cover tightly and cook slowly 45 minutes to 1 hour or until meat is done. Remove meat to platter. Add sour cream and capers to liquid in pan Cook only until heated through and serve sauce over veal. 6 servings.

Apple Sour Cream Pie

Sour cream, raisins and canned apple slices add up to one of the most piquant apple pies (or any pie) you'll meet anywhere.

And as an inspired finish . . . a buttered crumb top!

2 eggs
½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup sour cream
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 tablespoon lemon juice
⅓ cup seedless raisins
2½ cups (1 can) sliced apples
9"-10" unbaked pastry shell
⅓ cup flour
⅓ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
3 tablespoons butter

Beat eggs; add ½ cup sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, salt, sour cream, lemon rind and juice. Add raisins and apples; mix well. Pour into pastry shell. Bake in hot oven, 400 degrees, 10 minutes. Combine ⅓ cup flour, ⅓ cup sugar and nutmeg; cut in butter with 2 knives until crumbly. Sprinkle on apple filling; continue baking 30 to 35 minutes, or until brown and filling is set. Chill.

Chocolate Chip Cookies

½ c. shortening
⅓ c. granulated sugar
⅓ c. brown sugar
1 egg, well beaten
⅞ c. flour
½ tsp. soda
½ tsp. salt
½ c. Oat Cereal
2 Tbsps. hot water
1 tsp. vanilla
1 pkg. (6 oz.) semi-sweet chocolate pieces

Blend shortening, sugar and egg. Add flour, mixed and sifted with soda and salt. Add cereal, hot water, vanilla and chocolate. Drop by half teaspoons on greased cookie sheets. Bake at 375 degrees for 10-12 minutes. This recipe makes 50 cookies.

Cinnamon Apple Sauce A La Mode

The cinnamon here is cinnamon candies melting and lending their spicy sweetness to the apple sauce. There's lemon juice, too, for extra spark.

Add a scoop of you know what and serve to the Gleeful Young—and to their Dad. Or, simply by itself with a pour of cream.

2 cups canned apple sauce
⅓ cup cinnamon candies
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Vanilla ice cream

Combine apple sauce, cinnamon candies, sugar and lemon juice; chill. Stir before serving. Serve on vanilla ice cream balls. Makes 6 servings.

Cranberry Beverages

CRANBERRY PRUNE JUICE

1 cup Cranberry Juice Cocktail
1 egg
½ cup prune juice
4 ice cubes

Place all ingredients in electric blender or mixing bowl. (If mixing bowl is used, omit ice until ready to serve.) Beat until well mixed and frothy. Serve immediately. Makes 2 servings.

CRANBERRY FLIP

(It's pink and creamy, and nourshingly good).

For each glass, allow 1 heaping tablespoon of vanilla ice cream and ⅔ cup Cranberry Juice Cocktail. Beat with an egg beater or liquefier blender until light and frothy.

Quick Spaghetti Sauce That's Made With Beer

One of a cook's greatest boons during wonderful fall weather are quick and easy recipes for satisfying dishes.

Spaghetti is practically everybody's favorite, and a savory spaghetti sauce can be simply assembled. One of its luscious ingredients is tangy beer and ale, which adds subtle flavor to the other seasoning. Beef balls simmer in a sauce comprised of a bottle of chili sauce, a bottle of catchup, and a 12-ounce bottle or can of beer or ale. The sauce may be made ahead of time and frozen, so you'll have some handy whenever you need it.

Spaghetti's best friends are a crisp, mixed green salad, sliced Italian or French bread, and plenty of the picnickers' favorite brands of chilled, refreshing beer or ale.

The sauce may be made ahead of time and frozen, so you'll have some handy whenever you need it.

Spaghetti's best friends are a crisp, mixed green salad, sliced Italian or French bread, and plenty of the picnickers' favorite brands of chilled, refreshing beer or ale.

GROUND BEEF WITH TOMATO BEER SAUCE

2 pounds ground beef
½ teaspoon Tabasco
1 teaspoon dry mustard
2 teaspoons salt
1 onion, grated
1 tablespoon dried parsley flakes
2 teaspoons oil
1 bottle (12ounces) chili sauce
1 bottle (14 ounces) catchup
12 ounces (bottle or can) beer or ale

Combine ground beef, Tabasco, dry mustard, salt, onion and parsley flakes. Mix well. Form into 8 meat balls. Brown meat balls in oil. Combine sauce, catchup and beer. Add browned meat balls to sauce. Simmer 1 hour, stirring occasionally. Serve with spaghetti. Any remaining sauce may be frozen.

YIELD: 8 servings.

Savarin Ring

When this yeast ring comes hot and fragrant from the oven, you streak hot Cider Syrup over it to sink down through the brown top to form a thin sweet crust. Now pile the center with the special lemon-apple slices and serve in wedges with dollops of whipped cream.

½ cup milk
3 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons shortening
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 package dry yeast
2 eggs, beaten
3 cups sifted all-purpose flour, about
Hot Cider Syrup*
Easy Apples
Heavy cream, whipped

Scald milk; stir in sugar, salt and shortening. Cool until lukewarm. Measure lukewarm water in bowl; sprinkle in dry yeast. Let stand until dissolved; stir, add lukewarm milk mixture. Add eggs; mix well. Add enough flour to make a stiff dough. Knead into a smooth ball; place in greased bowl. Spread top with soft shortening. Cover with a clean towel; let rise until double in bulk.

Knead slightly; form into greased 3-quart mold measuring 11" in diameter. Cover; let rise until double in bulk. Bake in hot oven, 400 degrees, 25 minutes. Turn out upside down on plate. Spoon Hot Cider Syrup over ring, making sure it is absorbed into the ring. Cool. Fill center with Easy Apples. Serve with whipped cream. Makes 10-12 servings.

Hot Cider Syrup

Combine ¼ cup apple juice, ¾ cup light brown sugar and 3 tablespoons butter or margarine; bring to brisk boil. Spoon hot over ring.

*Easy Apples

5 cups (2 cans) sliced apples
⅔ cup sugar
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Combine apples, sugar, lemon rind and lemon juice; pour into shallow baking pan.

Bake in hot oven, 400 degrees, for 25 minutes, while the ring is baking. Chill.

Apple Date Cake

Here's a cake so plain and yet so special because it has goodly amounts of dates and chopped nuts stashed away in it.

And apple sauce . . . which helps keep it moist and fresh for days, and blesses with its own fine apple tang.

½ cup butter or margarine
2 cups suger
2 eggs
2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
1½ teaspoons baking soda
1½ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon allspice
1 cup chopped pitted dates
1½ cups canned apple sauce
½ cup chopped Brazil nuts

Cream together butter or margarine and sugar. Add eggs, one at a time, beating after each. Sift together flour, baking soda, salt, cinnamon, nutmeg and allspice. Add 2 tablespoons flour mixture to dates; mix until coated. To creamed mixture, add alternately flour mixture and apple sauce. Stir in dates and nuts. Pour into greased 12"x8"x2" pan. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, 1 hour or until done. Cool 5 to 10 minutes; remove from pan to cake rack. Makes 10-15 servings.

Serving suggestions: Serve warm with whipped cream or cold, sprinkled with confectioners sugar. Served with a tart hot lemon sauce, it makes a delicious dessert.

Spiced Bean Salade

1 lb. green beans—cooked whole
¼ tsp. dill seed or 1 tsp. fresh dill
½ c. chopped onion
½ c. crushed potato chips
Sharp French Dressing

Cook green beans with dill seed. Cool and mix in chopped onion and dress with Sharp French Dressing. Mix in crushed potato chips. Chill thoroughly and serve on bed of lettuce.

Apple Sauce Ginger Pie

Full of molasses-and-ginger-and-apple flavor ending with a whipped cream and crumbled almond candy topping. A pie to delight the young . . . and not-so-young.

3 eggs
2 cups canned apple sauce
½ cup light mild molasses
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ pint heavy cream, whipped
1 small almond candy bar

Beat eggs slightly; add apple sauce, molasses, sugar, ginger, nutmeg, salt, grated lemon rind and lemon juice. Mix well. Pour into pastry shell. Bake in hot oven, 400 degrees, 45 minutes or until an inserted knife in center comes out clean. Chill. Just before serving cover with whipped cream and top with candy bar, broken into small pieces. Makes 6-8 servings.

Orange Punch For Parties

Planing to shower an October bride? If you are you know such a special kind of party calls for especially delectable refreshments, prettily served. Most important is a cool, appealing beverage.

Fresh-frozen orange juice concentrate makes a wonderfully delicious, healthful drink—either by itself or in combination with other fruits. The concentrate is so economical to use—an average serving now costs approximately four cents.

Orange and banana flavors have a luscious affinity for each other, as the first sip of this delicious orange banana punch will prove. A molded ice of mashed bananas combined with Florida orange and grapefruit juices reposes in a punch bowl filled with reconstituted Florida orange juice concentrate and gingerale. Rosy-red strawberry slices make a pretty garnish. The delightful quality of this punch is that the mold melts slowly, mingling the rich banana taste with the orange juice and gingerale.

The frozen mold mixture is an ice of many guises: it may be served at meals with the meat course, or poured into refrigerator trays to make citrus popsicles or cubes for chilled fruit juices and soft drinks.

Orange Banana Punch

2 bananas
1 can (18 ounces) orange juice
1 can (18 ounces) grapefruit juice
Juice of 2 limes
⅔ cup sugar
2 cans (6 ounces each) frozen orange juice concentrate, reconstituted
1 quart gingerale

Mash bananas with fork or in blender until smooth. Combine with orange, grapefruit and lime juices; add sugar. Pour into 7-cup mold and freeze overnight or until firm. To unmold ice, dip quickly into warm water just to loosen. Invert and slip into punch bowl. Add orange juice and gingerale. Garnish mold with strawberry slices, if desired.

YIELD: About 15 ½-cup servings.

NOTE: Frozen mixture may also be used as citrus ice and served with meat course; or if poured into refrigerator trays, as citrus popsicles, cubes for glasses or orange juice, grapefruit juice, gingerale, etc.

Nippy Dip

Delectable tuna in vegetable oil comes to the party as a flavorful dip for chips, crackers, or Melba toast. Combine two 6½ or 7-ounce cans tuna in vegetable oil, 1 pint commercial sour cream, one 1½-ounce package dehydrated onion soup mix, and 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Mix well and chill. Makes 3½ cups.

Cranberry Chiffon Pie

1 envelope unflavored gelatine
¼ cup cold water
1 cup whole berry cranberry sauce (or jellied)
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
2 teaspoons lemon juice
2 egg whites
2 tablespoons sugar
8-inch baked pastry shell
½ pint heavy cream, whipped

Place gelatine in custard cup. Add cold water and let stand 2 minutes. Place custard cup in pan of boiling water until gelatine dissolves. Add to jellied cranberry sauce (beaten until saucy with egg beater), or whole cranberry sauce. Add salt, lemon rind, and lemon juice; chill until mixture begins to set. Beat egg whites until stiff and beat in sugar. Fold into cranberry mixture. Pour filling into baked pastry shell and chill until firm. Top with whipped cream, if desired.

Chocolate-Oat Sugar Balls

1 6-ounce package (1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate morsels
½ cup shortening
½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
1¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup rolled oats
Sugar

Melt semi-sweet chocolat morsels and shortening over hot (not boiling) water; blend. Remove from water; stir in sugar, egg and vanilla. Sift in flour, soda and salt. Add oats and mix well. Shape mixture into 1-inch balls. Place on greased cookie sheet and bake in a moderate oven (375°F.) 6 to 8 minutes. Roll in sugar while warm.

Yield: 7 dozen.

Quick Spaghetti Sauce That's Made With Beer

One of a cook's greatest boons during wonderful fall weather are quick and easy recipes for satisfying dishes.

Spaghetti is practically everybody's favorite, and a savory spaghetti sauce can be simply assembled. One of its luscious ingredients is tangy beer and ale, which adds subtle flavor to the other seasoning. Beef balls simmer in a sauce comprised of a bottle of chili sauce, a bottle of catchup, and a 12-ounce bottle or can of beer or ale. The sauce may be made ahead of time and frozen, so you'll have some handy whenever you need it.

Spaghetti's best friends are a crisp, mixed green salad, sliced Italian or French bread, and plenty of the picnickers' favorite brands of chilled, refreshing beer or ale.

GROUND BEEF WITH TOMATO BEER SAUCE

2 pounds ground beef
½ teaspoon Tabasco
1 teaspoon dry mustard
2 teaspoons salt
1 onion, grated
1 tablespoon dried parsley flakes
2 teaspoons oil
1 bottle (12ounces) chili sauce
1 bottle (14 ounces) catchup
12 ounces (bottle or can) beer or ale

Combine ground beef, Tabasco, dry mustard, salt, onion and parsley flakes. Mix well. Form into 8 meat balls. Brown meat balls in oil. Combine sauce, catchup and beer. Add browned meat balls to sauce. Simmer 1 hour, stirring occasionally. Serve with spaghetti. Any remaining sauce may be frozen.

YIELD: 8 servings.

Savarin Ring

When this yeast ring comes hot and fragrant from the oven, you streak hot Cider Syrup over it to sink down through the brown top to form a thin sweet crust. Now pile the center with the special lemon-apple slices and serve in wedges with dollops of whipped cream.

½ cup milk
3 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons shortening
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 package dry yeast
2 eggs, beaten
3 cups sifted all-purpose flour, about
Hot 'Cider Syrup*
Easy Apples
Heavy cream, whipped

Scald milk; stir in sugar, salt and shortening. Cool until lukewarm. Measure lukewarm water in bowl; sprinkle in dry yeast. Let stand until dissolved; stir, add lukewarm milk mixture. Add eggs; mix well. Add enough flour to make a stiff dough. Knead into a smooth ball; place in greased bowl. Spread top with soft shortening. Cover with a clean towel; let rise until double in bulk.

Knead slightly; form into greased 3-quart mold measuring 11" in diameter. Cover; let rise until double in bulk. Bake in hot oven, 400 degrees, 25 minutes. Turn out upside down on plate. Spoon Hot Cider Syrup over ring, making sure it is absorbed into the ring. Cool. Fill center with Easy Apples. Serve with whipped cream. Makes 10-12 servings.

Hot Cider Syrup

Combine ¼ cup apple juice, ¾ cup light brown sugar and 3 tablespoons butter or margarine; bring to brisk boil. Spoon hot over ring.

*Easy Apples

5 cups (2 cans) sliced apples
⅔ cup sugar
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Combine apples, sugar, lemon rind and lemon juice; pour into shallow baking pan.

Bake in hot oven, 400 degrees, for 25 minutes, while the ring is baking. Chill.

Apple Date Cake

Here's a cake so plain and yet so special because it has goodly amounts of dates and chopped nuts stashed away in it.

And apple sauce . . . which helps keep it moist and fresh for days, and blesses with its own fine apple tang.

½ cup butter or margarine
2 cups suger
2 eggs
2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
1½ teaspoons baking soda
1½ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon allspice
1 cup chopped pitted dates
1½ cups canned apple sauce
½ cup chopped Brazil nuts

Cream together butter or margarine and sugar. Add eggs, one at a time, beating after each. Sift together flour, baking soda, salt, cinnamon, nutmeg and allspice. Add 2 tablespoons flour mixture to dates; mix until coated. To creamed mixture, add alternately flour mixture and apple sauce. Stir in dates and nuts. Pour into greased 12"x8"x2" pan. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, 1 hour or until done. Cool 5 to 10 minutes; remove from pan to cake rack. Makes 10-15 servings.

Serving suggestions: Serve warm with whipped cream or cold, sprinkled with confectioners sugar. Served with a tart hot lemon sauce, it makes a delicious dessert.

Spiced Bean Salade

1 lb. green beans—cooked whole
¼ tsp. dill seed or 1 tsp. fresh dill
½ c. chopped onion
½ c. crushed potato chips
Sharp French Dressing

Cook green beans with dill seed. Cool and mix in chopped onion and dress with Sharp French Dressing. Mix in crushed potato chips. Chill thoroughly and serve on bed of lettuce.

Apple Sauce Ginger Pie

1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ pint heavy cream, whipped
1 small almond candy bar

Beat eggs slightly; add apple sauce, molasses, sugar, ginger, nutmeg, salt, grated lemon rind and lemon juice. Mix well. Pour into pastry shell. Bake in hot oven, 400 degrees, 45 minutes or until an inserted knife in center comes out clean. Chill. Just before serving cover with whipped cream and top with candy bar, broken into small pieces. Makes 6-8 servings.

Barbecued Chicken Tarragon

For a new version of an old favorite, marinate chicken for the barbecue in a tarragon-flavored mixture. For each chicken, combine 2 tablespoons Spanish olive oil, 1 teaspoon dried tarragon, a few drops of lemon juice, a teaspoon of instant minced onion, 2 tablespoons of dry white wine and 1 teaspoon salt. Blend ingredients thoroughly, mash to a paste (with mortar and pestle, if you have one), brush over all parts of chicken. Cover chicken with marinade at least one hour before placing over charcoal grill (or under broiler), four to six inches from heat.

WISE potato chips

Senate Cloakroom

by Sen. J. Glenn Beall

The 87th Congress came to an end Saturday the 13th. To the extent that it refused to pass bad bills, it was a "good" Congress. Virtually every proposal by the President was for either more executive power or more Federal spending, and Congress said "no" to many of these proposals. While passing numerous pieces of legislation that should benefit the nation's economy and the people as a whole, the 87th, during its second session especially, rejected, side-tracked, or ignored others that could have proved mischievous. Therefore, the 87th could be rated high.

Last week, at a Baltimore rally, the President declared that "no Congress in our time had a more exceptional two years of positive and progressive accomplishment" than the 87th Congress. This, coming from President Kennedy, is strange, in view of the fact that the 87th handed him one spectacular defeat after another. Here's the record:

"Medicare" — The King-Anderson "Medicare" Bill was defeated, despite an all-out propaganda campaign on the part of the White House to generate mass support for it. Congress refused to pass a bill which would have been a cruel hoax on the elderly. (The bill would not have paid any doctor or surgeon or dental fees, or even any hospital bills until after the patient had paid the first $90 plus a $20 diagnosis fee, and it would not have done a thing for the millions of elderly not already receiving benefits under the Social Security system, but "Medicare" would have provided free nursing care for the wealthy at the expense of the workingman.) In rejecting this hoax, Congress realized that the serious problem of medical care for the aged who need help was not going to be solved overnight by an ill-considered scheme which would be a step toward socialized medicine.

"Federal Aid to Education" — A Presidential message asserting that "no task before our nation is more important" than Federal aid to education failed to bring to life any shred of the Administration's ambitious program. The 87th Congress decided this was another snare and delusion, that the people would have to pay double for any such so-called "aid". Kennedy proposals that failed of enactment included: a $2,550,000,000 aid bill for public grade and high schools; a $2,674,000,000 college aid bill; a $925,000,000 medical education bill; a bill broadening the 1958 National Defense Education Act; a $748,000,000 proposal to improve quality of teaching; an adult education bill.

"Farm Controls" — Congress turned down the President's request for tighter controls over production of wheat and feed grains. A compromise was worked out continuing voluntary controls for 1963 and putting 1964 wheat production control on a bushel basis.

"Foreign Aid" — The President received a severe defeat on his request for foreign aid funds. Congress cut the proposed amount by $826,000,000, a cut which the President described as catastrophic.

"Tax Revision" — The tax bill which the President proposed was discarded. The bill written by the 87th Congress denied the President tax withholding on dividends and interest and other devices he wanted. It set up a tax-credit plan to encourage modernization of production facilities, and it raised levies on earnings of Americans abroad.

"Stand-By Tax Power"—Congress said a loud "no" to the President's request for stand-by power to change tax rates as he might choose.

"Department of Urban Affairs"—Congress turned down the President's request for authority to set up a new Cabinet-level department to administer urban affairs.

"Loyalty Oath"—Congress refused to remove the loyalty oath requirement in the National Defense Education Act. The President had asked for its removal.

"Mass Transit"—The plan for $500,000,000 in Federal aid to improve mass transit facilities in metropolitan areas, which had Administration backing, was on the casualty list in this Congress.

Congress also balked at these further Presidential proposals: "Aid for Migrants"; "More Federal Control over Unemployment Pay"; "Community Fallout Shelter Program"; "More Powers for the Federal Trade Commission"; and "Authority for Incoming President to Name the Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board."

Measures Passed

"Cuba"—Both Houses of Congress passed a strong Cuban resolution, not asked for by the President. It expressed the determination of the American people to prevent by whatever means may be necessary, including the use of arms, the Communist regime in Cuba from extending its aggressive or subversive activities to any part of this hemisphere.

"Call for Reserves"—Because of the tension resulting from the Cuban situation and the Berlin situation, Congress authorized the President to call up for active duty 150,000 reserves in our Armed Services. It also reiterated the determination of the American people to stand firm in Berlin.

"Defense Appropriations"—The 87th Congress made large new appropriations for missiles, naval vessels and aircraft to strengthen the free world defense. It also set up stricter regulations for Defense Department buying and contract negotiation procedures.

"Space Authorization" — Congress authorized $3,800,000,000 for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, including $263,000,000 for planetary and lunar trips. It also provided for a privately owned, Government-regulated satellite communications system for telephone and television purposes.

"Self-Employed Retirement"—The 87th Congress passed by a wide margin a bill which the President did not request, but which he signed as the session drew to a close: a bill to enable doctors, lawyers and other self-employed persons to set aside for their own retirement 10% of their income, and receive tax relief on part of the amount retired.

"National Debt Limit" — The Congress raised the national debt limit to $308,000,000,000 as a result of budget deficits in both 1961 and 1962. This was a book-keeping measure. (The damage had already been done—through overspending!)

"Foreign Trade & Tariffs"—The Trade Expansion Act of 1962 is referred to as a victory for the President over "the opposition", but here was a bill which received wide bipartisan support and virtually no opposition. The measure provides for Presidential authority to raise or lower tariffs to meet emergencies in the world market, with specified limitations. It also provides for aid to workers and industries adversely affected by lower import duties. Congress, against the President's wishes, wrote into the measure a provision removing Poland and Yugoslavia from the "more-favored-nations" category.

The 87th Congress also did the following (some of which were not requested by the President): Tightened Federal laws on testing, making and selling of drugs; Voted $5,069,000,000 worth of public works, including $900,000,000 for emergency projects in depressed areas; Raised Federal pay to match pay in private industry; Put new rules in employe pension funds to curb abuses; Expanded the Peace Corps; Increased postage stamp prices approximately 1c per item, up and down the line; Repealed the 10% Federal tax on rail and bus fares, and cut the air-fare tax to 5%; Inaugurated a plan for retraining idle workers; Appropriated $600,000,000 for the "Alliance for Progress" program in Latin American Countries; Established a 10-year program of oceanographic research and survey; Authorized an additional $200,000,000 in Federal loan authority for housing the elderly; Set up an all-channel requirement for new television sets.

I think it was a good Congress, not only for the bad measures it did not pass, but for the good measures it did pass. We in Congress try to follow the will of the people.

Food Guide

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Food shoppers will find a bevy of good protein buys rounded out by bountiful supplies of fresh seasonal fruits and vegetables at produce counters this weekend.

Leading the list of main dish selections are: Pork, particularly loin roasts; broiler-fryer chickens, also good for roasting; and turkeys of all sizes. Beef also will be a good buy in many areas. Economical fish offerings include such popular items as canned Maine sardines, canned tuna, fish sticks and fish portions. Eggs are in good supply and reasonably priced.

Best buys among the vegetables for this weekend are anise, artichokes, broccoli, bean sprouts, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, celery, endive - escarole, green onions, lettuce, mushrooms, onions, potatoes, spinach, sweet potatoes, pumpkins, and acorn and butternut squash.

Among the fruits, the best buys are avocados, limes, red grapes, and apples.

Dairy products continue to be abundant and are reasonably priced.

Among the meat items to be featured are steaks, chuck roasts, round roast, and lamb. In the pork line, loin roasts and smoked hams hold the spotlight. Broilers, fryers, and turkeys will also be good buys.

For good fish buys look to clams, fillets, lobsters, halibut, and oysters.

Cranberry Muffins

¾ cup fresh cranberries, halved
½ cup powdered sugar
2 cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup sugar
1 egg, well beaten
1 cup milk
4 tablespoons shortening, melted

Mix cranberry halves with powdered sugar and let stand while preparing muffin mixture. Sift dry ingredients, add egg, milk and melted shortening all at once; mix until dry ingredients are dampened; do not beat. Fold in sugared cranberries. Fill muffin tins ⅔ full. Bake in moderate oven 350° F. for 20 minutes. Makes 1 dozen.

Stuffed Green Peppers

Pick a pepper, plump and brilliantly green, filled with a bread and meat stuffing and enjoy this now abundant vegetable. From 6 large peppers, remove stem ends and seeds. Cut "shells" in half, lengthwise. For stuffing, combine 1½ pounds ground beef, 2 cups bread crumbs, 2 eggs, 1 cup tomato juice, 2 tablespoons chopped onion, salt and pepper. Blend in 3 tablespoons melted shortening or vegetable oil. Fill pepper shells with meat mixture. Bake in a (350°F.) oven for 45 minutes. Serve with tomato sauce.

Eggplant, Mushroom Bread Stuffing

Gorgeously purple hued, eggplant is no less a splash of splendor filled with a mushroom bread stuffing. To make: Quarter one large eggplant, lengthwise, remove pulp and cube. Parboil the eggplant "shells" for 5 minutes. Melt 2 tablespoons, each, of bacon drippings and butter; saute eggplant cubes and ¼ cup finely chopped onion. Combine 2 beaten eggs, 3 cups soft bread crumbs, ½ cup chopped mushrooms, ½ cup diced cooked bacon, ⅛ cup chili sauce, and 1 teaspoon salt. Add sauted cubes. Fill "shells" and bake on a shallow pan in a (350°F.) oven for 30 minutes.

Barbecued Chicken Tarragon

For a new version of an old favorite, marinate chicken for the barbecue in a tarragon-flavored mixture. For each chicken, combine 2 tablespoons Spanish olive oil, 1 teaspoon dried tarragon, a few drops of lemon juice, a teaspoon of instant minced onion, 2 tablespoons of dry white wine and 1 teaspoon salt. Blend ingredients thoroughly, mash to a paste (with mortar and pestle, if you have one), brush over all parts of chicken. Cover chicken with marinade at least one hour before placing over charcoal grill (or under broiler), four to six inches from heat.

Senate Cloakroom

by Sen. J. Glenn Beall

The 87th Congress came to an end Saturday the 13th. To the extent that it refused to pass bad bills, it was a "good" Congress. Virtually every proposal by the President was for either more executive power or more Federal spending, and Congress said "no" to many of these proposals. While passing numerous pieces of legislation that should benefit the nation's economy and the people as a whole, the 87th, during its second session especially, rejected, side-tracked, or ignored others that could have proved mischievous. Therefore, the 87th could be rated high.

Last week, at a Baltimore rally, the President declared that "no Congress in our time had a more exceptional two years of positive and progressive accomplishment" than the 87th Congress. This, coming from President Kennedy, is strange, in view of the fact that the 87th handed him one spectacular defeat after another. Here's the record:

"Medicare" — The King-Anderson "Medicare" Bill was defeated, despite an all-out propaganda campaign on the part of the White House to generate mass support for it. Congress refused to pass a bill which would have been a cruel hoax on the elderly. (The bill would not have paid any doctor or surgeon or dental fees, or even any hospital bills until after the patient had paid the first $90 plus a $20 diagnosis fee, and it would not have done a thing for the millions of elderly not already receiving benefits under the Social Security system, but "Medicare" would have provided free nursing care for the wealthy at the expense of the workingman.) In rejecting this hoax, Congress realized that the serious problem of medical care for the aged who need help was not going to be solved overnight by an ill-considered scheme which would be a step toward socialized medicine.

"Federal Aid to Education" — A Presidential message asserting that "no task before our nation is more important" than Federal aid to education failed to bring to life any shred of the Administration's ambitious program. The 87th Congress decided this was another snare and delusion, that the people would have to pay double for any such so-called "aid". Kennedy proposals that failed of enactment included: a $2,550,000,000 aid bill for public grade and high schools; a $2,674,000,000 college aid bill; a $925,000,000 medical education bill; a bill broadening the 1958 National Defense Education Act; a $748,000,000 proposal to improve quality of teaching; an adult education bill.

"Farm Controls" — Congress turned down the President's request for tighter controls over production of wheat and feed grains. A compromise was worked out continuing voluntary controls for 1963 and putting 1964 wheat production control on a bushel basis.

"Foreign Aid" — The President received a severe defeat on his request for foreign aid funds. Congress cut the proposed amount by $826,000,000, a cut which the President described as catastrophic.

"Tax Revision" — The tax bill which the President proposed was discarded. The bill written by the 87th Congress denied the President tax withholding on dividends and interest and other devices he wanted. It set up a tax-credit plan to encourage modernization of production facilities, and it raised levies on earnings of Americans abroad.

"Stand-By Tax Power"—Congress said a loud "no" to the President's request for stand-by power to change tax rates as he might choose.

"Department of Urban Affairs"—Congress turned down the President's request for authority to set up a new Cabinet-level department to administer urban affairs.

MUSSELMAN'S APPLE CAPITAL U.S.A.

Roulade Of Beef In Beer Sauce

A main dish to tempt the palate of royalty—It is the perfect dish for the "fussy" guest.

6 ¼-inch slices of beef round
3 carrots, peeled
3 leeks
3 dill pickles
3½ cups beer
⅓ cup butter
1½ cups beef stock
1 tablespoon cornstarch
¼ cup cold water
1 cup sour cream

Cut each beef slice into two pieces about 3 x 6 inches. Cut carrots, leeks and pickles into quarters. Trim to a 3-inch length. Place one strip carrot, one strip leek and one strip pickle on each piece of meat. Roll meat like a jelly roll and fasten with a toothpick. Place beef rolls in a bowl. Cover with 2 cups of beer. After 2 hours drain.

Melt butter in a skillet. Brown beef rolls on all sides. Remove from skillet and place in a 2-quart casserole. Cover with a mixture of beef stock and remaining beer. Cover and simmer on top of range until meat is tender (approximately 1½ hours).

Remove rolls and place in serving dish. Blend cornstarch with cold water. Add mixture to sour cream. Gradually add sour cream mixture to the hot meat stock remaining in the casserole. Cook, stirring constantly over a low flame until sauce thickens. Do not boil. Pour sauce over meat, glazing entire surface.

Serves 6.

Buffet Meat Tray Designing

If now and then you're bored with cooking, try something new — a new recipe or a different way of serving a routine food. Or here's another idea. For dinner some night soon bring on an elegant buffet meat try.

Get out your large wooden or pottery platter, then use all your artistic ability to transform it into a tray befitting the finest of smorgasbords.

For instance, you might center the platter with tasty potato salad. Garnish the salad with quarters of hard-cooked egg and with tomato wedges. Then around the salad place an artful arrangement of meats. Overlap slices of liver sausage and salami. "Boiled" ham rolls or cornucopias will be conversation pieces.

To make the "boiled" ham rolls, place 1 teaspoon of pickle relish on top of each ham slice, then roll up and fasten with wooden picks. For cornucopias, roll meat into cones, then fill with chive cottage cheese.

Another unexpected addition to your cold meat tray can be clever meat kabobs. Cut a 12-ounce can of luncheon meat into ½-inch cubes. Then alternately thread the cubes and burr pickles or slices of pickle or pineapple cubes on the skewers.

When buying meats for a cold meat tray choose with a thought to variety in flavor, in color and in shape. Here are some other suggestions for your list; bologna, veal loaf, pickle and pimiento loaf, corned beef, spiced ham, pepper loaf, thuringer, braunschweiger.

Many of our luncheon meats originated in European countries. Braunschweiger gets its name from Brunswich, Germany. Braunschweiger is liver sausage that has been smoked. It is slightly darker in color than liver sausage due to this smoking process.

Molded gelatin salads are perfect with these hand ready-to-serve meats too. You migh prepare a cherry salad ring mold, then unmold it in the center of the tray. You can fill the ring with cottage cheese sprinkled with paprika. Or you might have a tomato aspic ring served filled with ripe green olives.

A lime gelatin mold outlined with crisp relishes is another choice. Tomato cups filled with cole slaw or with cottage cheese will lend interest to your platter, also.

Peanut-Honey Ice Cream

Yield: 2 quarts

½ cup peanut butter
½ cup strained honey
1 cup whipping cream
3 cups milk
2 cups Vanilla Freezing Mix

In mixing bowl combine peanut butter and honey; add ½ cup of the milk and beat until mixture is creamy. Gradually blend in remaining milk and cream. Beat freezing mix into milk mixture. Pour into can of 2-quart ice cream freezer and freeze as directed.

Directions for freezing ice cream or sherbet using electric or hand ice cream freezer:

Place mixture to be frozen in can of freezer; insert dasher and cover.

Place can in tub of freezer and put motor or handle in place.

Start freezer operating. As can turns place crushed ice and coarse rock salt around can. For ice cream use 1 part salt to 6 parts ice; for sherbet use 1 part salt to 8 parts ice.

When ice cream or sherbet mixture has frozen to consistency of heavy whipped cream it has been churned sufficiently. Remove dasher, cover well and pack with more ice and salt. Let stand until frozen hard.

Vanilla Strata Pudding

Spoon in three layers into serving dishes.

Hot vanilla pudding, made from mix

Top each of first 2 layers with ¼ tsp. instant coffee.

In 1895 the Supreme Court ruled the income tax unconstitutional, as a direct tax not apportioned equally according to population, as the Constitution required.

Double Fudge Pennant Brownies

1¼ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 package Chocolate Quick Fudge Mix
2 eggs
½ cup butter or margarine
3 tablespoons water
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 6-ounce package semi-sweet chocolate pieces
12-14 4-inch licorice sticks

Sift together into mixing bowl the flour, baking powder and salt. Add quick fudge mix, eggs, butter or margarine, water and vanilla; mix well. Spread batter in greased 9-inch square pan. Bake 30-35 minutes at 350 degrees F. Remove from oven; sprinkle chocolate pieces over top of hot brownies. Spread chocolate evenly as it melts. Cool. Cut brownies in half; cut each half into 6 or 7 triangles to form "pennants". To make "stick" or pennant insert a licorice stick into wide end of each triangle. If desired, pipe confectioner's icing around edges of each brownie. (To make confectioner's icing blend ½ cup sifted confectioner's sugar with 1½ teaspoon milk).

WIFE PRESERVERS

Prevent stretching in neck and cuffs of a hand-knit sweater by knitting sewing silk of matching color right in with the wool in the first few rows of these sections.

Give discolored elbows a beauty bleach by rubbing them with the hollow rind of half a lemon; follow with a sudsy wash, then rinse and dry well to prevent chapping.

Stale vegetables can be freshened by soaking them for an hour in cold water to which a little vinegar or lemon juice has been added.

Top Off Skating Party With Carrot Spice Cake

For those late evening get-togethers after enjoying your favorite wintertime sport, be it ice skating, tobogganing or skiing, you'll need something pretty special to satisfy the hearty appetites of your guests.

If you want something a little different, you might try a good old-fashioned carrott spice cake, which has a taste and flavor distinctively its own. Its rich, spice flavor combines with nutritious carrott bits to provide a he-man dessert that will top off your evening of sport and fun.

Secret to making this delicious cake is the shredding of the carrots. It's important that they be shredded very fine and uniformly and mixed thoroughly into the batter.

The fastest and most efficient way to shred carrots is with a mixer attachment. Such an attachment is made by Hobart for all models of its KitchenAid mixer line. The 1½ cups of shredded carrots, needed for the carrot spice cake, can be turned out on the mixer attachment in a matter of seconds. In fact, you can grate the nuts on the same attachment.

From the KitchenAid test kitchens, here's the recipe:

Carrott Spice Cake

1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon mace
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup butter
2 cups sugar
4 eggs
2½ cups sifted, all purpose flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
⅓ cup hot water
1½ cups finely shredded carrots
⅔ cup nuts, chopped or grated fine.

Beat spices and salt into butter in mixer, beating well until fluffy. Gradually add sugar, beating well after each addition. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Sift flour with baking powder and add alternately with hot water. Continue to beat batter ½ minute. Fold in carrots and nuts. Turn batter into well greased and lightly floured 9 by 12 by 2 inch baking pan. Bake at 375 degrees for 35 minutes. Cool in pan 10 minutes. Turn out frost with the following icing.

Date and Nut Topping

1 cup sugar
1 cup evaporated milk
4 egg yolks, lightly beaten
½ cup butter
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 cup shredded coconut
1 cup chopped nuts
⅔ cup chopped dates

Combine sugar, milk, egg yolks and butter in saucepan. Stir and cook over medium heat 12 minutes or until thickened. Remove from heat and stir in vanilla, coconut, nuts and dates. Beat until of spreading consistency. Spread on top of cake.

COTTAGE CHEESE

Protein for only pennies a serving

Taste a spoonful of cottage cheese. Notice that full, rich flavor...that firm, velvety texture. It's the best protein food you could put on your table, so inexpensively. Order some today. It's Dual Thermal Controlled for precision pasteurization.

Roulade Of Beef In Beer Sauce

A main dish to tempt the palate of royalty—It is the perfect dish for the "fussy" guest.

6 ¼-inch slices of beef round
3 carrots, peeled
3 leeks
3 dill pickles
3½ cups beer
⅓ cup butter
1½ cups beef stock
1 tablespoon cornstarch
¼ cup cold water
1 cup sour cream

Cut each beef slice into two pieces about 3 x 6 inches. Cut carrots, leeks and pickles into quarters. Trim to a 3-inch length. Place one strip carrot, one strip leek and one strip pickle on each piece of meat. Roll meat like a jelly roll and fasten with a toothpick. Place beef rolls in a bowl. Cover with 2 cups of beer. After 2 hours drain.

Melt butter in a skillet. Brown beef rolls on all sides. Remove from skillet and place in a 2-quart casserole. Cover with a mixture of beef stock and remaining beer. Cover and simmer on top of range until meat is tender (approximately 1½ hours).

Remove rolls and place in serving dish. Blend cornstarch with cold water. Add mixture to sour cream. Gradually add sour cream mixture to the hot meat stock remaining in the casserole. Cook, stirring constantly over a low flame until sauce thickens. Do not boil. Pour sauce over meat, glazing entire surface.

Serves 6.

Buffet Meat Tray Designing

If now and then you're bored with cooking, try something new — a new recipe or a different way of serving a routine food. Or here's another idea. For dinner some night soon bring on an elegant buffet meat try.

Get out your large wooden or pottery platter, then use all your artistic ability to transform it into a tray befitting the finest of smorgasbords.

For instance, you might center the platter with tasty potato salad. Garnish the salad with quarters of hard-cooked egg and with tomato wedges. Then around the salad place an artful arrangement of meats. Overlap slices of liver sausage and salami. "Boiled" ham rolls or cornucopias will be conversation pieces.

To make the "boiled" ham rolls, place 1 teaspoon of pickle relish on top of each ham slice, then roll up and fasten with wooden picks. For cornucopias, roll meat into cones, then fill with chive cottage cheese.

Another unexpected addition to your cold meat tray can be clever meat kabobs. Cut a 12-ounce can of luncheon meat into ½-inch cubes. Then alternately thread the cubes and burr pickles or slices of pickle or pineapple cubes on the skewers.

When buying meats for a cold meat tray choose with a thought to variety in flavor, in color and in shape. Here are some other suggestions for your list; bologna, veal loaf, pickle and pimiento loaf, corned beef, spiced ham, pepper loaf, thuringer, braunschweiger.

Many of our luncheon meats originated in European countries. Braunschweiger gets its name from Brunswich, Germany. Braunschweiger is liver sausage that has been smoked. It is slightly darker in color than liver sausage due to this smoking process.

Molded gelatin salads are perfect with these hand ready-to-serve meats too. You migh prepare a cherry salad ring mold, then unmold it in the center of the tray. You can fill the ring with cottage cheese sprinkled with paprika. Or you might have a tomato aspic ring served filled with ripe green olives.

A lime gelatin mold outlined with crisp relishes is another choice. Tomato cups filled with cole slaw or with cottage cheese will lend interest to your platter, also.

Top Off Skating Party With Carrot Spice Cake

For those late evening get-togethers after enjoying your favorite wintertime sport, be it ice skating, tobogganing or skiing, you'll need something pretty special to satisfy the hearty appetites of your guests.

If you want something a little different, you might try a good old-fashioned carrott spice cake, which has a taste and flavor distinctively its own. Its rich, spice flavor combines with nutritious carrott bits to provide a he-man dessert that will top off your evening of sport and fun.

Secret to making this delicious cake is the shredding of the carrots. It's important that they be shredded very fine and uniformly and mixed thoroughly into the batter.

The fastest and most efficient way to shred carrots is with a mixer attachment. Such an attachment is made by Hobart for all models of its KitchenAid mixer line. The 1½ cups of shredded carrots, needed for the carrot spice cake, can be turned out on the mixer attachment in a matter of seconds. In fact, you can grate the nuts on the same attachment.

From the KitchenAid test kitchens, here's the recipe:

Carrott Spice Cake

1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon mace
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup butter
2 cups sugar
4 eggs
2½ cups sifted, all purpose flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
⅓ cup hot water
1½ cups finely shredded carrots
⅔ cup nuts, chopped or grated fine.

Beat spices and salt into butter in mixer, beating well until fluffy. Gradually add sugar, beating well after each addition. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Sift flour with baking powder and add alternately with hot water. Continue to beat batter ½ minute. Fold in carrots and nuts. Turn batter into well greased and lightly floured 9 by 12 by 2 inch baking pan. Bake at 375 degrees for 35 minutes. Cool in pan 10 minutes. Turn out frost with the following icing.

Date and Nut Topping

1 cup sugar
1 cup evaporated milk
4 egg yolks, lightly beaten
½ cup butter
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 cup shredded coconut
1 cup chopped nuts
⅔ cup chopped dates

Combine sugar, milk, egg yolks and butter in saucepan. Stir and cook over medium heat 12 minutes or until thickened. Remove from heat and stir in vanilla, coconut, nuts and dates. Beat until of spreading consistency. Spread on top of cake.

Peanut-Honey Ice Cream

Yield: 2 quarts

½ cup peanut butter
½ cup strained honey
1 cup whipping cream
3 cups milk
2 cups Vanilla Freezing Mix

In mixing bowl combine peanut butter and honey; add ½ cup of the milk and beat until mixture is creamy. Gradually blend in remaining milk and cream. Beat freezing mix into milk mixture. Pour into can of 2-quart ice cream freezer and freeze as directed.

Directions for freezing ice cream or sherbet using electric or hand ice cream freezer:

Place mixture to be frozen in can of freezer; insert dasher and cover.

Place can in tub of freezer and put motor or handle in place.

Start freezer operating. As can turns place crushed ice and coarse rock salt around can. For ice cream use 1 part salt to 6 parts ice; for sherbet use 1 part salt to 8 parts ice.

When ice cream or sherbet mixture has frozen to consistency of heavy whipped cream it has been churned sufficiently. Remove dasher, cover well and pack with more ice and salt. Let stand until frozen hard.

Vanilla Strata Pudding

Spoon in three layers into serving dishes.

Hot vanilla pudding, made from mix

Top each of first 2 layers with ¼ tsp. instant coffee.

In 1895 the Supreme Court ruled the income tax unconstitutional, as a direct tax not apportioned equally according to population, as the Constitution required.

Double Fudge Pennant Brownies

1¼ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 package Chocolate Quick Fudge Mix
2 eggs
½ cup butter or margarine
3 tablespoons water
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 6-ounce package semi-sweet chocolate pieces
12-14 4-inch licorice sticks

Sift together into mixing bowl the flour, baking powder and salt. Add quick fudge mix, eggs, butter or margarine, water and vanilla; mix well. Spread batter in greased 9-inch square pan. Bake 30-35 minutes at 350 degrees F. Remove from oven; sprinkle chocolate pieces over top of hot brownies. Spread chocolate evenly as it melts. Cool. Cut brownies in half; cut each half into 6 or 7 triangles to form "pennants". To make "stick" or pennant insert a licorice stick into wide end of each triangle. If desired, pipe confectioner's icing around edges of each brownie. (To make confectioner's icing blend ½ cup sifted confectioner's sugar with 1½ teaspoon milk).

WIFE PRESERVERS

Prevent stretching in neck and cuffs of a hand-knit sweater by knitting sewing silk of matching color right in with the wool in the first few rows of these sections.

Give discolored elbows a beauty bleach by rubbing them with the hollow rind of half a lemon; follow with a sudsy wash, then rinse and dry well to prevent chapping.

Stale vegetables can be freshened by soaking them for an hour in cold water to which a little vinegar or lemon juice has been added.

Week's Food Economies

Have you included the dark green leafy vegetables in your meal plans this week? Seasonal supplies of vegetables offer economy as well as nutritive value, says Virginia McLuckie, food economist in the Baltimore Office of the University of Maryland Department of Markets.

On the best buy list are broccoli, kale and spinach, all excellent dark green vegetables. Broccoli is grown for its thickened, profuse, underdeveloped flowers and flower stalks instead of for its leaves. There are many ways to serve broccoli while it is seasonal and attractively priced.

The fall crop of spinach and kale is at a seasonal peak. Like other vegetables, greens should be selected carefully. Freshness is the most important quality, as crisp, green leaves free from blemishes will help insure good value for the money spent. One pound bulk or one 10-ounce film bag will provide three servings. The green leafy vegetables and dark green vegetables such as broccoli are excellent sources of Vitamin A and minerals. The cooking of kale can be speeded up considerably by removing the stems and midribs from the leaf.

Sweet potatoes are low in cost and high in food value, particularly Vitamin A and energy-producing cvarbohydrates. These potatoes on the market are newly dug and uncured. The best way to cook a sweet potato is in the jacket. The thin skins slip off easily, even on irregularly shaped potatoes.

Mushroom are in heavier supply, with prices attractive. Light causes mushrooms to turn dark in a very short time and this detracts from the appearance. Look for those with a snowy white cap that is tightly closed around the stem.

Apples and tokay grapes are the best fruit buys. With Halloween near, apples for treats and apples on a stick are the delight of youngsters. Make full use of apples and grapes for dessert and nibbling. Small Florida oranges are available.

Medium-size eggs are the best buy. Grade A eggs are recommended. Other suggestions are broiler-fryer chickens and sea bass.

Mock Creme Brulee

A dessert to fascinate the family because it offers such delicious surprises, one for each layer starting with the caramelized brown sugar topping. (Whee, Mom, candy!)

- 1 cup graham cracker crumbs
- ⅓ cup chopped walnuts
- 2 cups canned apple sauce
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 2 packages regular vanilla pudding
- 3 cups milk
- 1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
- 3 tablespoons brown sugar

Combine graham cracker crumbs with nuts, spread evenly in the bottom of a 9"x9"x2" pan. Bake in a 425 degree oven for 10 minutes. Cool. Spread apple sauce over graham layer. Sprinkle with cinnamon. Refrigerate.

Combine pudding with milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Add vanilla. Cool, stirring occasionally to prevent crust from forming. Pour gently over apple sauce-cinnamon layer; refrigerate.

Sprinkle brown sugar over the top of the pudding. Run under the broiler for 3 to 5 minutes until sugar forms crust and is caramelized. Refrigerate again until serving time. Makes 8-10 servings.

Eggs have the same kind of high quality protein found in meat and milk.

Homecoming Queen And Attendants

"Miss Catamount XXIV," the homecoming queen at Potomac State College, and her attendants are shown on their float during the annual parade sponsored by the Circle K Club last Saturday in Keyser. Reigning over the day's activities was Miss Carolyn Castelli of Weirton, shown waving to the crowd. On the left is Miss Dolores Fitzgerald of Keyser and at the right Miss Ingrid Pearson of Parkersburg.

Treat Night Set For Friday At Frostburg

Whistle To Mark Start At 6:30

FROSTBURG — Street Commissioner William Preston announced final plans for the "Trick-or-Treat" night Friday which is being sponsored by the City Council.

Preston said that the fire whistle will be blown at 6:30 p.m. as a signal that the activity has begun and any resident desiring to treat the children has been asked to turn on porch lights. This is an annual program of the City Council which has asked that the children refrain from the Halloween visit until Friday. It has also been pointed out by some residents that unless the scaping of windows discontinues there will be no welcome for the children Friday. The children have also been asked by the council to refrain from any prank that would destroy property or cause an inconvenience to a resident.

To climax the annual Halloween celebration, the council will also cooperate with the firemen by sponsoring the annual mummers parade Monday evening. Children have been asked to congregate on High Street where the parade will form. Again a fire whistle will be blown announcing the formation and the beginning of the parade. The line of march will be East on Main Street from High Street to Bowery. A gift will be given at the conclusion of the parade to all participants. Numerous bands of local communities and high schools will participate in the parade.

Maplehurst Women Install Officers

New officers of the Women's Golf Association of the Maplehurst Country Club at Frostburg were installed at the annual meeting held recently in the club house. Patterson Creek Flood Prevention Plan Approved

FORT ASHBY, W. Va. — A work plan for the flood prevention in the Patterson Creek sub-watershed has been approved under terms of the Federal Flood Control Act of 1944.

This is considered a landmark in the protection and development of one of the major tributary valleys of the North Branch of the Potomac River.

The scope of the project ranks second only to that of the well-advanced Moorefield River program supervised by the U.S. Soil Conservation Service. Both Moorefield River, also known as the South Fork of the South Branch of the Potomac, and Patterson Creek flow through West Virginia headwaters of the Potomac.

There are many benefits of the proposed program. Its aims are quoted as follows:

"It will assist in providing floodwater protection to dwellings, roads, fields, crops and businesses. It will permit more intensive land use by reducing damage to land in the flood regions, and also make uplands, presently decreasing in value as a result of erosion, once again attractive and productive. The entire economy will be improved as agricultural and forest income is increased. The plan also will provide increased recreational facilities such as fishing, boating and picnicking."

Also incorporated into the project is a feature that will provide a satisfactory water supply for this community.

Specified in the plan for the 131,248-acre sub-watershed are 35 streamflow retarding structures. One of them would be multi-purpose in that it would provide a 60 million gallon water storage reservoir for this town of 500 inhabitants. Fort Ashby, like many other communities in the Potomac Basin, is having trouble with septic tank seepage into drinking wells.

The other small earth-fill dams are for the exclusive purpose of holding back flood waters. These floods have proved relatively disastrous over the years. The elevation drop over the 38-mile long valley is from 3,500 feet at the source of the creek to 560 feet where it enters the North Branch of the Potomac below Cumberland.

Average annual flood damage amounts to more than $185,000. A single 1959 flood wrought $300,000 damage to land, crops, buildings and roads — and two of the roads inundated were U.S. Route 50 and U.S. Route 220.

With the protection afforded by the small dams, plus improvements to the management of the land itself, the average annual benefits of the program are estimated at $275,000. Total cost of the program is estimated at $5.8 million with about four-fifths being borne by the Federal government.

KHS QUEEN — Miss Jeanette Shepp, daughter of Mrs. Mildred G. Shepp, 35 A Street, Keyser, will reign as queen during homecoming activities today and Friday at Keyser High School. Treat Night Set For Friday At Frostburg

Whistle To Mark Start At 6:30

FROSTBURG — Street Commissioner William Preston announced final plans for the "Trick-or-Treat" night Friday which is being sponsored by the City Council.

Preston said that the fire whistle will be blown at 6:30 p.m. as a signal that the activity has begun and any resident desiring to treat the children has been asked to turn on porch lights. This is an annual program of the City Council which has asked that the children refrain from the Halloween visit until Friday. It has also been pointed out by some residents that unless the scaping of windows discontinues there will be no welcome for the children Friday. The children have also been asked by the council to refrain from any prank that would destroy property or cause an inconvenience to a resident.

To climax the annual Halloween celebration, the council will also cooperate with the firemen by sponsoring the annual mummers parade Monday evening. Children have been asked to congregate on High Street where the parade will form. Again a fire whistle will be blown announcing the formation and the beginning of the parade. The line of march will be East on Main Street from High Street to Bowery. A gift will be given at the conclusion of the parade to all participants. Numerous bands of local communities and high schools will participate in the parade.

Miss Florence Ann Brown is shown holding an engraved trophy she received last week at Calvert Hall School in Baltimore for having placed second in a state-wide essay contest entitled "Reverent Youth — Loyal Leaders" sponsored by the Catholic Youth Organization. Rev. Frederick Duke, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church, Lonaconing, who also is moderator of the Lonaconing C.Y.O., is shown presenting her with a C.Y.O. award emblem. This is the first Western Maryland award in a C.Y.O. activity. Father Duke and Miss Brown attended the convention in Baltimore along with James Ryan, Tom Devlin, Mary Lee Brant, Barbara Ann Hadley, Andrea Bowden and Margaret Ann Rooney. A Halloween party is the next C.Y.O. project. It will be held next Wednesday in the parish hall. The public is invited.

75 Per Cent Of Spoil Banks Are Planted

West Virginia Report Cited

MORGANTOWN, W. Va.—Successful stands of trees were established on nearly 75 per cent of the spoil bank area planting in West Virginia prior to 1959, according to James H. Brown, assistant silviculturist of the West Virginia University Agricultural Experiment Station. Partially-successful stands were obtained on approximately 20 per cent of the planted area, and failures occurred on only about 6 per cent.

The Experiment Station silviculturist presented this finding in a discussion of his research with forest tree species in revegetating strip mine spoil banks. More than 70,000 acres of land in 36 West Virginia counties have been so mined.

Since 1945, West Virginia law has required that strip mine lands be planted or seeded with trees, shrubs, grasses, or vines. In other states, the planting of tree seedlings is a common practice for this purpose, but only a relatively small area has been so treated in West Virginia.

To obtain more information about the value of forest tree species in revegetating stripped areas in West Virginia, the Experiment Station has been conducting a study of presently-existing plantings to evaluate their success, and to study the effects of various site factors on the establishment and growth of tree seedlings planted on spoil areas.

In 1959, Brown visited practically all of the plantings existing in the State at that time. He did not attempt to evaluate areas that had been disturbed by grazing or restripping, nor areas where the plantings were not at least two years old. No experimental plantings were involved.

Survivals of the different species was generally quite good, with averages ranging from 48.7 to 80.3 per cent. Low survival, in most instances, could be attributed to excessive soil acidity or to extreme exposure.

Brown found that black locust was particularly outstanding in providing stabilization and cover on spoil banks. The average survival of this species was 68.7 per cent, and 80 per cent of the black locust stands were rated as successful.

Of the conifers planted in large numbers, on the spoils, Scotch pine, red pine and white pine were particularly good. Nearly 68 per cent of the conifer stands were considered to be successful. Twenty per cent were rated as partially successful, and only 12 per cent were considered to be failures.

A major cause of mortality and poor growth on many spoils, Brown pointed out, was poor planting practices. Shovel root, planting too shallow, and planting to deep were noted on many banks where stands were poor.

A detailed report of this phase of the Experiment Station's research with spoil banks has been published as Bulletin 473, entitled "Success of Tree Planting on Strip-Mined Areas in West Virginia." Copies may be obtained from county offices of the Cooperative Extension Service, or by writing directly to the Experiment Station in Morgantown.

Rep. Staggers Urges Presidential Action

KEYSER—Congressman Harley O. Staggers (D-W. Va.) yesterday urged President Kennedy to hasten approval of seven federal projects in the Second Congressional District of West Virginia.

Three of the projects involve road construction, two flood control, National Forest improvement and a post office facility. They are as follows:

(1) Multiple-development of roads, structures, recreation facilities, research facilities, reforestation and timber-system improvement in the counties of Grant, Pendleton, Pocahontas, Randolph, Tucker and Webster; (2) Road improvement on the Ronceverte-White Sulphur Springs Federal Highway 98; (3) A second road improvement project on the same highway in Greenbrier County; (4) New bridge in Pocahontas County on Federal Highway 45; (5) Flood control project at Bayard, Grant County; (6) Flood protection in the Ridgeley, West Virginia-Cumberland, Maryland, area and (7) Post office facility at Buckhannon.

Rep. Staggers stressed in his appeal to the President that early approval of these projects would help to redeem the Kennedy's pledge to promote economic recovery in West Virginia.

The projects are estimated to cost $1,688,000. Some 55,000 man-days of labor would be required. Labor and materials requirements would help to reduce unemployment and provide business for local concerns. The projects would open up new areas for business enterprises and stimulate local initiative.

One of the nicest things that can happen to any company is to be recognized as a good place to work. That's why your electric company feels a special warmth for the 528 members of its Quarter Century Club — men and women who have been with the company for over 25 years. This week, as the Club welcomes 46 new members, we salute this fine group of employees, active and retired, of which the entire company is so proud.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, — No star ever wants to see his Broadway show close, but Van Johnson won't have to worry about where his next caviar and crepe suzettes are coming from. Hal Wallis has signed Van, long absent from Hollywood movies, for the lead opposite Shirley MacLaine in "First Wife."

For the past few weeks, ever since it opened on Broadway, Van's play "Come On Strong" has been teetering at the box-office. But he would not be long among the unemployed as Wallis is putting "First Wife" into production in January, his first film of 1963.

Hal tells me he made up his mind to put Van opposite Shirley in this comedy about a struggling writer supported by his wife, when he saw him in London in "Music Man."

Elia Kazan has so many talents as a Broadway and movie director, producer, artist, that I never thought he'd unveil a new one.

But in 10 days the publishing house of Stein and Day in New York is bringing out Kazan's first novel, "America America." The first book he has ever written, it is the literary budding of the motion picture he is now making in Greece of the same title.

Story is about a Greek youth (played by 21-year-old Greek actor Stathis Giallelis) with a burning desire to come to the United States and the entire cast are greens. "I don't look on this as a typical runaway production," says Kazan, "because where can you get Greeks but Greece?"

What's Elvis Presley going to do now that his favorite director Norman Taurog is moving over to Warner Bros. to direct that other teenage favorite, Troy Donahue, in "Palm Springs Weekend?" Norman has made three movies with Elvis, the latest "Girls! Girls! Girls!" just completed.

Ever since I've known Norman, he has been unusually successful with children and young people on the screen. It won't hurt Warner Bros. boss Jack Warner one bit if he carries on his know - how in "Palm Springs Weekend" which, in addition to Troy, will have a whole cast of young people in a plot about teenage troublemakers in a resort town during a school holiday.

Hearing that Shirley Jones and Jack Cassidy will be in Rome in February when Shirley starts "Dark Purpose" with Rosanno Brazzi was not only nostalgic to them—it was to me. I happened to be in Rome six years ago when the then practically unknown Shirley and Jack were starring in the revival of "Oklahoma." They met in that show, fell in love and married—and now when they go back, they are a famous family unit with two cute children.

Actually, because of his own commitments, Jack won't be able to accompany Shirley and the children when they leave here as soon as Shirley completes "Moon Walk" at MGM. But he'll fly over as soon as possible.

There will be no native sarong garb for Tarita when she shows up at the Hollywood premiere of "Mutiny on the Bounty" on Nov. 14—not by $4,000 worth! That's the amount MGM designer Moss Mabry has been commissioned to spend on the creation of yards and yards of sun yellow chiffon, elaborately embroidered, and featuring a bare midriff which Marlon Brandon's leading lady will wear to the big night.

It's practically set for that other expensive item — Marlon Brando to escort Tarita. That is, if he shows up himself.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Mervyn Leroy underwent surgery at Mayo Brothers and the reports are good. He had no malignancies.

Bill Holden is in Switzerland recovering from an injury to his leg sustained when his car ran off the road in Paris. His pals say he is more upset over the damage to his Ferrari than over his leg injury.

On Nov. 1, Kirk Douglas will have his footprints immortalized in concrete at the Grauman's Chinese Theatre. The Hollywood Film Council, which is sponsoring the evening, is inviting many of Grauman's alumni to the event.

Word from Darryl Zanuck is that 20th secured a third theatre in Paris, The Madeleine, to show "The Longest Day." The theatre will be operated on a hard ticket basis with two shows a day. Heretofore, France has never had a reserved seat motion picture theatre.

The party Paramount recently called off when Frank Sinatra had to go into the hospital for a checkup, is very much on again, Nov. 2, on the Paramount lot.

Critic Finds Kanin Play Disappointing

UPI Drama Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — A major disappointment of the early part of the season was "Come on Strong" by Garson Kanin, who also directed.

Van Johnson and Carroll Baker, a couple of well-known film personalities, had the leading roles in this comedy and proved to be personable players. Just how good they are was not readily apparent because their material was bad.

This was the disappointing feature, for Kanin is an old and successful hand in the theater game. He's had his failures, as has everyone else, but at least they seemed to have some reason for having been staged.

"Come On Strong," story of a girl's climb to movie stardom via the sex route after the boy friend refused to commit matrimony, probably was supposed to be funny and romantic or sexy. It just wasn't any of them. The lines and the situations were flat and trite, and there was no Kanin sparkle anywhere.

Another show — the fifth so far this fall — to close during the pre-Broadway tryout tour was "A Matter of Position" by comedienne Elaine May.

She did not appear in it, although her partner in a highly successful stage and night club act, Mike Nichols, did. The producers closed it in Philadelphia after a couple of weeks on the grounds that they couldn't get Miss May to make the cuts and changes they felt necessary to make it work.

Miss May's stand was that such alternations would have violated the spirit of the script.

Previous road closings of new productions involved "La Belle Helene," "There Must Be a Pony," "Banderol" and "Get on Board—The Jazz Train."

The stage future of Carol Burnett, the most-in-demand comedienne of the day, has been settled for the moment with the announcement that she is signed for a musical called "The Unfair Sex," due here in the 1963-64 season.

There had been much speculation that she might turn up this season as Fanny Brice in a musical about the late great funnywoman, but the announcement ends that.

"The Unfair Sex" will be based on a best-selling book of that title by Nina Farewell. Miss Burnett will play the owner of a school in which she teaches the girls that marriage is the ultimate goal as the only way of besting the unfair sex—men.

Jim Mitchum Tired Of Hearing About His Father

JIM MITCHUM

SALERNO, Italy (AP)—"Somewhere along the line I've got to find out what it's like to be me—and not just Robert Mitchum's son."

The actor who said those lines is Jim Mitchm, here filming a co-star role in the picture, "The Victors."

The 20-year-old son of Robert Mitchum is a chip off the old block — and he's sensitive about it.

He's got dad's droopy eyes, the same mouth, the same dimpled chin. And he is about as outspoken as his father.

"People are always telling me I should be glad to be Robert Mitchum's son," said Jim. "But that sort of nonsense gets tiring. I see my old man about twice a year. He asks me if I'm getting any work. I say yes or no. He says good, or too bad."

Jim Mitchum plays another soldier in "The Victors." He is one of a squad of American GIs fighting in southern Italy in 1943.

"One of the things about the Army," he said, "is that all soldiers seem to look alike. But not this one. When I came out of the wardrobe room the first time in my fatigues and helmet, the assistant director said: 'Hey, you look just like your father in GI Joe.'"

In tamer moments Jim Mitchum admits having a famous father is not all disadvantage. Most of his first acting parts were the result of his father's behind-the-scenes assistance.

Jim admits it, but wants at least his own share of the credit.

"Yeah, he fixed a couple of things for me," Jim says. "But I fixed a couple for myself.

"After all, I can't play the junior part forever."

Winners Named In Boy Scout Logging Event

In the Explorer Division Post 10 of LaVale won a blue ribbon.

Demonstrations were given on Saturday by Mr Ogden of West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company; John Slocumb, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad; Brooke Bodkin, Maryland Department of Forests, and Victor Hewitt, Elkins, champion chopper of West Virginia Forest Festival.

Rev. James Hobbs, Catholic chaplain for Western Maryland and Rev. Robert Logan conducted church services on Sunday.

First aid services were provided by Dr. J. A. Ragione and the nursing service of Allegany County Chapter, American Red Cross. Miss Christine J. Williams and Miss Gertrude T. Williams, and Vincent Delagrange, were in charge.

Potomac Council is a participating agency of County United Fund.

Mount Vernon, the home of George Washington, was named for the British Adm. Edward Vernon, who fought the Spanish in the Caribbean in the mid-18th century, the Natoinal Geographic Magazine says. British soldiers called Vernon "Old Grog" because of the grogram cloak he wore. The grog that present-day tars still drink bears Vernon's nickname because he ordered the daily rum ration diluted with water.

Glynis Johns Likes Roles That Are 'New'

By JOAN SWEENEY

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Hollywood actors are concerned with polishing their prestige instead of their performances, according to British actress Glynis Johns.

Fear of lowering their prestige is responsible for the narrow range of their acting accomplishments, the vivacious blonde contended. They will not accept a challenging, but small, role and they think television is beneath them.

"They don't understand there is only one prestige and that's good work," said Miss Johns, who was nominated for an Academy Award for her performance in "The Sundowners."

She believes the reason for this preoccupation with prestige is Broadway. She said that in England everything is centered around London, and English actors are eager to take a good part, regardless of its size.

"There, acting comes first, while here money comes first," Miss Johns said. She herself has chalked up an impressive list of performances ranging from farce to drama on the stage, screen and television.

She Likes TV

The green-eyed actress loves television because it gives her an opportunity, which she would not otherwise have, to do a variety of roles.

She tackles such a part this fall in a "Have Gun, Will Travel" episode. The script has only three characters, and two of them—a very old Chinese lady and her granddaughter — are played by Miss Johns. She was as excited as a two-year-old on Christmas morning about working out the voice patterns and makeup for a cultured old Chinese lady.

Her zest for unusual roles includes a desire to play a heavy in a western.

"I want to be a two-gun Gertie," she said. "I'm not going to be the girl lifted off the stage in all those skirts."

Practically nothing will keep Miss Johns from accepting a role unlike one she has done before. For instance, she was leaving for the airport to return to her home in Switzerland when she was offered the part of a nun in the "Dr. Kildare" television series.

"I'd never played a nun before so naturally I couldn't turn it down," she explained with an engaging grin.

Turns Down Offer

As a result of her performance, she was asked to do a pilot for an hour-long dramatic series based on the nun she had portrayed in the episode. But she turned it down.

"It's too much of a drain to play a highly dramatic character in an hour-long series week after week," she said.

Miss Johns would like to do a musical film. As a matter of fact, she was a child prodigy as a dancer. She was about to join the famed Sadler Wells ballet when she tried out for, and won, a part in an Old Vic production. A second stage role followed and dancing was relegated to an avocation.

"I need an incentive for dancing," she said. "If I knew I was going to be in a musical I would start practicing again."

"Of course," she added with a grin, "the singing will have to be of a special type."

Karloff To Play Himself: A Quiet Englishman

By RAYMOND E. PALMER

LONDON (AP)—Boris Karloff, 74-year-old star of the old Frankenstein movies, has signed to make his first British television series.

Karloff, who will introduce a science fiction series called "Out of This World" on the Commercial Television Network, says:

"I will just play myself — a quiet, ordinary Englishman.

"If it is half as successful as Frankenstein I will be satisfied."

Boris Karloff, one of the best known of the early horror film stars, was born William Henry Pratt in the London suburb of Dulwich on Nov. 23, 1887.

He has been an actor practically all his adult life — ever since he started on the New York stage in 1910. He went to Hollywood in the early days of the silver screen and played his first movie role in 1920.

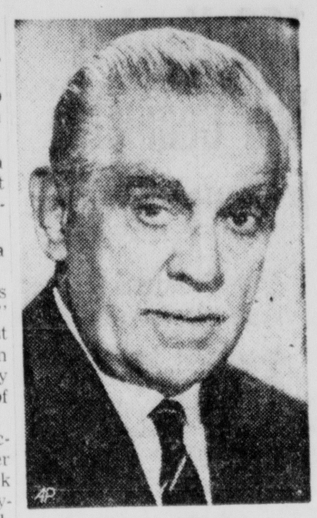
He appeared in silent movies and successfully survived the changeover to the talkies which put many of the early stars out of work.

Karloff's portrayal of a monster in "Frankenstein" was so successful at the box office that it spawned a series of sequels including "The Bride of Frankenstein" and "The House of Frankenstein."

Fan mail showered on Karloff. Women found him fascinating in a spine-tingling sort of way.

Then he made a specialty of horror roles in such chillers as "The Body Snatcher," "Isle of the Dead" and "The Devil's Brood."

Later he played in "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty" and acted in a number of stage plays in



BORIS KARLOFF

New York including "Arsenic and Old Lace" and "Shop at Sly Corner."

Karloff says he never wants to play in Frankenstein movies again. But he is grateful that he once did.

"I remember Frankenstein with great affection and gratitude," says the veteran actor. "Thanks to him I can survive without working. But actors never retire. To enjoy your work is to keep your youth."

Karloff, who has a luxury apartment in fashionable Cadogan Square in London's Chelsea District, spends much of his time traveling to and from America.

He has recently finished an American television series called "Thriller."

Baltimore Sees Blockade Protest

BALTIMORE (AP) — A small group of sign-carrying pickets marched in front of the main Post Office Wednesday in protest to the American blockade of weapons shipments to Cuba.

The demonstrators were all members of the Baltimore Women Work for Peace.

They warned that the blockade could lead to nuclear war and asked that the Cuban problem be turned over to the United Nations.

The small group, which numbered seven at one time, passed out leaflets urging the public to wire President Kennedy protesting the American action.

Grocer Is Fined For Selling Milk

DARLINGTON, England (AP)—A grocer has been fined for selling a mother milk for a baby after hours—but if he had sold her an alcoholic drink he would not have violated the law.

Said the grocer's lawyer Alan Vickers: "It's a pity the baby wasn't a beer drinker. That would have kept everyone happy."

Before the court was Joseph Hatfield.

He admitted selling a customer two pints of milk after 8 p.m., the latest time allowed for milk sale by grocers. Hatfield also has a license to sell alcoholic beverages until 10:30 p.m.

He was fined one pound—$2.80.

Bohlen Arrives

LE HAVRE, France (UPI)—Charles E. Bohlen, new U.S. ambassador to France, arrived Wednesday with his wife aobard the liner United States.

Groves Firm Is Low Bidder

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI)—The State Road Commission said Tuesday a Minneapolis firm was apparent low bidder for a contract to build four bridges and underpasses and grade and drain 2.7 miles of Interstate 81 between Sec. 15 and W.Va. 9 in Berkeley County.

S. J. Groves and Sons Co. submitted a bid of $1,818,580, the commission said. It was the third time the project was put up for bids. No bids were received June 19 and C. E. Weatherall of Huntington offered a bid of $1,827,561 on July 17.

Wallace Construction Co. and Price, both of Huntington, joined in submitting an apparent low bid for grading, draining and paving of nearly 1 mile of W.Va. 16 in Ritchie County. The joint bid was for $355,764.

The commission said Kenton Meadows Construction Inc., Gassaway, submitted an apparent low bid of $208,826 for construction of the Arnoldsburg Bridge in Calhoun County.

They met in that show, fell in love and married—and now when they go back, they are a famous family unit with two cute children.

Actually, because of his own commitments, Jack won't be able to accompany Shirley and the children when they leave here as soon as Shirley completes "Moon Walk" at MGM. But he'll fly over as soon as possible.

There will be no native sarong garb for Tarita when she shows up at the Hollywood premiere of "Mutiny on the Bounty" on Nov. 14—not by $4,000 worth! That's the amount MGM designer Moss Mabry has been commissioned to spend on the creation of yards and yards of sun yellow chiffon, elaborately embroidered, and featuring a bare midriff which Marlon Brandon's leading lady will wear to the big night.

It's practically set for that other expensive item — Marlon Brando to escort Tarita. That is, if he shows up himself.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Mervyn Leroy underwent surgery at Mayo Brothers and the reports are good. He had no malignancies.

Bill Holden is in Switzerland recovering from an injury to his leg sustained when his car ran off the road in Paris. His pals say he is more upset over the damage to his Ferrari than over his leg injury.

On Nov. 1, Kirk Douglas will have his footprints immortalized in concrete at the Grauman's Chinese Theatre. The Hollywood Film Council, which is sponsoring the evening, is inviting many of Grauman's alumni to the event.

Word from Darryl Zanuck is that 20th secured a third theatre in Paris, The Madeleine, to show "The Longest Day." The theatre will be operated on a hard ticket basis with two shows a day. Heretofore, France has never had a reserved seat motion picture theatre.

The party Paramount recently called off when Frank Sinatra had to go into the hospital for a checkup, is very much on again, Nov. 2, on the Paramount lot.

Critic Finds Kanin Play Disappointing

UPI Drama Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — A major disappointment of the early part of the season was "Come on Strong" by Garson Kanin, who also directed.

Van Johnson and Carroll Baker, a couple of well-known film personalities, had the leading roles in this comedy and proved to be personable players. Just how good they are was not readily apparent because their material was bad.

This was the disappointing feature, for Kanin is an old and successful hand in the theater game. He's had his failures, as has everyone else, but at least they seemed to have some reason for having been staged.

"Come On Strong," story of a girl's climb to movie stardom via the sex route after the boy friend refused to commit matrimony, probably was supposed to be funny and romantic or sexy. It just wasn't any of them. The lines and the situations were flat and trite, and there was no Kanin sparkle anywhere.

Another show — the fifth so far this fall — to close during the pre-Broadway tryout tour was "A Matter of Position" by comedienne Elaine May.

She did not appear in it, although her partner in a highly successful stage and night club act, Mike Nichols, did. The producers closed it in Philadelphia after a couple of weeks on the grounds that they couldn't get Miss May to make the cuts and changes they felt necessary to make it work.

Miss May's stand was that such alternations would have violated the spirit of the script.

Previous road closings of new productions involved "La Belle Helene," "There Must Be a Pony," "Banderol" and "Get on Board—The Jazz Train."

The stage future of Carol Burnett, the most-in-demand comedienne of the day, has been settled for the moment with the announcement that she is signed for a musical called "The Unfair Sex," due here in the 1963-64 season.

There had been much speculation that she might turn up this season as Fanny Brice in a musical about the late great funnywoman, but the announcement ends that.

"The Unfair Sex" will be based on a best-selling book of that title by Nina Farewell. Miss Burnett will play the owner of a school in which she teaches the girls that marriage is the ultimate goal as the only way of besting the unfair sex—men.

Jim Mitchum Tired Of Hearing About His Father

JIM MITCHUM

SALERNO, Italy (AP)—"Somewhere along the line I've got to find out what it's like to be me—and not just Robert Mitchum's son."

The actor who said those lines is Jim Mitchm, here filming a co-star role in the picture, "The Victors."

The 20-year-old son of Robert Mitchum is a chip off the old block — and he's sensitive about it.

He's got dad's droopy eyes, the same mouth, the same dimpled chin. And he is about as outspoken as his father.

"People are always telling me I should be glad to be Robert Mitchum's son," said Jim. "But that sort of nonsense gets tiring. I see my old man about twice a year. He asks me if I'm getting any work. I say yes or no. He says good, or too bad."

Jim Mitchum plays another soldier in "The Victors." He is one of a squad of American GIs fighting in southern Italy in 1943.

"One of the things about the Army," he said, "is that all soldiers seem to look alike. But not this one. When I came out of the wardrobe room the first time in my fatigues and helmet, the assistant director said: 'Hey, you look just like your father in GI Joe.'"

In tamer moments Jim Mitchum admits having a famous father is not all disadvantage. Most of his first acting parts were the result of his father's behind-the-scenes assistance.

Jim admits it, but wants at least his own share of the credit.

"Yeah, he fixed a couple of things for me," Jim says. "But I fixed a couple for myself.

"After all, I can't play the junior part forever."

In the Explorer Division Post 10 of LaVale won a blue ribbon.

Demonstrations were given on Saturday by Mr Ogden of West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company; John Slocumb, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad; Brooke Bodkin, Maryland Department of Forests, and Victor Hewitt, Elkins, champion chopper of West Virginia Forest Festival.

Rev. James Hobbs, Catholic chaplain for Western Maryland and Rev. Robert Logan conducted church services on Sunday.

First aid services were provided by Dr. J. A. Ragione and the nursing service of Allegany County Chapter, American Red Cross. Miss Christine J. Williams and Miss Gertrude T. Williams, and Vincent Delagrange, were in charge.

Potomac Council is a participating agency of County United Fund.

Mount Vernon, the home of George Washington, was named for the British Adm. Edward Vernon, who fought the Spanish in the Caribbean in the mid-18th century, the Natoinal Geographic Magazine says. British soldiers called Vernon "Old Grog" because of the grogram cloak he wore. The grog that present-day tars still drink bears Vernon's nickname because he ordered the daily rum ration diluted with water.

Glynis Johns Likes Roles That Are 'New'

By JOAN SWEENEY

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Hollywood actors are concerned with polishing their prestige instead of their performances, according to British actress Glynis Johns.

Fear of lowering their prestige is responsible for the narrow range of their acting accomplishments, the vivacious blonde contended. They will not accept a challenging, but small, role and they think television is beneath them.

"They don't understand there is only one prestige and that's good work," said Miss Johns, who was nominated for an Academy Award for her performance in "The Sundowners."

She believes the reason for this preoccupation with prestige is Broadway. She said that in England everything is centered around London, and English actors are eager to take a good part, regardless of its size.

"There, acting comes first, while here money comes first," Miss Johns said. She herself has chalked up an impressive list of performances ranging from farce to drama on the stage, screen and television.

She Likes TV

The green-eyed actress loves television because it gives her an opportunity, which she would not otherwise have, to do a variety of roles.

She tackles such a part this fall in a "Have Gun, Will Travel" episode. The script has only three characters, and two of them—a very old Chinese lady and her granddaughter — are played by Miss Johns. She was as excited as a two-year-old on Christmas morning about working out the voice patterns and makeup for a cultured old Chinese lady.

Her zest for unusual roles includes a desire to play a heavy in a western.

"I want to be a two-gun Gertie," she said. "I'm not going to be the girl lifted off the stage in all those skirts."

Practically nothing will keep Miss Johns from accepting a role unlike one she has done before. For instance, she was leaving for the airport to return to her home in Switzerland when she was offered the part of a nun in the "Dr. Kildare" television series.

"I'd never played a nun before so naturally I couldn't turn it down," she explained with an engaging grin.

Turns Down Offer

As a result of her performance, she was asked to do a pilot for an hour-long dramatic series based on the nun she had portrayed in the episode. But she turned it down.

"It's too much of a drain to play a highly dramatic character in an hour-long series week after week," she said.

Miss Johns would like to do a musical film. As a matter of fact, she was a child prodigy as a dancer. She was about to join the famed Sadler Wells ballet when she tried out for, and won, a part in an Old Vic production. A second stage role followed and dancing was relegated to an avocation.

"I need an incentive for dancing," she said. "If I knew I was going to be in a musical I would start practicing again."

"Of course," she added with a grin, "the singing will have to be of a special type."

Karloff To Play Himself: A Quiet Englishman

By RAYMOND E. PALMER

LONDON (AP)—Boris Karloff, 74-year-old star of the old Frankenstein movies, has signed to make his first British television series.

Karloff, who will introduce a science fiction series called "Out of This World" on the Commercial Television Network, says:

"I will just play myself — a quiet, ordinary Englishman.

"If it is half as successful as Frankenstein I will be satisfied."

Boris Karloff, one of the best known of the early horror film stars, was born William Henry Pratt in the London suburb of Dulwich on Nov. 23, 1887.

He has been an actor practically all his adult life — ever since he started on the New York stage in 1910. He went to Hollywood in the early days of the silver screen and played his first movie role in 1920.

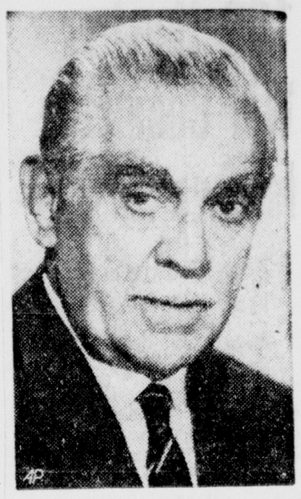
He appeared in silent movies and successfully survived the changeover to the talkies which put many of the early stars out of work.

Karloff's portrayal of a monster in "Frankenstein" was so successful at the box office that it spawned a series of sequels including "The Bride of Frankenstein" and "The House of Frankenstein."

Fan mail showered on Karloff. Women found him fascinating in a spine-tingling sort of way.

Then he made a specialty of horror roles in such chillers as "The Body Snatcher," "Isle of the Dead" and "The Devil's Brood."

Later he played in "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty" and acted in a number of stage plays in New York including "Arsenic and Old Lace" and "Shop at Sly Corner."



BORIS KARLOFF

Karloff says he never wants to play in Frankenstein movies again. But he is grateful that he once did.

"I remember Frankenstein with great affection and gratitude," says the veteran actor. "Thanks to him I can survive without working. But actors never retire. To enjoy your work is to keep your youth."

Karloff, who has a luxury apartment in fashionable Cadogan Square in London's Chelsea District, spends much of his time traveling to and from America.

He has recently finished an American television series called "Thriller."

Baltimore Sees Blockade Protest

BALTIMORE (AP) — A small group of sign-carrying pickets marched in front of the main Post Office Wednesday in protest to the American blockade of weapons shipments to Cuba.

The demonstrators were all members of the Baltimore Women Work for Peace.

They warned that the blockade could lead to nuclear war and asked that the Cuban problem be turned over to the United Nations.

The small group, which numbered seven at one time, passed out leaflets urging the public to wire President Kennedy protesting the American action.

Grocer Is Fined For Selling Milk

DARLINGTON, England (AP)—A grocer has been fined for selling a mother milk for a baby after hours—but if he had sold her an alcoholic drink he would not have violated the law.

Said the grocer's lawyer Alan Vickers: "It's a pity the baby wasn't a beer drinker. That would have kept everyone happy."

Before the court was Joseph Hatfield.

He admitted selling a customer two pints of milk after 8 p.m., the latest time allowed for milk sale by grocers. Hatfield also has a license to sell alcoholic beverages until 10:30 p.m.

He was fined one pound—$2.80.

Groves Firm Is Low Bidder

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI)—The State Road Commission said Tuesday a Minneapolis firm was apparent low bidder for a contract to build four bridges and underpasses and grade and drain 2.7 miles of Interstate 81 between Sec. 15 and W.Va. 9 in Berkeley County.

S. J. Groves and Sons Co. submitted a bid of $1,818,580, the commission said. It was the third time the project was put up for bids. No bids were received June 19 and C. E. Weatherall of Huntington offered a bid of $1,827,561 on July 17.

Wallace Construction Co. and Price, both of Huntington, joined in submitting an apparent low bid for grading, draining and paving of nearly 1 mile of W.Va. 16 in Ritchie County. The joint bid was for $355,764.

The commission said Kenton Meadows Construction Inc., Gassaway, submitted an apparent low bid of $208,826 for construction of the Arnoldsburg Bridge in Calhoun County.

Seven Schools Vie Here Today For Area Cross-Country Titles

100 Harriers Will Compete In Two Tests

Fort Cumberland Golf Course Site; Meet Set At 4 P.M.

Hill and dale runners from seven schools will compete today at the Fort Cumberland Golf Course for the Class A and B area cross-country championships. Approximately 100 harriers will participate.

Beall, Romney and Elk Garden loom as the leading contenders for the Class A crown with Allen Hott, of Romney, Don Fletcher and Don McKenzie of Beall, Tom Elliott, of Fort Hill and Tom Evans, of Elk Garden, expected to battle it out for individual honors.

At least five schools, namely, Romney, Beall, Fort Hill, Allegany and Elk Garden will compete for the Class A title while all seven schools, including Paw Paw and Oldtown will figure in the battle for team and individual honors on Class B.

Romney defeated Fort Hill and Oldtown in a triangular meet, Beall scored over Elk Garden and Allegany and followed up with a victory over Romney. Elk Garden scored over Fort Hill, Allegany, Oldtown and Paw Paw.

Hott Won Twice

Allen Hott is a two-times winner in area meets and his best time was 11:30.2 for the two-mile tests. At Morgantown, W. Va., however, he covered the two miles under 10 minutes and finished in fourth place.

Robert E. Pence, supervisor of physical education for Allegany County public schools, is director of the meet and will be the official starter. The program gets under way at 4 p. m., EDT.

The date and site for the Potomac Valley Conference cross-country championship meet will be decided upon by the coaches of the four competing schools, namely, Elk Garden, Beall, Romney and Paw Paw at today's meet.

County Meet Next Week

Beall, Fort Hill, Allegany and Oldtown will battle it out in the Allegany county championship meet at the Fort Cumberland Golf Course one week from today.

Korean Girl Claims Unofficial Record

LONDON (UPI) — Miss Shin Keum Dan of North Korea again broke the existing record for the 400 meter run with a time of 51.9 seconds, the New China News Agency reported Wednesday.

Miss Keum Dan's time, however, will not be ratified as a world record because North Korea is not a member of the International Amateur Athletic Federation.

The official record of 53.4 seconds was posted by Russia's Maria Itkina in 1959.

The Korean girl recorded her time Tuesday in Pyongyang on the third and final day of an international track and field meeting.

Snow Postpones Terra Alta Game

TERRA ALTA, W.Va. (UPI) — Old man winter is just knocking on the door but he has already caused postponement of one football game.

The Terra Alta-Rivesville game here was postponed Wednesday night because of an inch and a half snowfall.

the GREAT PLAY in College Football

AN 88-YARD touchdown run on Michigan State's first scrimmage play against Notre Dame in 1951 was probably the most momentous single play in Spartan football history.

The game shaped up as one of the classic collegiate battles of the year. Coach Biggie Munn's Spartans were undefeated and untied in six previous games that fall and Coach Frank Leahy's fine Irish team had won five and lost but one. Michigan State, in fact, had a 12-game victory streak going, dating from early the previous season.

National television, all four national radio networks, a sell-out crowd of over 50,000 people in State's Spartan Stadium and a jammed press box were all focused on the game.

Dopesters figured it to be very close. There were those who didn't think the East Lansingites really belonged in the top collegiate football echelons.

This 1951 State-Notre Dame game, everyone agreed, would be an acid test.

THE SPARTANS' All-American end, Bob Carey, kicked off into the Notre Dame end zone. The Irish made one first down, were held and Bill Barrett punted the ball dead on State's 12-yard line.

It looked like a bad hole for State so early in the game. The Irish, sensing an opportunity for a break and a possible quick score, pulled their defenses in close.

No one was prepared for the next development. The Spartans went into a single wing formation behind a trick unbalanced line (five men on one side of center, only one on the other). The snap went directly to fullback Dick Panin, a 187-pound junior from Detroit, and he sprang up the middle through a huge hole opened by a perfect trap play. He went all the way to score unscathed.

The impact was tremendous. Notre Dame never recovered from the shock and went down to defeat, 35-0. No reasonable fan could any longer say the Spartans didn't belong right at the top.

Michigan State arrived as a football power that day, and Dick Panin's touchdown triggered the event.

Tom Brown Fifth Among Receivers

NEW YORK (AP)—Maryland's Tom Brown moved up a notch to fifth place this week in the NCAA's list of top 10 pass receivers in the nation.

In five games, Brown has caught 26 passes for 321 yards and three touchdowns. He is the top pass receiver on the Maryland squad and in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Sophomore halfback Ken Ambrusko of Maryland is ranked eighth in punt returns. He has returned seven punts for 140 yards and a 20-yard average.

Dick Drummond of George Washington is ranked 10th in punt returns with seven for 137 yards and an average of 19.6 yards per return.

Hawks Defeat Cincy Royals

Wilkens, Barnhill Pace 121-114 Win

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis Hawks, led by guards Lenny Wilkens and John Barnhill, used the fast break to gain a 121-114 victory over the Cincinnati Royals Wednesday night.

The Royals, who contained Hawk Ace Bob Pettit, broke away to a 38-29 first period margin but the Hawks outscored the Royals in the second period 31-25 and trailed at half-time 63-60.

In the third period Wilkens, just discharged from the Army, scored 11 points and paced the Hawks to a 91-85 lead at the end of three quarters.

In the final frame, Barnhill, who played last year with Cleveland in the American Basketball League, ripped through the Cincinnati defense for a series of layups as he scored 13 points.

Wilkens and Barnhill also broke up the man-to-man which the Royals employed in the final period.

Pettit who totaled 18 points, 13 of them in the first half, also hauled in 23 rebounds.

The victory was the third without a loss for St. Louis this season while Cincinnati suffered its second defeat in three games.

Panther Scout Warns Pitt To Watch Staubach

Quarterback Big Gun In Attack

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pitt Scout Walt Cummins who has watched Navy in its last three games warned the Panther coaching staff Wednesday that the big gun in the Middie attack is quarterback Roger Staubach.

The Panthers have had trouble season - long in containing a passing attack so Cummins' report gave the coaching staff additional gray hairs in preparing Pitt for Saturday's contest in the Oyster Bowl at Norfolk, Va. The game is a sellout.

"Navy is a real good passing team," Cummins said, then singled out Staubach as the trigger in the Navy attack. "He makes the team move."

Cummins said Staubach did not play in the first two games, one a 41-7 loss to Penn State, but has since replaced Ron Klemick.

"Staubach is a better threat as a runner than Klemick and is a good passer," Cummins said.

Whether or not quarterback Fred Mazurek, who broke his left thumb in the Baylor game, will be available for the Middies was still in doubt. The cast has been removed from the digit and he may play with a protective device if physicians give him the go ahead.

Injured Hornung Loses NFL Scoring Lead To Clarke

NEW YORK (AP) — Three-time scoring champion Paul Hornung, Green Bay's all-purpose halfback, has joined five-time ground gaining titlist Jimmy Brown of Cleveland as a one-time leader in the National Football League's individual statistical races.

Hornung, who sat out Sunday's 31-13 Packer triumph over San Francisco because of a twisted right knee, lost his lead to Dallas end Frank Clarke.

Clarke grabbed three touchdown passes from Eddie LeBaron and brought his point total to 66 points on 11 TDs. Hornung is second with 62, according to league statistics released Wednesday.

Brown, who has led the rushers for the five years he has been in the NFL, currently is mired in sixth place with 399 yards gained —a 4.1 average. That leaves him 343 yards behind Hornung's teammate, Jim Taylor, who has amassed 742 yards and a 6.7 average, tops in the league.

SUPERLATIVE SETTER — Thundersplash Duke, a locally-owned English setter, won second place in the open shooting dog class at the Indiantown Gap (Pa.) Pointer and Setter Club's classic which ended Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Giornesto, of 615 Washington Street, are the owners of the five-year-old male setter. At Indiantown Gap, Thundersplash Duke defeated four dogs which had won national championships.

Thundersplash Duke Second At Indiantown Gap

Thundersplash Duke, a five-year-old male English setter owned by Charles Giornesto, 615 Washington Street, won second place in the open shooting dog class at the Indiantown Gap (Pa.) Pointer and Setter Club's four-day classic which ended Tuesday at the Indiantown Gap Military Reservation.

Mr. and Mrs. Giornesto returned to Cumberland yesterday.

This was considered the outstanding performance by the local dog, which last month was a winner in the field trials of the Queen City Bird Dog Club on the Taylor farm near Oldtown.

At Indiantown Gap, Thundersplash Duke defeated four dogs which had won national championships. They included Potato Patch Sue, three-times national pheasant champion; El Hew Huckleberry, twice national pheasant champion; Baker's Pal, a female who won the national quail championship, and Polly Bergen, a North Carolina dog which last year won the Indiantown Gap championship.

The rechargeable cells which supply power for the Telstar communications satellite's electronic circuits are a sophisticated version of the type used in flashlights except that they are specially designed — for the space environment.

The dog was handled at Indiantown Gap by Gerald Tracy of Glen Rock, Pa., a professional trainer and handler. Next competition for Thundersplash Duke will be the 50th anniversary field trial of the National Capital Bird Dog Club starting next Wednesday at Silver Spring.

Buddy Parker Sees Brown As Bigger Threat

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Buddy Parker, the worrisome Pittsburgh Steeler coach, Wednesday bemoaned the return to form of Cleveland Browns fullback Jimmy Brown.

Brown, who has led the league in ground gaining ever since he turned pro six years ago, has not been up to par this season but finally exploded against the St. Louis Cardinals last Sunday and began "hitting like the Brown of old."

Currently Brown is in sixth place among National Football League rushers and the word is that he has no plans for relinquishing his rushing titles.

"We have more than half a season to play," Parker said, "and Brown has shown he can still move the ball."

Parker was referring to the 57 yards Brown picked up as Cleveland downed St. Louis last Sunday.

"Every game is a new one," Parker said. "What a back like Jimmy Brown has done is no indication of what he's going to do. Anyone with Brown's speed and power can do anything on a football field. He might gain 300 yards. He's gained almost 250 yards in a single game."

With this in mind, Parker prepared his team for the rebounding Clevelanders who meet the Steelers at Pitt Stadium Sunday. Both teams have identical 3-3 records and are tired for third place in the Eastern Division. A victory is a must for both if either club hopes to stay alive in the title chase.

Penn State Fears California Bears

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Penn State is 4-1 and the California Bears are 1-4 but Nittany Lion coach Rip Engle is worried.

"California hasn't been beaten by anything but good teams," Engle said. "As far as I'm concerned every game on our schedule is a big game. We're still sweating it out and trying to get ready."

'Skins Look Bad On Paper, But Lead NFL Standings

Team Ranks Last In Team Defense, 10th In Offense

WASHINGTON (AP) — National Football League statistics paint a gloomy picture for Washington Redskins fans.

But they grin broadly when they look at the NFL standings, which show the Redskins undefeated and leading the Eastern Division as they prepare for a showdown game Sunday with the second place New York.

When the Redskins visited New York last fall they hadn't won a game and the Giants mauled them 53-0.

Statistically, there's no solid explanation for Washington's success this year. They rank last in team defense and nine teams have better offenses. Compared to their opponents, the Redskins come off second best in almost every department except scoring.

All the Redskins can do, it seems, is win.

It may sound corny, but Coach Bill McPeak says Washington wins because the players believe they're going to win — they have great team spirit.

This must rank as one of the greatest reversals in history for the Redskins couldn't do anything right in 1961 as they lost 12 games, tied one and won only once.

However this improved spirit shows up in the two important areas of statistics where Washington ranks high. The Redskins lead the NFL in opponents' fumbles recovered, with 11, and are second to Green Bay in pass interceptions, with 14.

This means that 25 times in six games jarring tackles have shaken the ball loose and the Redskins recovered, or Redskin defenders have snagged enemy passes to cut short potential scoring drives.

A prize example of how important this aggressive play on defense can be came last Sunday. Dale Hackbart grabbed off a Philadelphia pass in the closing minutes as the Eagles drove toward what would have been the winning touchdown.

The 27-21 victory over Philadelphia was typical of the Redskin season. The Eagles had the edge in first downs 24-15, rushing yardage 154-49, and passing yardage 308-276. But they lost three fumbles to one for Washington and the Redskins intercepted four passes to two for the Eagles.

Syracuse Works On Pass Defense

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI—Syracuse head football coach Floyd (Ben) Schwartzwalder worked to build up his squad's pass defense Wednesday in preparation for the meeting Saturday with Holy Cross.

Carrying a one win-three-loss record for the season, the Orangemen travel Saturday to Worcester, Mass., to meet the Crusaders.

Last week, Penn State passing star Pete Liske completed 14 of 28 passes for 150 yards against Syracuse as the Nittany Lions won 20-19.

Schwartzwalder said he was out to stop Holy Cross' All-East quarterback Pat Mc Carthy.

"This fellow can kill you if you let him," the Orange coach said. "We'll have to toughen up to put the rush on him and cover the receivers."

Mountaineers Prep For Oregon State

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI) — The West Virginia football team went through offensive and defensive drills Wednesday in preparation for Saturday's game with Oregon State.

Tackle Phil Sizemore has recovered from a leg injury that has been bothering him for the past several weeks and will be ready to go full tilt. Linebacker John Skinner, who twisted an ankle in the Boston Univeritsy game, is also expected to be ready for the Beavers.

Seven Schools Vie Here Today For Area Cross-Country Titles

100 Harriers Will Compete In Two Tests

Fort Cumberland Golf Course Site; Meet Set At 4 P.M.

Hill and dale runners from seven schools will compete today at the Fort Cumberland Golf Course for the Class A and B area cross-country championships. Approximately 100 harriers will participate.

Beall, Romney and Elk Garden loom as the leading contenders for the Class A crown with Allen Hott, of Romney, Don Fletcher and Don McKenzie of Beall, Tom Elliott, of Fort Hill and Tom Evans, of Elk Garden, expected to battle it out for individual honors.

At least five schools, namely, Romney, Beall, Fort Hill, Allegany and Elk Garden will compete for the Class A title while all seven schools, including Paw Paw and Oldtown will figure in the battle for team and individual honors on Class B.

Romney defeated Fort Hill and Oldtown in a triangular meet, Beall scored over Elk Garden and Allegany and followed up with a victory over Romney. Elk Garden scored over Fort Hill, Allegany, Oldtown and Paw Paw.

Hott Won Twice

Allen Hott is a two-times winner in area meets and his best time was 11:30.2 for the two-mile tests. At Morgantown, W. Va., however, he covered the two miles under 10 minutes and finished in fourth place.

Robert E. Pence, supervisor of physical education for Allegany County public schools, is director of the meet and will be the official starter. The program gets under way at 4 p. m., EDT.

The date and site for the Potomac Valley Conference cross-country championship meet will be decided upon by the coaches of the four competing schools, namely, Elk Garden, Beall, Romney and Paw Paw at today's meet.

County Meet Next Week

AN 88-YARD touchdown run on Michigan State's first scrimmage play against Notre Dame in 1951 was probably the most momentous single play in Spartan football history.

The game shaped up as one of the classic collegiate battles of the year. Coach Biggie Munn's Spartans were undefeated and untied in six previous games that fall and Coach Frank Leahy's fine Irish team had won five and lost but one. Michigan State, in fact, had a 12-game victory streak going, dating from early the previous season.

National television, all four national radio networks, a sell-out crowd of over 50,000 people in State's Spartan Stadium and a jammed press box were all focused on the game.

Dopesters figured it to be very close. There were those who didn't think the East Lansingites really belonged in the top collegiate football echelons.

This 1951 State-Notre Dame game, everyone agreed, would be an acid test.

THE SPARTANS' All-American end, Bob Carey, kicked off into the Notre Dame end zone. The Irish made one first down, were held and Bill Barrett punted the ball dead on State's 12-yard line.

It looked like a bad hole for State so early in the game. The Irish, sensing an opportunity for a break and a possible quick score, pulled their defenses in close.

No one was prepared for the next development. The Spartans went into a single wing formation behind a trick unbalanced line (five men on one side of center, only one on the other). The snap went directly to fullback Dick Panin, a 187-pound junior from Detroit, and he sprang up the middle through a huge hole opened by a perfect trap play. He went all the way to score unscathed.

The impact was tremendous. Notre Dame never recovered from the shock and went down to defeat, 35-0. No reasonable fan could any longer say the Spartans didn't belong right at the top.

Michigan State arrived as a football power that day, and Dick Panin's touchdown triggered the event.

Tom Brown Fifth Among Receivers

NEW YORK (AP)—Maryland's Tom Brown moved up a notch to fifth place this week in the NCAA's list of top 10 pass receivers in the nation.

In five games, Brown has caught 26 passes for 321 yards and three touchdowns. He is the top pass receiver on the Maryland squad and in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Sophomore halfback Ken Ambrusko of Maryland is ranked eighth in punt returns. He has returned seven punts for 140 yards and a 20-yard average.

Korean Girl Claims Unofficial Record

LONDON (UPI) — Miss Shin Keum Dan of North Korea again broke the existing record for the 400 meter run with a time of 51.9 seconds, the New China News Agency reported Wednesday.

Miss Keum Dan's time, however, will not be ratified as a world record because North Korea is not a member of the International Amateur Athletic Federation.

The official record of 53.4 seconds was posted by Russia's Maria Itkina in 1959.

The Korean girl recorded her time Tuesday in Pyongyang on the third and final day of an international track and field meeting.

Hawks Defeat Cincy Royals

Wilkens, Barnhill Pace 121-114 Win

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis Hawks, led by guards Lenny Wilkens and John Barnhill, used the fast break to gain a 121-114 victory over the Cincinnati Royals Wednesday night.

The Royals, who contained Hawk Ace Bob Pettit, broke away to a 38-29 first period margin but the Hawks outscored the Royals in the second period 31-25 and trailed at half-time 63-60.

In the third period Wilkens, just discharged from the Army, scored 11 points and paced the Hawks to a 91-85 lead at the end of three quarters.

In the final frame, Barnhill, who played last year with Cleveland in the American Basketball League, ripped through the Cincinnati defense for a series of layups as he scored 13 points.

Wilkens and Barnhill also broke up the man-to-man which the Royals employed in the final period.

Pettit who totaled 18 points, 13 of them in the first half, also hauled in 23 rebounds.

The victory was the third without a loss for St. Louis this season while Cincinnati suffered its second defeat in three games.

Panther Scout Warns Pitt To Watch Staubach

Quarterback Big Gun In Attack

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pitt Scout Walt Cummins who has watched Navy in its last three games warned the Panther coaching staff Wednesday that the big gun in the Middie attack is quarterback Roger Staubach.

The Panthers have had trouble season - long in containing a passing attack so Cummins' report gave the coaching staff additional gray hairs in preparing Pitt for Saturday's contest in the Oyster Bowl at Norfolk, Va. The game is a sellout.

"Navy is a real good passing team," Cummins said, then singled out Staubach as the trigger in the Navy attack. "He makes the team move."

Cummins said Staubach did not play in the first two games, one a 41-7 loss to Penn State, but has since replaced Ron Klemick.

"Staubach is a better threat as a runner than Klemick and is a good passer," Cummins said.

Whether or not quarterback Fred Mazurek, who broke his left thumb in the Baylor game, will be available for the Middies was still in doubt. The cast has been removed from the digit and he may play with a protective device if physicians give him the go ahead.

Injured Hornung Loses NFL Scoring Lead To Clarke

NEW YORK (AP) — Three-time scoring champion Paul Hornung, Green Bay's all-purpose halfback, has joined five-time ground gaining titlist Jimmy Brown of Cleveland as a one-time leader in the National Football League's individual statistical races.

Hornung, who sat out Sunday's 31-13 Packer triumph over San Francisco because of a twisted right knee, lost his lead to Dallas end Frank Clarke.

Clarke grabbed three touchdown passes from Eddie LeBaron and brought his point total to 66 points on 11 TDs. Hornung is second with 62, according to league statistics released Wednesday.

Brown, who has led the rushers for the five years he has been in the NFL, currently is mired in sixth place with 399 yards gained —a 4.1 average. That leaves him 343 yards behind Hornung's teammate, Jim Taylor, who has amassed 742 yards and a 6.7 average, tops in the league.

Yankees Collect Nearly $10,000 Each In Series Shares

Giants Collect Record Amount For Losing Club

New York Win In Final Game Meant $2,591 Difference

NEW YORK (AP) — Ralph Terry's glittering 1-0 conquest of the San Francisco Giants in the seventh and deciding game of the 1962 World Series put an additional $2,591.25 into the pockets of the regular members of the victorious New York Yankees.

This was disclosed Wednesday in the breakdown of Series shares announced by Charles Segar, secretary of baseball. Ford Frick, baseball commissioner, who usually makes these announcements, is in Japan where the Detroit Tigers are on an exhibition tour.

Segar said that a full winning share for the Yankees amounted to $9,882.74 while a full share for the losing Giants came to a record $7,291.49. The Yankees voted 34 full shares and the Giants 29.

The Yanks' winning share is the third highest in Series history. The record is $11,231.18, picked up by Los Angeles Dodgers' players after defeating the Chicago White Sox in 1959. Next is the $11,147.90 received by the New York Giants in 1954 following their four-game sweep of Cleveland.

The Giants' losing share this year is the most ever, surpassing the $7,275.17 collected by the White Sox in '59.

The players' pool totaled $863,281.71 with the Yanks receiving $362,578.32 and the Giants $241,718.88. The runners-up, the Minnesota Twins and Los Angeles Dodgers, get $64,746.32 while the third-place clubs, the Los Angeles Angels and Cincinnati Reds receive $43,164.08.

TOUGHIES AHEAD—West Virginia's Mountaineers, who had won only four games in two years, are moving back into the national spotlight again, being undefeated after five games. The Mountaineers have the rough ones ahead, though, in Oregon State, Penn State and Syracuse. Heading the cast this year are quarterback Jerry Yost, end Gene Heeter, linebacker Pete Goimarac and halfback Tom Woodeshick. (Central Press)

Beaten Fullmer Nominates Tiger 'Fighter Of Year'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dick Tiger of Nigeria, the newly-crowned World Boxing Association middleweight champion, was nominated Wednesday as "the Fighter of the Year."

Who did the nominating?

Gene Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah, the man who lost the title in 15 bloody, bruising rounds Tuesday night at Candlestick Park.

Fullmer's gesture was relayed by his manager, Marv Jenson, at a noon news conference. Gene could not attend. He and his wife were deep in a personal sadness.

The dethroned champion's father-in-law, Leroy Holt, 59, died early Wednesday in Franklin Hospital. Holt suffered a heart attack at the fight.

Tiger, the second Nigerian to win a world title, was not present either. Jersey Jones of New York, his American representative, explained that Tiger was literally swamped by transoceanic calls and messages of congratulations.

Orange County Open Tourney Starts Today

Youngsters Seek To Score Double

COSTA MESA, Calif. (UPI)—A pair of youngsters on the western pro golf tour, Al Geiberger and Bob McCallister, will attempt to put over a links double when play gets underway Thursday in the $22,500 Orange County Open. They will be trying to make it two straight victories with a win in the 72-hole tournament that concludes the fall pro swing in the west.

McCallister is the defending champion in the Orange County Open and will be out to try for a repeat victory over the picturesque Mesa Verde course, a few miles inland from the Pacific Ocean.

But regardless which one might win, it will bring a big smile to University of Southern California golf coach Stan Wood who had Geiberger and McCallister on his college team a few years ago.

The ex-teammates are part of the contingent of "young tigers" who have been causing the older pros trouble the past year or two with their fierce competitive desire.

Two of the older members of the pro ranks, Gene Littler and Billy Maxwell, however, might throw roadblocks in the paths of the youngsters. Littler shot rounds of 68 and 70 the final two days at Ontario but could not overcome a bad start enough to challenge the leaders.

Maxwell finished only two strokes back of Geiberger as a result of a five under par 66 the final day, gaining four strokes on the winner. Another who could challenge in the Orange County Open is Tommy Jacobs.

The Bermuda Dunes, Calif., pro had a 65 the final day to equal the best round of the tournament at Ontario and ended in a five-way tie for second at 277.

Others among the top ten in earnings who will compete here include Bob Goalby and Phil Rodgers.

Buckeyes Figure To Cause Rating Shakeup Saturday

Ohio State Picked Over 4th-Ranked Wisconsin Team

By STEVE SNIDER
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ohio State figures to recoup some of its lost football prestige Saturday against Wisconsin's bombing Badgers.

The guess here is that Ohio State will turn loose its passing Joe Sparma to match Wisconsin's nifty thrower, Ron Vander Kelen, and thereby cause a drastic shakeup among the nation's top 10. The Badgers are No. 4 this week, Ohio State No. 18.

In other big ones it's Pittsburgh over Navy, Louisiana State over Florida, Washington over Oregon and Penn State over California.

Around the nation:

The East

Pittsburgh 22, Navy 20 — Panther must check Staubach's passes.

Houston 14, Boston College 7—Cougars play in rougher league

Army 21, George Washington 7—Cadets have the edge all around

Syracuse 21, Holy Cross 8—Orange has the defense to swing this.

Also: Dartmouth over Harvard, Princeton over Cornell, Brown over Rhode Island, Boston U. over Massachusetts, Colgate over Yale, Rutgers over Pennsylvania, Columbia over Lehigh, Ohio U. over Buffalo, Villanova over Xavier.

The Midwest

Ohio State 20, Wisconsin 14—Humbled Buckeyes to shoot the works.

Northwestern 28, Notre Dame 14—Close if Wildcats let down.

Purdue 14, Iowa 7—Staying on comeback trail.

Southern California 28, Illinois 7—Trojans have the horses.

Also: Michigan State over Indiana, Minnesota over Michigan, Nebraska over Colorado, Kansas over Oklahoma State, Oklahoma over Kansas State, Missouri over Iowa State, Richmond over Cincinnati, Detroit over Dayton, Bowling Green over Miami, Ohio, Wichita over Montana State.

The South

Louisiana State 14, Florida 6—Stovall—and Tiger defense.

Alabama 21, Tulsa 6 — Tide keeps rolling.

Duke 28, North Carolina State 7—Blue Devils have the muscle.

Maryland 21, South Carolina 7—Shiner shines again.

Also: Mississippi over Vanderbilt, Georgia Tech over Tulane, Kentucky over Georgia, Auburn over Clemson, Tennessee over Chattanooga, Mississippi State over Memphis State, North Carolina over Wake Forest, Florida State over Virginia Tech, Virginia over Davidson, Furman over the Citadel, William and Mary over VMI.

The Southwest

Texas 28, Rice 7 — Rice defense shaky against a toughie.

Baylor 28, Texas A. and M. 20 — High score figures.

Southern Methodist 14, Texas Tech 7 — Not many touchdowns here.

West Texas State 21, Arizona 13 — Should be a dandy.

Also: Arkansas over Hardin-Simmons, Arizona State over Texas Western.

Far West

Penn State 28, California 14—More woes for Cal.

Oregon State 21, West Virginia 14—On Terry Baker's pitching.

Miami 28, Air Force 20—Miami has trouble on the road.

Washington 14, Oregon 7—Big one for Huskies.

Also: UCLA over Stanford, Washington State over Pacific, Utah over Idaho, Utah State over Brigham Young, Wyoming over Colorado State, Montana over Idaho State, New Mexico over San Jose State.

Terps' Brown Threatens ACC Pass Records

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Maryland's Tom Brown, who is running ahead of the Atlantic Coast Conference record pace for catching passes, also is a reasonable threat to the ACC record for yards gained on pass receptions.

Reaching for records set by Virginia's Sonny Randle in 1958, Brown's first five games have produced 26 catches for 321 yards. The ACC single-season record for receptions is 47, and the yardage record is 642.

When Brown caught six of Dick Shiner's throws against Miami last weekend, he moved eight catches ahead of his nearest ACC challenger, Bob Lacey of North Carolina.

Maryland's loss to Miami last weekend marked the end of a proud string of extra point kicks by the Terps' John Hannigan. He missed one extra-point kick for the first time in his college career, after booting 26 in a row.

Hannigan still tops ACC kickers, however, with his nine-for-10 record.

In pass interceptions, latest ACC Service Bureau figures show that Brown also continues to lead in this race, which has been his private possession since last season. Brown has four pickoffs. Joe Scarpati of N.C. State and Bobby Freeman and Gary Cuozzo of Virginia has each intercepted three.

Bantam Champion To Defend Crown

TOKYO (UPI) — World bantamweight champion Eder Jofre of Brazil will stake his title against hard hitting Japanese southpaw Katsutoshi Aoki in Tokyo next Jan. 3.

Jofre's manager Abraham Ketzenelson signed a contract Wednesday with Akira Kodaka, representing the Kyokuto (Far Eastern) Promotions, at the office of Yachiyo Manabe, Japanese boxing commissioner.

Jofre will be paid $40,000 plus transportation and expenses in Tokyo for his party.

Aoki was ranked seventh contender in the bantamweight division in the latest ratings of the World Boxing Association.

Nugent Chooses 16 Seniors To Captain Terps

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Coach Tom Nugent chose 16 seniors Wednesday to serve as captains in Maryland's homecoming game Saturday with South Carolina.

The Terps worked mainly on the running game today and ran through a dummy scrimmage. Quarterback Dick Shiner, who has a pulled muscle in his back, still was not able to work out with the team.

Nugent said he will send his star quarterback through regular drills Thursday and should know afterward how much Shiner will play Saturday.

World Series Hero Now 'Just Another Student'

Tresh Returns To Classes At Central Michigan

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mich. (AP) — The blond young man strolls across the campus of Central Michigan University and doesn't look out of place at all.

A few days ago he didn't look out of place in the World Series.

Tom Tresh—World Series hero, New York Yankee, an outstanding rookie of 1962—is back in college.

Hours after the World Series ended in San Francisco with another Yankee victory last Tuesday, Tresh was on a plane back to school. Two days after his dazzling catch robbed the Giants' Willie Mays in the seventh game he was back in the classroom.

Since returning late to school, Tom has been given extra sessions to catch up with his classmates.

Tresh has returned to the campus every fall since the Yankee organization signed him in 1958. He's currently a second semester junior, so he won't get his degree in physical education until 1965 at his current rate.

Tresh, who lives on campus in Washington Court, a married students apartment house, with his wife, Cheryl, and 6-weeks-old daughter Michele, said he left the Yankee dressing room 15 minutes after the final game and caught an early plane in order to be in class the next day.

He described the courses at Central Michigan as "an insurance policy for when I'm finished with baseball, or in case something happens along the way."

The five courses Tresh is taking total 13 semester hours, fewer than the average 16 or 17. The fall semester ends on Jan. 25, just about two weeks before the start of spring training.

Tresh has a study load which includes three education courses—"Principles of Teaching, Directed Observation" and "Driver Education"—as well as "Psychology of Adolescents" and "Methods in Teaching Physical Education."

Orlando Cepeda Almost Blind In Right Eye

Player Believed To Have Cataract

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —First baseman Orlando Cepeda of the National League champion San Francisco Giants is nearly blind in his right eye and President Horace Stoneham Wednesday blamed the trouble for Cepeda's late-season flump.

Cepeda revealed that he first found out about the weak eye when he went to take a driver's license test.

"When I took the test they found I couldn't see out of my right eye," said Cepeda. "Left eye, okay. Right eye, bad."

The All-Star first sacker said he planned more visits to the doctor in the near future to see if an operation would be necessary to cure the ailment.

There has been talk for the past six weeks that Cepeda would be traded away from the Giants because of his failure to hit during the last part of the pennant drive. But that appears to be lost now with the revelation of the eye trouble.

Cepeda has been ordered to report to the Giants' eye doctor, Dr. Gary Campion, when a meeting can be arranged.

"If Orlando has a cataract, as suspected, said Stoneham, it could be corrected. We realize now that Cepeda's slump was the result of his eye trouble. I should have guessed, because I remember that sometimes he swung and missed the ball as much as six inches."

Cepeda said he had gone to an eye specialist after his trouble with the driver's license test.

"I'm going back to the doctor for another examination next week before I go home to Puerto Rico," said Cepeda, who has been staying here since the World Series.

Cepeda led the National League in runs-batted-in in 1961 with 142 and in homers with 46. He batted .306 in 1962, but his home run production fell off.

College Scorers Paced By Texan

By The Associated Press

Jerry Logan, the versatile West Texas State back, lead the nation's major college football scorers for the fourth straight week, but end John Simmons of Tulsa has taken over first place among the pass receivers.

Logan has accumulated 86 points on 10 touchdowns and 26 conversions.

Simmons, a 6-3, 200-pound junior playing his first major college season after a junior college Stint, has bagged 41 passes, a record, in five games. He hauled down 11 against Louisville last weekend to oust Vern Burke of Oregon State, the season-long pace-setter, from first. Burke has 37 catches.

The statistics were released Thursday by the NCAA Service Bureau.

West Side Cops Touch Crown

Columbia Street Defeated, 26-12

West Side School won the Class A championship in the Big Five Division of the Elementary School Touch Football League yesterday afternoon by defeating Columbia Street, 26-12, in a playoff game at Stitcher Field. Both teams had ended the regular season with 3-1 records.

The victory gave West Side the title in both the A and B classes of the Big Five Division, the B team having won four straight games in regular season play.

The league championship in both classes will be decided tomorrow when the A and B teams of West Side clash with John Humbird, winners of the Little Four Division. The games will be staged at Post Field, beginning at 4 p.m. Both of Humbird's teams were 4-0 in regular season play.

Another doubleheader is on tap tomorrow at Parkside field, where LaVale will battle Parkside School for the "suburban" championship.

Columbia Street took a 6-0 first period lead yesterday and was heading for another score in the following quarter before West Side's Charles Trimble intercepted a pass and ran it back 55 yards for a tie-producing touchdown.

In the second half, Kurt Muller passed for three touchdowns, while the West Side defense allowed its opponents only one more tally.

Mike Shepherd was on the receiving end of all of Muller's TD tosses, which covered 10, eight and six yards. Eddie Albright and Larry Sloan scored the extra points. Sandy Miller ran for both of the losers' six-pointers.

West Side's Class B team edged Columbia Street, 13-12, in an exhibition game. An inter-league contest between Penn Avenue and Mt. Royal was forfeited by the latter team, which failed to show.

The summary:

West Side	0	6	14	6	26
Columbia Street	6	0	0	6	12

Touchdowns: West Side—Shepherd 3 (10, 8 and 6-yard passes from Muller); Trimble (55-yard pass interception). Columbia Street—Miller 2 (25 and 5-yard runs).

Points after Touchdowns: West Side—Albright (pass from Muller); Sloan (pass from Shepherd).

Referee: Paul Light.

Smart Wins Palmer Handicap At Belmont

NEW YORK, Oct. 24 — (AP) — Christiana Stable's Smart came on powerfully in the stretch to win the Joe H. Palmer Handicap at Belmont Park today.

The 3-year-old son of Thinking Cap-Enchanted Eve, ridden by Eldon Nelson, stepped the mile and an eighth in the moderate time of 1:50 1/5 to win by a length and a half over Little M Farm's Sunrise Flight, who took the place by two lengths over Emil Dole's Grid Iron Hero.

Second choice in the betting with the crowd of 18,542, Smart returned the across the board mutuels of $6.70, $5.00 and $3.90. Sunrise Flight paid $10.80 and $5.10 and Grid Iron Hero was $4.00 to show.

The race was named for the late turf expert of the New York Herald-Tribune.

Yankees Collect Nearly $10,000 Each In Series Shares

New York Win In Final Game Meant $2,591 Difference

NEW YORK (AP) — Ralph Terry's glittering 1-0 conquest of the San Francisco Giants in the seventh and deciding game of the 1962 World Series put an additional $2,591.25 into the pockets of the regular members of the victorious New York Yankees.

This was disclosed Wednesday in the breakdown of Series shares announced by Charles Segar, secretary of baseball. Ford Frick, baseball commissioner, who usually makes these announcements, is in Japan where the Detroit Tigers are on an exhibition tour.

Segar said that a full winning share for the Yankees amounted to $9,882.74 while a full share for the losing Giants came to a record $7,291.49. The Yankees voted 34 full shares and the Giants 29.

The Yanks' winning share is the third highest in Series history. The record is $11,231.18, picked up by Los Angeles Dodgers' players after defeating the Chicago White Sox in 1959. Next is the $11,147.90 received by the New York Giants in 1954 following their four-game sweep of Cleveland.

The Giants' losing share this year is the most ever, surpassing the $7,275.17 collected by the White Sox in '59.

The players' pool totaled $863,281.71 with the Yanks receiving $362,578.32 and the Giants $241,718.88. The runners-up, the Minnesota Twins and Los Angeles Dodgers, get $64,746.32 while the third-place clubs, the Los Angeles Angels and Cincinnati Reds receive $43,164.08.

TOUGHIES AHEAD—West Virginia's Mountaineers, who had won only four games in two years, are moving back into the national spotlight again, being undefeated after five games. The Mountaineers have the rough ones ahead, though, in Oregon State, Penn State and Syracuse. Heading the cast this year are quarterback Jerry Yost, end Gene Heeter, linebacker Pete Goimarac and halfback Tom Woodeshick. (Central Press)

Beaten Fullmer Nominates Tiger 'Fighter Of Year'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dick Tiger of Nigeria, the newly-crowned World Boxing Association middleweight champion, was nominated Wednesday as "the Fighter of the Year."

Who did the nominating?

Gene Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah, the man who lost the title in 15 bloody, bruising rounds Tuesday night at Candlestick Park.

Fullmer's gesture was relayed by his manager, Marv Jenson, at a noon news conference. Gene could not attend. He and his wife were deep in a personal sadness.

The dethroned champion's father-in-law, Leroy Holt, 59, died early Wednesday in Franklin Hospital. Holt suffered a heart attack at the fight.

Tiger, the second Nigerian to win a world title, was not present either. Jersey Jones of New York, his American representative, explained that Tiger was literally swamped by transoceanic calls and messages of congratulations.

Player Believed To Have Cataract

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —First baseman Orlando Cepeda of the National League champion San Francisco Giants is nearly blind in his right eye and President Horace Stoneham Wednesday blamed the trouble for Cepeda's late-season flump.

Cepeda revealed that he first found out about the weak eye when he went to take a driver's license test.

"When I took the test they found I couldn't see out of my right eye," said Cepeda. "Left eye, okay. Right eye, bad."

The All-Star first sacker said he planned more visits to the doctor in the near future to see if an operation would be necessary to cure the ailment.

There has been talk for the past six weeks that Cepeda would be traded away from the Giants because of his failure to hit during the last part of the pennant drive. But that appears to be lost now with the revelation of the eye trouble.

Cepeda has been ordered to report to the Giants' eye doctor, Dr. Gary Campion, when a meeting can be arranged.

"If Orlando has a cataract, as suspected, said Stoneham, it could be corrected. We realize now that Cepeda's slump was the result of his eye trouble. I should have guessed, because I remember that sometimes he swung and missed the ball as much as six inches."

Cepeda said he had gone to an eye specialist after his trouble with the driver's license test.

"I'm going back to the doctor for another examination next week before I go home to Puerto Rico," said Cepeda, who has been staying here since the World Series.

Cepeda led the National League in runs-batted-in in 1961 with 142 and in homers with 46. He batted .306 in 1962, but his home run production fell off.

College Scorers Paced By Texan

By The Associated Press

Jerry Logan, the versatile West Texas State back, lead the nation's major college football scorers for the fourth straight week, but end John Simmons of Tulsa has taken over first place among the pass receivers.

Logan has accumulated 86 points on 10 touchdowns and 26 conversions.

Simmons, a 6-3, 200-pound junior playing his first major college season after a junior college Stint, has bagged 41 passes, a record, in five games. He hauled down 11 against Louisville last weekend to oust Vern Burke of Oregon State, the season-long pace-setter, from first. Burke has 37 catches.

The statistics were released Thursday by the NCAA Service Bureau.

West Side Cops Touch Crown

Columbia Street Defeated, 26-12

West Side School won the Class A championship in the Big Five Division of the Elementary School Touch Football League yesterday afternoon by defeating Columbia Street, 26-12, in a playoff game at Stitcher Field. Both teams had ended the regular season with 3-1 records.

The victory gave West Side the title in both the A and B classes of the Big Five Division, the B team having won four straight games in regular season play.

The league championship in both classes will be decided tomorrow when the A and B teams of West Side clash with John Humbird, winners of the Little Four Division. The games will be staged at Post Field, beginning at 4 p.m. Both of Humbird's teams were 4-0 in regular season play.

Another doubleheader is on tap tomorrow at Parkside field, where LaVale will battle Parkside School for the "suburban" championship.

Columbia Street took a 6-0 first period lead yesterday and was heading for another score in the following quarter before West Side's Charles Trimble intercepted a pass and ran it back 55 yards for a tie-producing touchdown.

In the second half, Kurt Muller passed for three touchdowns, while the West Side defense allowed its opponents only one more tally.

Mike Shepherd was on the receiving end of all of Muller's TD tosses, which covered 10, eight and six yards. Eddie Albright and Larry Sloan scored the extra points. Sandy Miller ran for both of the losers' six-pointers.

West Side's Class B team edged Columbia Street, 13-12, in an exhibition game. An inter-league contest between Penn Avenue and Mt. Royal was forfeited by the latter team, which failed to show.

The summary:

West Side	0	6	14	6—26
Columbia Street	6	0	0	6—12

Touchdowns: West Side—Shepherd 3 (10, 8 and 6-yard passes from Muller); Trimble (55-yard pass interception). Columbia Street—Miller 2 (25 and 5-yard runs).

Points after Touchdowns: West Side—Albright (pass from Muller); Sloan (pass from Shepherd).

Referee: Paul Light.

Smart Wins Palmer Handicap At Belmont

NEW YORK, Oct. 24 — (AP) — Christiana Stable's Smart came on powerfully in the stretch to win the Joe H. Palmer Handicap at Belmont Park today.

The 3-year-old son of Thinking Cap-Enchanted Eve, ridden by Eldon Nelson, stepped the mile and an eighth in the moderate time of 1:50 1/5 to win by a length and a half over Little M Farm's Sunrise Flight, who took the place by two lengths over Emil Dole's Grid Iron Hero.

Second choice in the betting with the crowd of 18,542, Smart returned the across the board mutuels of $6.70, $5.00 and $3.90. Sunrise Flight paid $10.80 and $5.10 and Grid Iron Hero was $4.00 to show.

The race was named for the late turf expert of the New York Herald-Tribune.

PAT's PATS MAY DECIDE BIG ONE — A senior named Pat is Fort Hill High School's point-after-touchdown specialist this season and his PATS could be an important factor in the Sentinels' battle with South Hagerstown's Rebels here Saturday night. Pat Wilson has kicked 28 extra points in 34 attempts for an average of .824. His 28 conversions are 11 less than the city record of 39 for a 10-game season first established in 1948 by Don Decker of the Sentinels and equalled in 1957 by Douglas Metz, also of Fort Hill. Coach Charley Lattimer's team is 7-0 and has three more games on its schedule. The Rebels also are 7-0. Saturday's game is for first place in the Cumberland Valley Athletic League in which both schools own 4-0 records. South High won the title last year with a 6-0 record and the Rebels beat Fort Hill by that score. Shown holding the ball is Billy Dean, who performs this vital function on all of Fort Hill's point-after tries. Note that Dean is about to lose his mouthguard as Wilson's foot approaches the ball.

Buckeyes Work On Everything For Wisconsin

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Coach Woody Hayes put his Ohio State football team through an all-inclusive drill Wednesday that included just about everything in the Buckeyes' bag of tricks.

It was the last workout of the week in preparation for the invasion of unbeaten Wisconsin Saturday in a regionally televised game. Hayes said he was satisfied with the drill, which included all hands except sophomore defensive back Doug Drenik, who still favored a sore knee.

There were no injuries reported in the workout as the squad now begins tapering off and sharpening mentally following last week's costly defeat against Northwestern.

Bellamy Scores 42 In Zephyr Triumph

CHICAGO (UPI) — Walt Bellamy scored 42 points Wednesday night to lead the Chicago Zephyrs to a 118-107 triumph over the Los Angeles Lakers, a team they beat only twice in 10 games last year.

The Zephyrs tallied 33 points in the final 12 minutes and 55 points in the final two periods, at times boosting a margin of 18 points.

The Lakers, taking their fourth defeat in five starts, were ahead only three times, at 7-5, 8-7 and 13-10. The score was tied nine times in the opening session before the Zephyrs grabbed a 20-19 lead on a free throw by Bellamy and stayed in front the rest of the way.

Rudy La Russo paced the Lakers with 26 points. Elgin Baylor, who averaged 35 points a game against Chicago last year, was held to 17.

Fullmer-Tiger Promoter Hopes To Recoup Losses On Rematch

Rothschild Lost Estimated $50,000 In Tuesday's Bout

By HAL WOOD
UPI Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —Promoter Norman Rothschild lost an estimated $50,000 on Tuesday night's Gene Fullmer-Dick Tiger fight, but said Wednesday he expected to make it back on a rematch.

"I have a contract with both fighters for a return bout on Jan. 19 at either Bozeman, Mont., or Las Vegas, Nev.," said Rothschild. "But that doesn't mean it has to be held at either place."

Tiger won the World Boxing Association's middleweight crown in the battle at Candlestick Park —a fight many old-timers believed one of the toughest slugging matches of all time.

"The first four rounds of the bout," said former lightweight champion Willie Ritchie, "have to go down as the greatest."

Garden Shows Interest

Harry Markson of Madison Square Garden said his organization was interested in staging the return bout; and Jersey Jones, Tiger's manager, said that Los Angeles and San Francisco should not be overlooked as possible sites.

The financial loss on the bout here, which drew a house of $101,000 from 11,600 paying customers, was blamed on a series of events, including three postponements, the National League baseball play-offs, World Series, weather—and finally the Cuba situation.

"I doubt that a fight ever was promoted under such harrowing experiences," said Rothschild. "I'm sure it would have drawn $200,000 to $250,000 under the right circumstances."

The return contract calls for each fighter to get 30 per cent of all gate receipts and theater TV returns. In this one Tiger got a $25,000 guarantee, while Fullmer got 45 per cent, plus 66 2-3 per cent of the theater-TV gate.

Tragedy Strikes Fullmer

In addition to Fullmer taking a terrible beating and losing his crown, there was a tragic aftermath to the bout when Fullmer's father-in-law, Roy Holt, died of a heart attack in a hospital Wednesday morning. Holt felt pains as early as the second round, but stayed through the bout and was carried from ringside on a stretcher long after the crowd had left Candlestick Park.

Jenson and Fullmer had nothing except good words for Tiger.

"He'll be the fighter of the year, and he deserves it," said Jenson. "It will be very hard to knock the crown off his head. Fullmer is the only one with a chance.

"But it will be a full month before we know how well his cuts are healing."

The Utah battler had six stitches taken in each eyelid, plus two in his scalp.

Middies On Edge Because Of Crisis

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The world situation has Navy Coach Wayne Hardin as concerned as the Pitt football team his Middies meet in Norfolk's Oyster Bowl Saturday.

"Everybody around here is on edge because of what's happening in Cuba," Hardin said Wednesday at his weekly news conference.

"These boys are a little closer to the scene than most of the rest of us. After all that's what they are being trained for."

Hardin made reference to President Kennedy's naval-sea blockade of Cuba and its effect on military personnel.

He said Monday nights are usually devoted to showing the players motion pictures of the next Saturday's opponent, but the showing was cut short this week.

"They wanted to watch the President's speech," he said.

Hardin added that his players might not have learned as much about Pitt as he would have liked but "I have always said that we're not a football factory.

West Virginia Open Tourney To Start

HURRICANE, W.Va. (UPI) — The 26th annual West Virginia Open golf tournament gets underway here Thursday and veteran campaigner Sam Snead will not be in the field.

Sleepy Hollow pro George Hoffer said Snead called him Wednesday and said he would be unable to participate in the tournament which will end Saturday.

Hoffer said he expected about 100 entries including Ed Tutwiler, Charleston, 10-time West Virginia amateur champion; present amateur champion and former Walker Cup captain Billy Campbell of Huntington, and Al Atkins, Ashland, Kentucky Open champion.

Audrey Christie of the CBS Television Network's "Fair Exchange" made her vaudeville debut at 15 as one of the "Six Chicago Steppers," dancers.

GW's Pazzaglia Leads Conference In Total Offense

WASHINGTON (UPI) — George Washington quarterback Frank Pazzaglia, who passed for 252 yards against West Virginia last Saturday, led the Southern Conference in total offense Wednesday with 542 yards.

Pazzaglia also leads the conference in passing with 43 completions in 65 attempts.

Third in total offense is Earl Cole of Davidson with 502 yards, who is also second in passing with 31 completions in 80 pass tries.

Last week's offense leader, Elliott Keller of Furman, dropped to fourth place after being held to only 43 yards rushing by William and Mary. Keller still maintains the individual rushing lead with 494 yards.

Davidson's Heckard leads passes received, having caught 18 aerials for 399 yards and four touchdowns.

SPORTS S-P-U-T-T-E-R-I-N-G-S

By Walter L. Johns, Central Press Sports Editor

THE NEW OLD MASTER of the tracks, Willie Shoemaker, is heading toward another jockey championship, which would be his sixth, and his old nemesis, Bill Hartack, is giving him the toughest fight for the honors.

Hartack, who has been riding on Chicago tracks, now is in New York to give Willie a race-for-race bid for the title which Hartack has won four times, but hasn't been a titleholder since 1960.

Shoemaker is nearly a couple of dozen wins ahead of Hartack and continues to add to his total every day, nearing the 300 mark, which has been reached by the winning jockey every year since 1949.

The two "Willies"—Hartack wants to be called "Bill"—have dominated the jockey parade since 1952, with the exception of last year, although Shoemaker never has been worse than second in the last 13 years.

His career has been even more spectacular than that of

SHOEMAKER, a native of Fabens, Tex., is 31 years old and rode his first winner on April 20, 1949, at Golden Gate Fields in California.

He won his first jockey title in 1950 when he tied Joe Culmone with 388 winners.

It took Willie just seven seasons to reach the 2,500-win mark. This is remarkable when one considers that Longden didn't reach this mark until 20 years after he started riding, Arcaro, Johnny Adams and Steve Brooks required 18 years to hit that mark and Ted Atkinson was around 15 seasons before he won his 2,500th.

Hartack, who came out of West Virginia and won his first jockey title in 1955, then repeated in 1956-57 and won again in 1960, will be 30 years old December 9.

PAT's PATS MAY DECIDE BIG ONE — A senior named Pat is Fort Hill High School's point-after-touchdown specialist this season and his PATS could be an important factor in the Sentinels' battle with South Hagerstown's Rebels here Saturday night. Pat Wilson has kicked 28 extra points in 34 attempts for an average of .824. His 28 conversions are 11 less than the city record of 39 for a 10-game season first established in 1948 by Don Decker of the Sentinels and equalled in 1957 by Douglas Metz, also of Fort Hill. Coach Charley Lattimer's team is 7-0 and has three more games on its schedule. The Rebels also are 7-0. Saturday's game is for first place in the Cumberland Valley Athletic League in which both schools own 4-0 records. South High won the title last year with a 6-0 record and the Rebels beat Fort Hill by that score. Shown holding the ball is Billy Dean, who performs this vital function on all of Fort Hill's point-after tries. Note that Dean is about to lose his mouthguard as Wilson's foot approaches the ball.

Buckeyes Work On Everything For Wisconsin

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Coach Woody Hayes put his Ohio State football team through an all-inclusive drill Wednesday that included just about everything in the Buckeyes' bag of tricks.

It was the last workout of the week in preparation for the invasion of unbeaten Wisconsin Saturday in a regionally televised game. Hayes said he was satisfied with the drill, which included all hands except sophomore defensive back Doug Drenik, who still favored a sore knee.

There were no injuries reported in the workout as the squad now begins tapering off and sharpening mentally following last week's costly defeat against Northwestern.

Bellamy Scores 42 In Zephyr Triumph

CHICAGO (UPI) — Walt Bellamy scored 42 points Wednesday night to lead the Chicago Zephyrs to a 118-107 triumph over the Los Angeles Lakers, a team they beat only twice in 10 games last year.

The Zephyrs tallied 33 points in the final 12 minutes and 55 points in the final two periods, at times boosting a margin of 18 points.

The Lakers, taking their fourth defeat in five starts, were ahead only three times, at 7-5, 8-7 and 13-10. The score was tied nine times in the opening session before the Zephyrs grabbed a 20-19 lead on a free throw by Bellamy and stayed in front the rest of the way.

Rudy La Russo paced the Lakers with 26 points. Elgin Baylor, who averaged 35 points a game against Chicago last year, was held to 17.

Fullmer-Tiger Promoter Hopes To Recoup Losses On Rematch

By HAL WOOD
UPI Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —Promoter Norman Rothschild lost an estimated $50,000 on Tuesday night's Gene Fullmer-Dick Tiger fight, but said Wednesday he expected to make it back on a rematch.

"I have a contract with both fighters for a return bout on Jan. 19 at either Bozeman, Mont., or Las Vegas, Nev.," said Rothschild. "But that doesn't mean it has to be held at either place."

Tiger won the World Boxing Association's middleweight crown in the battle at Candlestick Park —a fight many old-timers believed one of the toughest slugging matches of all time.

"The first four rounds of the bout," said former lightweight champion Willie Ritchie, "have to go down as the greatest."

Garden Shows Interest

Harry Markson of Madison Square Garden said his organization was interested in staging the return bout; and Jersey Jones, Tiger's manager, said that Los Angeles and San Francisco should not be overlooked as possible sites.

The financial loss on the bout here, which drew a house of $101,000 from 11,600 paying customers, was blamed on a series of events, including three postponements, the National League baseball play-offs, World Series, weather—and finally the Cuba situation.

"I doubt that a fight ever was promoted under such harrowing experiences," said Rothschild. "I'm sure it would have drawn $200,000 to $250,000 under the right circumstances."

The return contract calls for each fighter to get 30 per cent of all gate receipts and theater TV returns. In this one Tiger got a $25,000 guarantee, while Fullmer got 45 per cent, plus 66 2-3 per cent of the theater-TV gate.

Tragedy Strikes Fullmer

In addition to Fullmer taking a terrible beating and losing his crown, there was a tragic aftermath to the bout when Fullmer's father-in-law, Roy Holt, died of a heart attack in a hospital Wednesday morning. Holt felt pains as early as the second round, but stayed through the bout and was carried from ringside on a stretcher long after the crowd had left Candlestick Park.

Jenson and Fullmer had nothing except good words for Tiger.

"He'll be the fighter of the year, and he deserves it," said Jenson. "It will be very hard to knock the crown off his head. Fullmer is the only one with a chance.

"But it will be a full month before we know how well his cuts are healing."

West Virginia Open Tourney To Start

HURRICANE, W.Va. (UPI) — The 26th annual West Virginia Open golf tournament gets underway here Thursday and veteran campaigner Sam Snead will not be in the field.

Sleepy Hollow pro George Hoffer said Snead called him Wednesday and said he would be unable to participate in the tournament which will end Saturday.

Hoffer said he expected about 100 entries including Ed Tutwiler, Charleston, 10-time West Virginia amateur champion; present amateur champion and former Walker Cup captain Billy Campbell of Huntington, and Al Atkins, Ashland, Kentucky Open champion.

Audrey Christie of the CBS Television Network's "Fair Exchange" made her vaudeville debut at 15 as one of the "Six Chicago Steppers," dancers.

GW's Pazzaglia Leads Conference In Total Offense

WASHINGTON (UPI) — George Washington quarterback Frank Pazzaglia, who passed for 252 yards against West Virginia last Saturday, led the Southern Conference in total offense Wednesday with 542 yards.

Pazzaglia also leads the conference in passing with 43 completions in 65 attempts.

West Virginia's Jerry Yost is second in total offense with 523 yards, and fourth in passing with 28 completions in 55 attempts.

Third in total offense is Earl Cole of Davidson with 502 yards, who is also second in passing with 31 completions in 80 pass tries.

Last week's offense leader, Elliott Keller of Furman, dropped to fourth place after being held to only 43 yards rushing by William and Mary. Keller still maintains the individual rushing lead with 494 yards.

Davidson's Heckard leads passes received, having caught 18 aerials for 399 yards and four touchdowns.

Middies On Edge Because Of Crisis

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The world situation has Navy Coach Wayne Hardin as concerned as the Pitt football team his Middies meet in Norfolk's Oyster Bowl Saturday.

"Everybody around here is on edge because of what's happening in Cuba," Hardin said Wednesday at his weekly news conference.

"These boys are a little closer to the scene than most of the rest of us. After all that's what they are being trained for."

Hardin made reference to President Kennedy's naval-sea blockade of Cuba and its effect on military personnel.

He said Monday nights are usually devoted to showing the players motion pictures of the next Saturday's opponent, but the showing was cut short this week.

"They wanted to watch the President's speech," he said.

Hardin added that his players might not have learned as much about Pitt as he would have liked but "I have always said that we're not a football factory.

SPORTS S-P-U-T-T-E-R-I-N-G-S

By Walter L. Johns, Central Press Sports Editor

THE NEW OLD MASTER of the tracks, Willie Shoemaker, is heading toward another jockey championship, which would be his sixth, and his old nemesis, Bill Hartack, is giving him the toughest fight for the honors.

Hartack, who has been riding on Chicago tracks, now is in New York to give Willie a race-for-race bid for the title which Hartack has won four times, but hasn't been a titleholder since 1960.

Shoemaker is nearly a couple of dozen wins ahead of Hartack and continues to add to his total every day, nearing the 300 mark, which has been reached by the winning jockey every year since 1949.

The two "Willies"—Hartack wants to be called "Bill"—have dominated the jockey parade since 1952, with the exception of last year, although Shoemaker never has been worse than second in the last 13 years.

With Eddie Arcaro retired, Shoemaker rates as the "Crown Prince" of racing.

Arcaro, or Johnny Longden, the old gaffer who heads the list of all-time winners and is still riding.

SHOEMAKER, a native of Fabens, Tex., is 31 years old and rode his first winner on April 20, 1949, at Golden Gate Fields in California.

He won his first jockey title in 1950 when he tied Joe Culmone with 388 winners.

It took Willie just seven seasons to reach the 2,500-win mark. This is remarkable when one considers that Longden didn't reach this mark until 20 years after he started riding, Arcaro, Johnny Adams and Steve Brooks required 18 years to hit that mark and Ted Atkinson was around 15 seasons before he won his 2,500th.

At the moment Shoemaker is nearing the 4,500th winner of his career, and he thus ranks third behind Longden and Arcaro.

In purses won he's second to Arcaro with more than $25,000,000 brought in with his mounts.

Hartack, who came out of West Virginia and won his first jockey title in 1955, then repeated in 1956-57 and won again in 1960, will be 30 years old December 9.

Md. Civil Defense Centers Deluged With Phone Calls

PIKESVILLE, Md. (AP) — Volume of telephone calls to Maryland civil defense centers, already great because of the Cuban crisis, increased dramatically at 10 a.m. Wednesday.

That was the hour the quarantine of Cuba went into effect.

Mrs. Marie Smith, chief clerk of the Dorchester County civil defense office, said she had been receiving only a few calls before 10 a.m. but immediately after that they came in a deluge.

At the Maryland Civil Defense Agency headquarters in Pikesville, officials went on around-the-clock duty. Instead of one person to answer telephone calls, two and three persons were needed.

"It was busy before 10 o'clock," said Mrs. Ethel Sherman of the center, "but after that it was busier."

Up to 90 per cent of the queries were about location of fallout shelters, equipment to be stocked in the shelters and precautions to be taken to survive a nuclear attack.

Dorchester County officials were asked to be sure the 18 radiological monitor centers in the county had their equipment in working order. The county has nine shelters with a capacity of 4,000 persons. The county population is 28,000.

Gen. Kenneth Sweany, operations officer for the Maryland Civil Defense agency, said all county civil defense centers were busy answering inquiries.

The Maryland headquarters are connected directly to the North American Air Defense Command at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Meanwhile, Dr. Richard McKay, state coordinator of civil defense adult education, said classes in survival will start Monday night in both Baltimore city and county.

Prince Georges Reception Pleases Tawes

Night Rally Held At Oxon Hill Hall

OXON HILL, Md. (AP)—Governor Tawes spent a day of intensive campaigning in Southern Prince Georges County Wednesday and was well-pleased with his reception.

The governor and his statewide running mates made eight stops during the day in the area of the state where his opponent, Republican Frank Small Jr., resides. At most of them, they were greeted by crowds ranging between 100 and 250 persons at a series of organized coffee hours.

The day wound up with a night rally at Oxon Hill firehouse.

It was the second day of touring by Tawes and his ticket in Prince Georges, which the governor considers a key county in his bid for re-election.

He lost the county by some 2,000 votes in the Democratic primary, and traditionally Democrats have had a party split in this South Maryland area, which in previous years has been solidly in the Democratic column.

The gov nor said he was impressed with the turnouts which greeted him and considered it a good sign for Nov. 6. The crowds corresponded to those of last Friday when the ticket toured the Northern end of Prince Georges County.

The governor plans to return Saturday night for a countywide rally and will campaign in the county again Monday, the most intensive he has ever done in Prince Georges.

Accompanying him were Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein, Atty. Gen. Thomas B. Finan, Carlton Sickles, candidate for congressman-at-large, and Rep. Richard E. Lankford, from Southern Maryland's 5th District.

Representative Daniel Brewster, candidate for the U. S. Senate, was not with the ticket during the day but was expected for the night rally.

At one of the best attended gatherings at a restaurant at Piscataway, the group was treated to a floor show featuring three dancers, one of them a 250-pound-plus hoola dancer who bills herself as Momma Nui. She ended her act by dancing up to Tawes, sitting on his lap and kissing him on the cheek, while the crowd shrieked.

CATALOG AVAILABLE

When you are looking for a home in the papers, you want to know about as many homes as possible, to cut down on your searching time. To help with this, we have developed a catalog of homes, by making up sheets with a photo and description of each home, with all the information we can gather as to operating costs, taxes, etc., and we can make these up into a nice catalog showing a selection of houses, one of which may be the one for you. Call us for a copy. No obligation — just a lot of good information for you.

Two Policemen Are Suspended

FROSTBURG—Two city police officers have been suspended from duty "for judgement and actions detrimental to the citizens of Frostburg."

Patrolmen Edward Bevans and James Pfaff drew the suspensions, according to Chief Donald Griffith.

Bevans was suspended for 10 days and Pfaff for five days. Chief Griffith explained that the duration of suspensions differ because Bevans was the senior or supervisory officer involved.

The patrolmen were reportedly suspended because they left the city limits without authorization while on duty. The suspensions became effective yesterday.

Both officers reportedly were notified by letter of suspension action taken.

Hughes, Beall

undertook the gigantic effort to place the final decision as to whether it shall become law before the people of Maryland on referendum.

"Fourth: This past spring, my opponent announced that he had obtained some money in the state's capital improvements program to be spent at Dan's Mountain Recreation Area. The citizens of Allegany County in general and the citizens of the George's Creek area in particular have waited all summer to see the improvements which were to be constructed. I ask you, what has been done to improve Dan's Mountain Recreation Area since the big announcement? The answer you well know."

Cites Own Record

Mr. Hughes, in discussing his own record as a former member of the House of Delegates, took credit for helping to expand the roads program, for helping to transfer Miners Hospital gradually to local control, and for helping Frostburg State Teachers College to expand.

Del. Beall, speaking in behalf of Mr. Hughes, called Route 36 from Mt. Savage to Westernport "a public disgrace." He blamed the Tawes Administration for failing to improve the road in spite of its high accident rate.

"They took one million dollars from the general fund to rebuild the boardwalk at Ocean City but there has not been one penny spent to stop the bloodbath on Route 36," he said.

Of the state administration, he said, "We have been subjected to four years of vacillation, of savings and loan scandals, of government by crony and by tape recorder."

The rally was arranged by Melvin Sloan, member of the Allegany County Republican State Central Committee, with David J. Williams of Midland, candidate for the House of Delegates, as master of ceremonies.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Sealed bids will be received by the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, at the office of the City Clerk, City Hall, Cumberland, Maryland, until 10:00 o'clock A. M., Local Time, Monday, November 5, 1962, at which time they will be publicly opened and read, for one (1) six cylinder, 2-door sedan for use in the Police Department, meeting the following minimum specifications:

6 cylinder 140 H.P. Engine; 2-Door model — Black; Automatic transmission — 3 forward speeds; Oil filter; Turn signals; Positive action wipers (electric); Fresh air heater and defroster; Heavy-Duty battery — 70 amp; 50 amp. heavy duty alternator; heavy duty springs and shocks, front and rear; Heavy duty wiring; 1963 Model; equipped with Safety Belts for driver and front seat passenger.

In submitting bids, allowance must be made for taking in trade one (1) 1961 Ford, 2-door sedan, which may be inspected at the Police Department, Public Safety Building, Cumberland, Maryland. Also, approximate date of delivery must be specified.

The Mayor and City Council reserves the right to select the vehicle which, in its judgment, will be best suited for its requirements and further reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

All bids must be plainly endorsed on the outside of the envelope in which they are submitted, "BID FOR CRUISER CAR".

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

In The Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, Marian B. Hite, complainant, vs. Irby R. Hite, defendant, No. 26761 Equity.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree of divorce A VINCULO MATRIMONII by the complainant, Marian B. Hite, from the defendant, Irby R. Hite.

The Bill recites the marriage on June 17, 1949, in Bowling Green, Allegany County, Maryland; that five children were born to them; that the defendant has committed adultery; that the complainant has not lived or cohabited with him since she learned of his adulterous acts nor in any manner condoned the same; that complainant has been a resident of Maryland for more than one year prior to filing Bill of Complaint, and defendant a non-resident of Maryland, present address unknown.

IT IS THEREUPON ORDERED this 16th day of October, 1962, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, in Equity, that the complainant, by causing a copy of this Order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Allegany County, Maryland, once in each of four consecutive weeks before the 17th day of November, 1962, giving notice of the object and substance of this Bill of Complaint to the absent, non-resident defendant, warning him to be and appear in this Court, in person or by attorney, on or before the 18th day of December, 1962, to show cause, if any he may have, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

Two Policemen Are Suspended

FROSTBURG—Two city police officers have been suspended from duty "for judgement and actions detrimental to the citizens of Frostburg."

Patrolmen Edward Bevans and James Pfaff drew the suspensions, according to Chief Donald Griffith.

Bevans was suspended for 10 days and Pfaff for five days. Chief Griffith explained that the duration of suspensions differ because Bevans was the senior or supervisory officer involved.

The patrolmen were reportedly suspended because they left the city limits without authorization while on duty. The suspensions became effective yesterday.

Both officers reportedly were notified by letter of suspension action taken.

undertook the gigantic effort to place the final decision as to whether it shall become law before the people of Maryland on referendum.

"Fourth: This past spring, my opponent announced that he had obtained some money in the state's capital improvements program to be spent at Dan's Mountain Recreation Area. The citizens of Allegany County in general and the citizens of the George's Creek area in particular have waited all summer to see the improvements which were to be constructed. I ask you, what has been done to improve Dan's Mountain Recreation Area since the big announcement? The answer you well know."

Cites Own Record

Mr. Hughes, in discussing his own record as a former member of the House of Delegates, took credit for helping to expand the roads program, for helping to transfer Miners Hospital gradually to local control, and for helping Frostburg State Teachers College to expand.

Del. Beall, speaking in behalf of Mr. Hughes, called Route 36 from Mt. Savage to Westernport "a public disgrace." He blamed the Tawes Administration for failing to improve the road in spite of its high accident rate.

"They took one million dollars from the general fund to rebuild the boardwalk at Ocean City but there has not been one penny spent to stop the bloodbath on Route 36," he said.

Of the state administration, he said, "We have been subjected to four years of vacillation, of savings and loan scandals, of government by crony and by tape recorder."

The rally was arranged by Melvin Sloan, member of the Allegany County Republican State Central Committee, with David J. Williams of Midland, candidate for the House of Delegates, as master of ceremonies.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Sealed bids will be received by the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, at the office of the City Clerk, City Hall, Cumberland, Maryland, until 10:00 o'clock A. M., Local Time, Monday, November 5, 1962, at which time they will be publicly opened and read, for one (1) six cylinder, 2-door sedan for use in the Police Department, meeting the following minimum specifications:

6 cylinder 140 H.P. Engine; 2-Door model — Black; Automatic transmission — 3 forward speeds; Oil filter; Turn signals; Positive action wipers (electric); Fresh air heater and defroster; Heavy-Duty battery — 70 amp; 50 amp. heavy duty alternator; heavy duty springs and shocks, front and rear; Heavy duty wiring; 1963 Model; equipped with Safety Belts for driver and front seat passenger.

In submitting bids, allowance must be made for taking in trade one (1) 1961 Ford, 2-door sedan, which may be inspected at the Police Department, Public Safety Building, Cumberland, Maryland. Also, approximate date of delivery must be specified.

The Mayor and City Council reserves the right to select the vehicle which, in its judgment, will be best suited for its requirements and further reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

All bids must be plainly endorsed on the outside of the envelope in which they are submitted, "BID FOR CRUISER CAR".

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

In The Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, Marian B. Hite, complainant, vs. Irby R. Hite, defendant, No. 26761 Equity.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree of divorce A VINCULO MATRIMONII by the complainant, Marian B. Hite, from the defendant, Irby R. Hite.

The Bill recites the marriage on June 17, 1949, in Bowling Green, Allegany County, Maryland; that five children were born to them; that the defendant has committed adultery; that the complainant has not lived or cohabited with him since she learned of his adulterous acts nor in any manner condoned the same; that complainant has been a resident of Maryland for more than one year prior to filing Bill of Complaint, and defendant a non-resident of Maryland, present address unknown.

IT IS THEREUPON ORDERED this 16th day of October, 1962, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, in Equity, that the complainant, by causing a copy of this Order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Allegany County, Maryland, once in each of four consecutive weeks before the 17th day of November, 1962, giving notice of the object and substance of this Bill of Complaint to the absent, non-resident defendant, warning him to be and appear in this Court, in person or by attorney, on or before the 18th day of December, 1962, to show cause, if any he may have, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

Rocky Gap Park Would Provide 300-Acre Lake

Route 40 Group Pushes Action

A mental picture of a 300-acre lake visible to westbound motorists on U. S. Route 40 from atop Martin Mountain was presented last night as one of the advantages that would accrue to this area from the development of the proposed Rocky Gap State Park just north of Route 40 down the westerly side of the mountain.

Edward Habeeb, president of the Route 40 Association, mentioned this picture possibility at the dinner meeting last night of the association at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club attended by nearly 50 interested citizens of Allegany County.

An elaboration on this picture was provided by Joseph F. Kaylor, director of the State Department of Forests and Parks, who provided a more detailed explanation of what the state proposes to develop in the way of a state park just a few miles east of Cumberland.

2,200 Acres Sought

Eventually the state hopes to acquire between 2,200 and 2,500 acres of land for Rocky Gap State Park extending it to the edge of Route 40 because this would be the route that most visitors to the park would take.

Some $100,000 has been provided by the state for the purchase of land for this park, which would be the first state park in Allegany County. There is a Dan's Mountain Recreation Area near Lonaconing owned by the State Department of Forests and Parks but it is not large enough to be classified as a state park.

With the construction of a dam and the creation of a 300-acre lake on the park there would be plenty of facilities for acquatic recreation including fishing, boating, camping, swimming, picnicking and other related activities.

Although the development of the park itself should be the responsibility of the state, Mr. Kaylor said he believes most of the park-related services should be provided by private enterprise.

Free Enterprise Need

He expressed doubts that Maryland would ever go into the business of operating motels, hotels and restaurants in and near state parks. These facilities should be operated by free enterprise, he contends.

Visitors to state parks bring new dollars into the area. They purchase gasoline and groceries, and most of them like to take novelties home with them. The director of the State Department of Forests and Parks expressed a belief that local people could profit by producing wood-carved products from Western Maryland which they could sell visitors to the park.

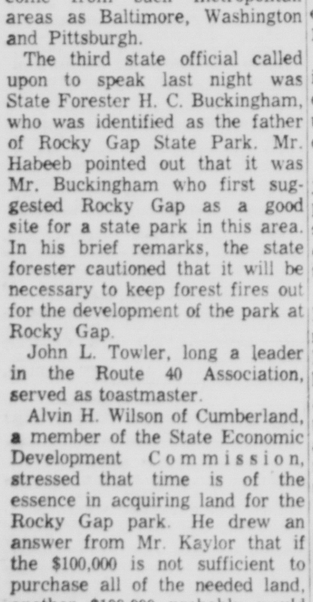
William A. Parr, director of state parks in Maryland, also spoke about the Rocky Gap possibilities. Visitors to the park would include local groups, vacationers from distant points spending one or two weeks here, and weekend campers who presumably would come from such metropolitan areas as Baltimore, Washington and Pittsburgh.

The third state official called upon to speak last night was State Forester H. C. Buckingham, who was identified as the father of Rocky Gap State Park. Mr. Habeeb pointed out that it was Mr. Buckingham who first suggested Rocky Gap as a good site for a state park in this area. In his brief remarks, the state forester cautioned that it will be necessary to keep forest fires out for the development of the park at Rocky Gap.

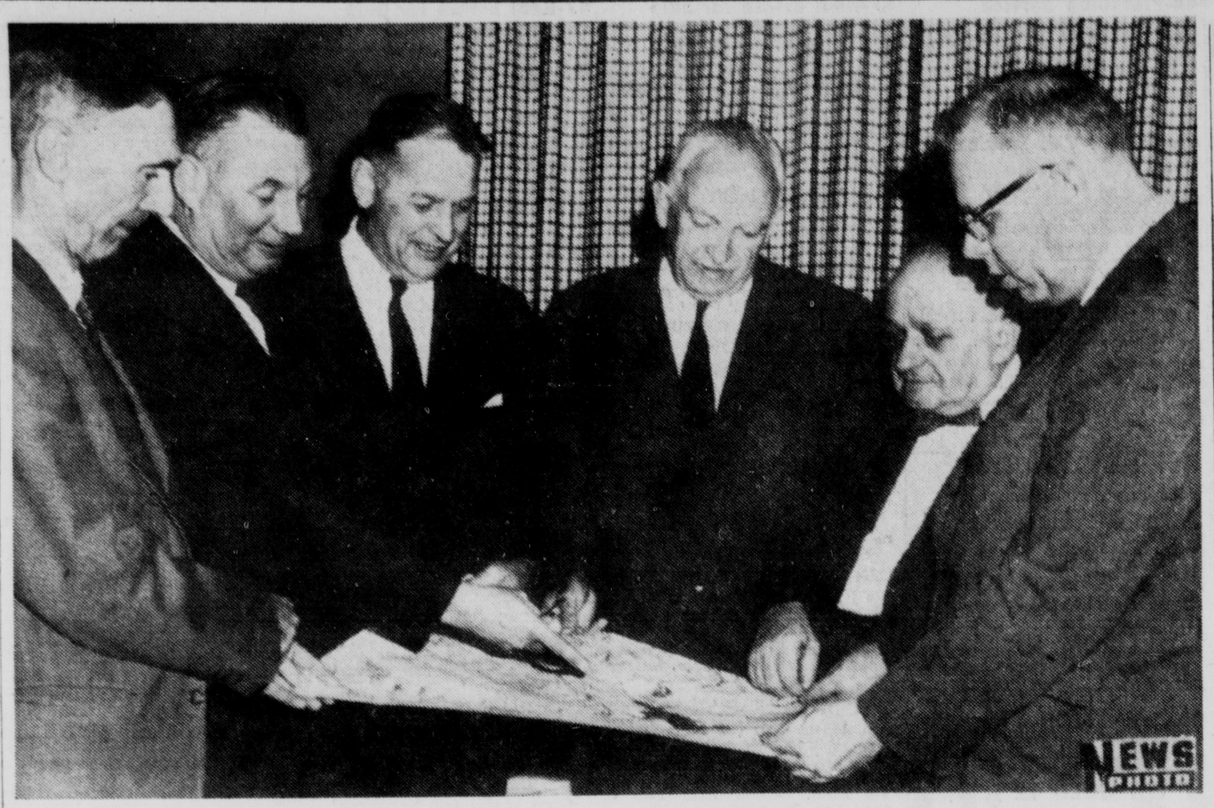
John L. Towler, long a leader in the Route 40 Association, served as toastmaster.

Alvin H. Wilson of Cumberland, a member of the State Economic Development Commission, stressed that time is of the essence in acquiring land for the Rocky Gap park. He drew an answer from Mr. Kaylor that if the $100,000 is not sufficient to purchase all of the needed land, another $100,000 probably would be obtained in the next fiscal year starting July 1, 1963.

Mr. Habeeb pointed to one irony about last night's meeting. It had been hoped that all of the candidates for state senator, House of Delegates and county commissioners could attend so that assurances could be made that the park would be pushed regardless of the winners November 6. However, the only candidate present for the dinner was County Treasurer James W. Bishop, Republican, who seeks re-election.



COLLECTION DAY TODAY



Discuss Rocky Gap State Park

These men led a detailed discussion last night on the proposed Rocky Gap State Park in Allegany County. The affair was sponsored by the Route 40 Association at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. Pictured, left to right, are State Forester H. C. Buckingham, F. Perry Smith Jr., this city, a member of the Governor's Master Plan Committee on State Parks; Joseph F. Kaylor, director of the State Department of Forests and Parks; Alvin H. Wilson, this city, a member of the State Economic Development Commission; Edward Habeeb, president of the Route 40, Association, and William A. Parr, superintendent of parks.

70 Per Cent Of Disability Blamed On Fall

Jury Deliberates At End Of Trial

After deliberating about two and one-half hours, an Allegany County Circuit Court jury yesterday afternoon decided that a wheelwright at the Luke mill of West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company sustained 70 per cent of his disability as a result of a fall on ice at the mill on or about December 19,1960.

The jury of seven men and five women had five issues to determine in reaching its verdict. William G. Umstot of Cumberland was the foreman.

Clarence K. Stanley of Westernport had been awarded 40 per cent disability by the State Workmen's Compensation Commission and his attorneys, Simon F. Reilly and Milton Gerson, appealed to Circuit Court.

On the first issue, the jury decided that Mr. Stanley was not permanently and totally disabled as a result of the accidental injury he sustained in the course of his employment on or about December 19, 1960.

The jury decided in the second issue that Mr. Stanley was permanently and partially disabled by the accidental injury.

On the third issue, the jury ruled that Mr. Stanley had a disease or infirmity within the meaning of the Workmen's Compensation Law of Maryland which preexisted the fall of December 19, 1960.

The jury decided on the fourth issue that Mr. Stanley's present disability is caused or contributed to in part by the pre-existing disease or infirmity.

Finally, on the fifth issue, the jury ruled that 70 per cent of his permanent partial disability resulted from his accidental injury of December 19, 1960, and that the other 30 per cent pre-existed.

Horace P. Whitworth Jr. and Hugh A. McMullen were attorneys for West Virginia Pulp and Paper. Evidence in the case was heard Tuesday and the closing argument took place yesterday morning. The jury deliberated about an hour before lunch and then resumed for another 90 minutes after lunch.

Hume Benched By Doctors

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP) —David Hume, Charles County attorney and Democratic politician, has been ordered by physicians to rest at his home for an indefinite period because of a persistent bronchial infection.

Hume underwent the latest of a series of tests Wednesday after attending a political rally in Prince Georges County and returned immediately to his home at Mount Eagle in Charles County.

Hume said he definitely would take no further part in the current political campaign. He has been actively supporting Gov. Tawes, who defeated him for the Democratic nomination in last May's primary.

"For the past several weeks, my physicians have felt that I should stop all activity because of a bronchial infection which has persisted," Hume said.

"After further tests today, they concluded that it was imperative that I stop at once."

Hume had attended a coffee rally for Tawes and other Democratic candidates at the home of Samuel W. H. Meloy near Upper Marlboro.

After the examination later in the morning, he immediately canceled a speaking engagement in Annapolis Wednesday night, another scheduled in Baltimore for Thursday night and three days of campaigning this week in Montgomery County.

Cuban Crisis Increases Need For Red Cross Aides

Because of the existing Cuban situation, Allegany County Chapter, American Red Cross, anticipates an increase in the work load of its home service and the need for volunteer social welfare aides, Mrs. Sara G. Lindsay, executive secretary, said yesterday.

The aides work with home service under the direction of Mrs. Marion Barkman, secretary, to help families of men and women in the armed forces, and veterans and their families to meet personal and family problems.

A social welfare aide volunteers training course will be held next week by the local chapter at Beth Jacob Synagogue, Columbia Street. The course is 30 hours long and will be held Monday through Friday from 9 a. m. until 4 p. m.

Miss Mary Christian of the Red Cross Eastern Area Headquarters, Alexandria, Va., will instruct the course. A native of Kentucky, she worked with WPA there until joining the Red Cross staff in 1942. In 1942 she left the Red Cross to work for the War Relocation Authority Welfare Section at Japanese Relocation Center, Gila River, Ariz. She returned to Red Cross in 1946 in the Home Service section, Eastern Area, where she has been since with the exception of 15 months during which she attended college. She is a graduate of University of Kentucky and of Smith College School of Social Workers.

Services performed by the social welfare aides include reporting and communications, assistance with applications for government benefits, counseling in personal and family problems, referral to other community sources of help, and financial assistance.

Aides completing the class may carry either a wide variety of duties or specialize, according to their own choice.

No Candidates File In Time For LaVale Board

Residents of Election District 29 in LaVale will not have the opportunity November 6 to elect a member to the LaVale Zoning Board.

A petition signed by 23 LaVale residents was submitted to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners Tuesday endorsing Douglas Smith, 157 National Highway, for a six-year term on the LaVale Zoning Board.

James G. Stevenson, clerk to the county commissioners, wrote a letter to Cameron L. Otto, 11 Bane Street, LaVale, one of the signers of the petition, informing him that legally the petition had to be received 60 days before the November 6 election for Mr. Smith's name to appear on the ballot.

He explained that the petition will be kept on file so that Mr. Smith may be appointed when his term expires. He has been a member of the LaVale Zoning Board since his appointment by the county commissioners December 29, 1960.

B&O Crossing Complaint Aired

The Ellerslie Volunteer Fire Company, Inc., through F. E. Logsdon, its secretary, has written a letter to T. E. Johnson, superintendent of the Pittsburgh Division of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, complaining about the condition of the B&O main line crossing in Ellerslie.

A copy of the letter was sent to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

The letter says the crossing is properly equipped with a crossarm and flashlight signals, but it is considered too narrow and the exits are too sudden.

County Tax Collector William B. Orndorff has written the County Commissioners requesting that a Civil Service test be given for the position of tax office clerk as the girl holding that position is now on leave of absence and has indicated she will not return to work.

The commissioners also have given Mary H. Hoffman a probationary appointment as practical nurse at the County Infirmary. She has been a cleaning woman and laundry helper there since April 4, 1961.

One Of Two Missing Girls Is Located

One of two Frostburg area girls who have been missing from their homes since October 13 has been located in a Newark, Ohio, hospital, State Police were informed yesterday.

Patricia Ann O'Brien, 16, of RD 1, Frostburg, was reported in the hospital at Newark, according to authorities, who said she apparently became ill. Her parents are to go to Ohio today to get her.

Meanwhile Ann Willison, also 16, of Shaft, is still missing, according to police, who said the two girls apparently left the Frostburg area together.

FOP Meeting Sunday

Members of Fort Cumberland Lodge 90, Fraternal Order of Police, will meet at 7:30 p. m. Sunday in the National Guard Armory in Frostburg. Refreshments will be served.

Players To Elect Officers Tonight

The Algonquin Players will elect officers and announce plans for forthcoming plays at a meeting at 8:45 p. m. today at City Hall auditorium, Mrs. Amy Slough, secretary, said last night.

Members are asked to attend, as committees will be needed for help with the Players' next production, "The Moon Is Blue", November 14 and 15.

Tax Collections In September Reach $69,660

Four-Month Yield Hits $3,117,813

September collections of $69,660.81 brought the four-month yield from the Allegany County real estate and personal property taxes to $3,117,813.65, according to the records of County Tax Collector William B. Orndorff.

The four-month yield is 100.5 per cent of the $3,103,350 anticipated by the conservative county commissioners for the entire fiscal year when they set the tax rate of $1.85 on each $100 of assessed valuation early in April.

After four months the collections are running $203,033.54 behind the $3,320,847.19 collected in the corresponding four months of 1961. Then the rate was $2.10 on each $100 of assessed valuation so the yield should have been greater.

Funds also were collected last month at the Court House for four special taxing areas of the county. Included were $621.90 for LaVale, $305.95 for Cresaptown, $24.03 for Mt. Savage.

The collector's office also received $9,301.21 in 1961 county real estate and personal property taxes. State real estate tax collections at the Court House also included $35,804.48 in 1962 taxes and $784.70 in 1961 taxes. The state collections for last month included $23,122.05 in real estate taxes and $12,682.43 from corporations.

Monthly totals starting with June, when the bills were mailed out and a five per cent discount on county taxes was allowed, with 1961 figures listed first in each case:

June—$2,966,246.29 and $2,803,842.42; July—$139,669.05 and $118,915.56; August—$131,443.55 and $125,394.86 and September—$83,488.30 and $69,660.81.

October is the first month in which interest is being charged on county and state taxes. It is one-half of one per cent this month and will increase one-half per cent each month.

Hughes, Beall Blame Walsh, Tawes Ticket

Cite Route 36, Jobless Pay Bill

Democrats were blamed for tighter restrictions on unemployment compensation and for alleged delays in improvement of State Route 36 at a Republican rally last night at the Midland fire hall.

George R. Hughes Jr., Republican nominee for State Senate, and Del. J. Glenn Beall Jr., speaking in behalf of Mr. Hughes, blamed Hughes' opponent, Democratic Del. William Walsh, on both scores.

"My opponent in the present campaign has been trying to convince you that the Democrat Party is the 'party of the people.' However, this moth-eaten and tattered illusion just won't hold together for another election," said Hughes. "It has no more substance than my opponent's claim that, as a Democrat in a Democrat-controlled Legislature, he can do more for Allegany County than I can. Let's test that statement and ascertain whether the record bears out my opponent's claim.

State Route 36

"First: What did my opponent and his Democrat Party do for Allegany County with regard to road improvements which are so badly needed? In 1960, he and his Democrat friends in the Maryland Legislature voted to postpone indefinitely the reconstruction of Route 36 and other roads in Allegany County, thereby changing the McKeldin 12-year roads program which had provided for the reconstruction of Route 36. Can anyone now question the dire need for this improvement?

"Second: In 1961 my opponent and his Democrat friends in the Maryland Legislature voted to increase the amount of money collected from the sales tax, even though the state treasury contains a surplus of more than $20 million. This increase in the sales tax further raises the cost of living to those of our citizens who are least able to bear this increase. I mean the people who are living on fixed income such as private pensions, Social Security retirement and disability pensions. This move increased the cost of living to our older persons, our widows with children, our citizens who are sick and unable to work, and others.

Senate Bill 19

"Third: Again in 1961, my opponent and his Democrat friends in the Maryland Legislature voted to take away from working men and women and their families unemployment compensation benefits which they had been receiving previously when unemployed through no fault of their own. Yes, my opponent supported and voted for Senate Bill No. 19, a law which takes away or postpones unemployment compensation for pregnant women who are able and willing to work, older persons who are able and willing to work, persons whose jobs have been terminated or eliminated and are unable to find other jobs, and others. Workingmen and women found this polyglot legislation to be so obnoxious that they

Demos Avoid Party Label, Ebert Says

Charges Billboards Lack Designation

Some Democratic candidates for county commissioners hesitate to identify themselves with their own party, Robert Little Ebert, Republican candidate for the county board, told about 120 persons at a rally at the Midland fire hall last night.

"Several of our county commissioner opponents have dotted the countryside with large billboards—each one running as an individual—without so much as a mention in even the smallest type that they are Democrats," he said.

"The same is true of their other advertising—not a word about being Democrats.

Republicans "Proud" Of Label

"Is it possible they are not very proud of belonging to Mr. Kennedy's party? Are they keeping far away from the stigma of the Tawes Administration? Frankly, I don't blame them in the least for not wanting to admit they are Democrats. But you, the voters, have every right to know it.

"Any county commissioner candidate who refuses to name his party is a Democrat. The Republican candidates are proud to run under the GOP banner—and we are proud to support the entire Republican ticket."

Mr. Ebert spoke in behalf of himself and the two other Republican candidates for county commissioner, Russell H. Carder and Louis V. Shinnamon, a present member of the board.

Says Employes Used

Kenneth H. Lowe, vice chairman of the Republican campaign, charged that Democrats in the Court House are using Court House employes to prepare and mail out party literature.

Mr. Lowe spoke on behalf of the statewide and Congressional candidates, Frank T. Small Jr. for governor, David C. Champion for comptroller, Martin A. Ferris III for attorney general, Edward T. Miller for U. S. Senator, Newton I. Steers Jr., for Congressman at large, and Charles McC. Mathias Jr. for re-election to Congress from the Sixth District.

Mr. Lowe urged that everyone pull all 25 levers Line B on the voting machines in the November 6 general election to carry out the Republican campaign slogan, "Sweep the state clean in '62 by voting GOP."

Howard Vandegrift, candidate for judge of Orphans Court, spoke for himself and his running mates, James G. Blair and Hugh Stevenson. He praised the qualifications of the Republican candidates for the three judgeships.

Bloomington Dam Included In Bill Inked By Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $50,965,000 authorization for a flood control project at Bloomington, Md., on the north branch of the Potomac River is included in the omnibus water bill signed by President Kennedy.

The 200 projects included in the bill are estimated to cost more than $2.4 billion in federal expenditures, plus local participation.

The bill was passed by congress on the day of adjournment and signed by Kennedy Tuesday.

Man Sentenced For Non-Support

George Robert Keller, 209 Spring Street, was given a one-year sentence in the House of Correction by Juvenile Court Magistrate Louis A. Fatkin on a charge of non-support of his wife and three minor children.

Keller appeared before Magistrate Fatkin in August on the same charge and at that time was order to obtain employment and report back to the court in 30 days, which he failed to do.

Election Board Chief Denies Charge By GOP

Says Sixth Machine Planned For LaVale

Matthew J. Mullaney, chairman of the Board of Election Supervisors, yesterday denied a charge by J. Wallace Close, chairman of the Allegany County Republican State Central Committee, that the board had planned to have only five voting machines in Election District 29 (LaVale) for the November 6 general election.

Mr. Mullaney, a Democrat, said only five machines were used at LaVale for the May primary because the board thought that would be enough for the 2,823 eligible voters in a primary, when voting generally is light.

He said only 1,052 of the 2,823 eligible voters, or 37 per cent, voted in the primary and that any delay or inconvenience was caused by the usual last-hour rush at the LaVale polling place .

Won't Prevent Rush

Mr Mullaney said the addition of one voting machine in the primary would not have solved this problem.

He acknowledged that he told Mr. Close last week that an additional machine would be used at LaVale in the general election because of the present registration of 2,972 voters. He said he did not say anything to the effect that "the law would be complied with," as Mr. Close had reported in an account published in yesterday's News.

Mr. Mullaney said the addition of one voting machine will not prevent a last-hour rush at LaVale, but he said every poll worker has been instructed as usual to permit everyone who is in the polling place at closing time to vote.

"If Mr. Close is attempting to make a campaign issue out of the Election Board, let him first look to his own house," said Mr. Mullaney.

Planned For Extra Machine

"Mr. (Victor M.) Hebb is not only the Republican member of the Board of Election Supervisors but is also a member of the Republican State Central Committee. Mr. Hebb attends all board meetings, and should have presented the position of the Republican Party to the board rather than to have it appear that Mr. Hebb was unaware of the plans of the board. He is kept fully aware of what is being done and made no issue of the use of only five machines in LaVale in the primary. Mr. Hebb also knows that the board was planning to install a sixth machine for the November 6 election prior to Mr. Close injecting himself in the matter over the head of the representative of his party on the bipartisan Election Board," Mr. Mullaney said.

The chairman also said the board has discussed splitting the LaVale area and establishing another polling place, although this will not be accomplished before November 6.

Barricade Bar Is Sought

An equity suit has been filed in Allegany County Circuit Court seeking a permanent injunction against barricading a road in the Barton area.

Francis Brennan Sr., Armenta Brenner, his wife, and Francis Brennan, his son, of Barton brought the action in Circuit Court against Joseph A. McKenzie and Mary M. McKenzie, his wife. The petition for an injunction was filed by Attorney Edward J. Ryan.

The Brennans contend that they purchased a 135 by 365 foot tract by deed dated September 12, 1944 along a road leading from State Route 36 to the Pekill Coal Mine. This road has been used by the complainants and the public for between 25 and 30 years, they say.

The McKenzies acquired an adjacent lot by deed dated May 17, 1940, but the deed did not give them ownership of the road, according to the petition. Recently, the petition charged that the defendants have placed a barrier on the road so the complainants could not use it.

Associate Judge W. Earle Cobey has signed an order instructing the defendants to show cause why the barricade should not be prohibited by injunction.

Rocky Gap Park Would Provide 300-Acre Lake

Route 40 Group Pushes Action

A mental picture of a 300-acre lake visible to westbound motorists on U. S. Route 40 from atop Martin Mountain was presented last night as one of the advantages that would accrue to this area from the development of the proposed Rocky Gap State Park just north of Route 40 down the westerly side of the mountain.

Edward Habeeb, president of the Route 40 Association, mentioned this picture possibility at the dinner meeting last night of the association at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club attended by nearly 50 interested citizens of Allegany County.

An elaboration on this picture was provided by Joseph F. Kaylor, director of the State Department of Forests and Parks, who provided a more detailed explanation of what the state proposes to develop in the way of a state park just a few miles east of Cumberland.

2,200 Acres Sought

Eventually the state hopes to acquire between 2,200 and 2,500 acres of land for Rocky Gap State Park extending it to the edge of Route 40 because this would be the route that most visitors to the park would take.

Some $100,000 has been provided by the state for the purchase of land for this park, which would be the first state park in Allegany County. There is a Dan's Mountain Recreation Area near Lonaconing owned by the State Department of Forests and Parks but it is not large enough to be classified as a state park.

With the construction of a dam and the creation of a 300-acre lake on the park there would be plenty of facilities for acquatic recreation including fishing, boating, camping, swimming, picnicking and other related activities.

Although the development of the park itself should be the responsibility of the state, Mr. Kaylor said he believes most of the park-related services should be provided by private enterprise.

Free Enterprise Need

He expressed doubts that Maryland would ever go into the business of operating motels, hotels and restaurants in and near state parks. These facilities should be operated by free enterprise, he contends.

Visitors to state parks bring new dollars into the area. They purchase gasoline and groceries, and most of them like to take novelties home with them. The director of the State Department of Forests and Parks expressed a belief that local people could profit by producing wood-carved products from Western Maryland which they could sell visitors to the park.

William A. Parr, director of state parks in Maryland, also spoke about the Rocky Gap possibilities. Visitors to the park would include local groups, vacationers from distant points spending one or two weeks here, and weekend campers who presumably would come from such metropolitan areas as Baltimore, Washington and Pittsburgh.

The third state official called upon to speak last night was State Forester H. C. Buckingham, who was identified as the father of Rocky Gap State Park. Mr. Habeeb pointed out that it was Mr. Buckingham who first suggested Rocky Gap as a good site for a state park in this area. In his brief remarks, the state forester cautioned that it will be necessary to keep forest fires out for the development of the park at Rocky Gap.

John L. Towler, long a leader in the Route 40 Association, served as toastmaster.

Alvin H. Wilson of Cumberland, a member of the State Economic Development Commission, stressed that time is of the essence in acquiring land for the Rocky Gap park. He drew an answer from Mr. Kaylor that if the $100,000 is not sufficient to purchase all of the needed land, another $100,000 probably would be obtained in the next fiscal year starting July 1, 1963.

Mr. Habeeb pointed to one irony about last night's meeting. It had been hoped that all of the candidates for state senator, House of Delegates and county commissioners could attend so that assurances could be made that the park would be pushed regardless of the winners November 6. However, the only candidate present for the dinner was County Treasurer James W. Bishop, Republican, who seeks re-election.

Election Board Chief Denies Charge By GOP

Says Sixth Machine Planned For LaVale

Matthew J. Mullaney, chairman of the Board of Election Supervisors, yesterday denied a charge by J. Wallace Close, chairman of the Allegany County Republican State Central Committee, that the board had planned to have only five voting machines in Election District 29 (LaVale) for the November 6 general election.

Mr. Mullaney, a Democrat, said only five machines were used at LaVale for the May primary because the board thought that would be enough for the 2,823 eligible voters in a primary, when voting generally is light.

He said only 1,052 of the 2,823 eligible voters, or 37 per cent, voted in the primary and that any delay or inconvenience was caused by the usual last-hour rush at the LaVale polling place .

Won't Prevent Rush

Mr Mullaney said the addition of one voting machine in the primary would not have solved this problem.

He acknowledged that he told Mr. Close last week that an additional machine would be used at LaVale in the general election because of the present registration of 2,972 voters. He said he did not say anything to the effect that "the law would be complied with," as Mr. Close had reported in an account published in yesterday's News.

Mr. Mullaney said the addition of one voting machine will not prevent a last-hour rush at LaVale, but he said every poll worker has been instructed as usual to permit everyone who is in the polling place at closing time to vote.

"If Mr. Close is attempting to make a campaign issue out of the Election Board, let him first look to his own house," said Mr. Mullaney.

Planned For Extra Machine

"Mr. (Victor M.) Hebb is not only the Republican member of the Board of Election Supervisors but is also a member of the Republican State Central Committee. Mr. Hebb attends all board meetings, and should have presented the position of the Republican Party to the board rather than to have it appear that Mr. Hebb was unaware of the plans of the board. He is kept fully aware of what is being done and made no issue of the use of only five machines in LaVale in the primary. Mr. Hebb also knows that the board was planning to install a sixth machine for the November 6 election prior to Mr. Close injecting himself in the matter over the head of the representative of his party on the bipartisan Election Board," Mr. Mullaney said.

The chairman also said the board has discussed splitting the LaVale area and establishing another polling place, although this will not be accomplished before November 6.

70 Per Cent Of Disability Blamed On Fall

Jury Deliberates At End Of Trial

After deliberating about two and one-half hours, an Allegany County Circuit Court jury yesterday afternoon decided that a wheelwright at the Luke mill of West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company sustained 70 per cent of his disability as a result of a fall on ice at the mill on or about December 19,1960.

The jury of seven men and five women had five issues to determine in reaching its verdict. William G. Umstot of Cumberland was the foreman.

Clarence K. Stanley of Westernport had been awarded 40 per cent disability by the State Workmen's Compensation Commission and his attorneys, Simon F. Reilly and Milton Gerson, appealed to Circuit Court.

On the first issue, the jury decided that Mr. Stanley was not permanently and totally disabled as a result of the accidental injury he sustained in the course of his employment on or about December 19, 1960.

The jury decided in the second issue that Mr. Stanley was permanently and partially disabled by the accidental injury.

On the third issue, the jury ruled that Mr. Stanley had a disease or infirmity within the meaning of the Workmen's Compensation Law of Maryland which preexisted the fall of December 19, 1960.

The jury decided on the fourth issue that Mr. Stanley's present disability is caused or contributed to in part by the pre-existing disease or infirmity.

Finally, on the fifth issue, the jury ruled that 70 per cent of his permanent partial disability resulted from his accidental injury of December 19, 1960, and that the other 30 per cent pre-existed.

Horace P. Whitworth Jr. and Hugh A. McMullen were attorneys for West Virginia Pulp and Paper. Evidence in the case was heard Tuesday and the closing argument took place yesterday morning. The jury deliberated about an hour before lunch and then resumed for another 90 minutes after lunch.

Hume Benched By Doctors

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP) —David Hume, Charles County attorney and Democratic politician, has been ordered by physicians to rest at his home for an indefinite period because of a persistent bronchial infection.

Hume underwent the latest of a series of tests Wednesday after attending a political rally in Prince Georges County and returned immediately to his home at Mount Eagle in Charles County.

Hume said he definitely would take no further part in the current political campaign. He has been actively supporting Gov. Tawes, who defeated him for the Democratic nomination in last May's primary.

"For the past several weeks, my physicians have felt that I should stop all activity because of a bronchial infection which has persisted," Hume said.

"After further tests today, they concluded that it was imperative that I stop at once."

Hume had attended a coffee rally for Tawes and other Democratic candidates at the home of Samuel W. H. Meloy near Upper Marlboro.

After the examination later in the morning, he immediately canceled a speaking engagement in Annapolis Wednesday night, another scheduled in Baltimore for Thursday night and three days of campaigning this week in Montgomery County.

COLLECTION DAY TODAY

Cuban Crisis Increases Need For Red Cross Aides

Because of the existing Cuban situation, Allegany County Chapter, American Red Cross, anticipates an increase in the work load of its home service and the need for volunteer social welfare aides, Mrs. Sara G. Lindsay, executive secretary, said yesterday.

The aides work with home service under the direction of Mrs. Marion Barkman, secretary, to help families of men and women in the armed forces, and veterans and their families to meet personal and family problems.

A social welfare aide volunteers training course will be held next week by the local chapter at Beth Jacob Synagogue, Columbia Street. The course is 30 hours long and will be held Monday through Friday from 9 a. m. until 4 p. m.

Following ten hours on-the-job training, aides will receive pins, epaulets and certificates.

Miss Mary Christian of the Red Cross Eastern Area Headquarters, Alexandria, Va., will instruct the course. A native of Kentucky, she worked with WPA there until joining the Red Cross staff in 1942. In 1942 she left the Red Cross to work for the War Relocation Authority Welfare Section at Japanese Relocation Center, Gila River, Ariz. She returned to Red Cross in 1946 in the Home Service section, Eastern Area, where she has been since with the exception of 15 months during which she attended college. She is a graduate of University of Kentucky and of Smith College School of Social Workers.

Services performed by the social welfare aides include reporting and communications, assistance with applications for government benefits, counseling in personal and family problems, referral to other community sources of help, and financial assistance.

Aides completing the class may carry either a wide variety of duties or specialize, according to their own choice.

No Candidates File In Time For LaVale Board

Residents of Election District 29 in LaVale will not have the opportunity November 6 to elect a member to the LaVale Zoning Board.

A petition signed by 23 LaVale residents was submitted to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners Tuesday endorsing Douglas Smith, 157 National Highway, for a six-year term on the LaVale Zoning Board.

James G. Stevenson, clerk to the county commissioners, wrote a letter to Cameron L. Otto, 11 Bane Street, LaVale, one of the signers of the petition, informing him that legally the petition had to be received 60 days before the November 6 election for Mr. Smith's name to appear on the ballot.

He explained that the petition will be kept on file so that Mr. Smith may be appointed when his term expires. He has been a member of the LaVale Zoning Board since his appointment by the county commissioners December 29, 1960.

B&O Crossing Complaint Aired

The Ellerslie Volunteer Fire Company, Inc., through F. E. Logsdon, its secretary, has written a letter to T. E. Johnson, superintendent of the Pittsburgh Division of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, complaining about the condition of the B&O main line crossing in Ellerslie.

A copy of the letter was sent to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

The letter says the crossing is properly equipped with a crossarm and flashlight signals, but it is considered too narrow and the exits are too sudden.

County Tax Collector William B. Orndorff has written the County Commissioners requesting that a Civil Service test be given for the position of tax office clerk as the girl holding that position is now on leave of absence and has indicated she will not return to work.

The commissioners also have given Mary H. Hoffman a probationary appointment as practical nurse at the County Infirmary. She has been a cleaning woman and laundry helper there since April 4, 1961.

One Of Two Missing Girls Is Located

One of two Frostburg area girls who have been missing from their homes since October 13 has been located in a Newark, Ohio, hospital, State Police were informed yesterday.

Patricia Ann O'Brien, 16, of RD 1, Frostburg, was reported in the hospital at Newark, according to authorities, who said she apparently became ill. Her parents are to go to Ohio today to get her.

Meanwhile Ann Willison, also 16, of Shaft, is still missing, according to police, who said the two girls apparently left the Frostburg area together.

FOP Meeting Sunday

Members of Fort Cumberland Lodge 90, Fraternal Order of Police, will meet at 7:30 p. m. Sunday in the National Guard Armory in Frostburg. Refreshments will be served.

Tax Collections In September Reach $69,660

Four-Month Yield Hits $3,117,813

September collections of $69,660.81 brought the four-month yield from the Allegany County real estate and personal property taxes to $3,117,813.65, according to the records of County Tax Collector William B. Orndorff.

The four-month yield is 100.5 per cent of the $3,103,350 anticipated by the conservative county commissioners for the entire fiscal year when they set the tax rate of $1.85 on each $100 of assessed valuation early in April.

After four months the collections are running $203,033.54 behind the $3,320,847.19 collected in the corresponding four months of 1961. Then the rate was $2.10 on each $100 of assessed valuation so the yield should have been greater.

September collections included $59,540.81 from county real estate taxes and $10,120 from corporations.

Funds also were collected last month at the Court House for four special taxing areas of the county. Included were $621.90 for LaVale, $305.95 for Cresaptown, $24.03 for Mt. Savage.

The collector's office also received $9,301.21 in 1961 county real estate and personal property taxes. State real estate tax collections at the Court House also included $35,804.48 in 1962 taxes and $784.70 in 1961 taxes. The state collections for last month included $23,122.05 in real estate taxes and $12,682.43 from corporations.

Monthly totals starting with June, when the bills were mailed out and a five per cent discount on county taxes was allowed, with 1961 figures listed first in each case:

June—$2,966,246.29 and $2,803,842.42; July—$139,669.05 and $118,915.56; August—$131,443.55 and $125,394.86 and September—$83,488.30 and $69,660.81.

October is the first month in which interest is being charged on county and state taxes. It is one-half of one per cent this month and will increase one-half per cent each month.

Players To Elect Officers Tonight

The Algonquin Players will elect officers and announce plans for forthcoming plays at a meeting at 8:45 p. m. today at City Hall auditorium, Mrs. Amy Slough, secretary, said last night.

Members are asked to attend, as committees will be needed for help with the Players' next production, "The Moon Is Blue", November 14 and 15.

Bloomington Dam Included In Bill Inked By Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $50,965,000 authorization for a flood control project at Bloomington, Md., on the north branch of the Potomac River is included in the omnibus water bill signed by President Kennedy.

The 200 projects included in the bill are estimated to cost more than $2.4 billion in federal expenditures, plus local participation.

The bill was passed by congress on the day of adjournment and signed by Kennedy Tuesday.

Man Sentenced For Non-Support

George Robert Keller, 209 Spring Street, was given a one-year sentence in the House of Correction by Juvenile Court Magistrate Louis A. Fatkin on a charge of non-support of his wife and three minor children.

Keller appeared before Magistrate Fatkin in August on the same charge and at that time was order to obtain employment and report back to the court in 30 days, which he failed to do.

Barricade Bar Is Sought

An equity suit has been filed in Allegany County Circuit Court seeking a permanent injunction against barricading a road in the Barton area.

Francis Brennan Sr., Armenta Brenner, his wife, and Francis Brennan, his son, of Barton brought the action in Circuit Court against Joseph A. McKenzie and Mary M. McKenzie, his wife. The petition for an injunction was filed by Attorney Edward J. Ryan.

The Brennans contend that they purchased a 135 by 365 foot tract by deed dated September 12, 1944 along a road leading from State Route 36 to the Pekill Coal Mine. This road has been used by the complainants and the public for between 25 and 30 years, they say.

The McKenzies acquired an adjacent lot by deed dated May 17, 1940, but the deed did not give them ownership of the road, according to the petition. Recently, the petition charged that the defendants have placed a barrier on the road so the complainants could not use it.

Associate Judge W. Earle Cobey has signed an order instructing the defendants to show cause why the barricade should not be prohibited by injunction.

Start Medical Self-Help Course
